POETRY.

BUENA VISTA.

BY A MEXICAN POET. We saw their watch fires through the night

Light up the far horizon's verge; We heard at dawn the gathering fight, Swell like the distant ocean surge-The thunder-tramp of mounted hordes From distance sweeps a bounding sound, As Azteo's twenty thousand swords, And clanking chargers shake the ground.

A gun!-now all is hushed again-How strange that hall before the storm! That fearful silence o'er the plain-Halt they their battle-line to form? It booms again-again-again, And through its thick and thunderous

The war-screams seem to pierce the brain As charging squadrons interlock. Columbia's sons-of different race-Proud Aztec and brave Alleghan, Are grappled there in death-embrace, To rend each other, man to man!

The storm clouds lift, and through the haze Dissolving in the moontide light, I see the sun of Aztec blaze Upon her banner, broad and bright! And on-still on, her ensigns wave, Flinging abroad each glorious fold: While drooping round each sullen stave Cling Alleghan's but half unrolled.

But stay! that shout has stirred the air, I see the stripes-I see the stars-O God! who leads the phalanx there, Beneath these fearful meteor bars? "OLD ZACK"-"OLD ZACK"-thewar cry rattles

Amid those men of iron tread, As rung "Old Fritz," in Europe's battles, When thus his host great Frederick led!

And where, O where is Aztec?-where, As now the rush of Alleghan Resistless tramples to despair The ranks of our victorious van? Still charging onward ever-ever, They shatter now our central might, Where halt our bravest lances shiver, Still struggling to maintain the fight!

Still struggling, from the carnage dire To snatch our patriot chief away-Who crushed by famine, steel and fire, Yet claims as his the desperate day; That day whose sinking light is shed O'er Buena Vista's field, to tell Where round the sleeping and the dead, Stalks conquering TAYLOR's sentinel.

LEXINGTON, Mo., Jan, 21, 1845. Benjamin Phelps-Dear Sir: I take great pleasure in communicating to you what I consider an extraordinary cure effected on my daughter, about 11 years of age, by Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry. About the first of September last, my daughter was taken sick, and attended by several physicians, whose prescriptions were ineffectual, or seemed to do no good. She was attended with a constant cough and pain in the breast. Her physicians and all who seen her, came to the conclusion that she was in a confirmed stage of Consumption. I made no other calculation than for her to die. But as she commenced taking the Balsam she began to improve, and continued so until her health was restored, and is now entirely well. With a view of benefiting those who may be similarly afflicted, I take pleasure in recommending this medicine to the confidence of the public.
