THE NATION'S PRAYER.

The following hymn for Fast Day was written by a young lady of the Twenty-seventh street Methodist Church (Rev. Mr. Seaman), New York.

Father, to Thy throne ascending, Lift the Nation's country's prayer, With the heart and voice bending, God—GRANT—VICTORY!

We have suffered, O our Father, In the great calamity, Now we come to Thee for succor—God—GRANT—VICTORY!

Victim slain in our households, Victim slain each day we see, The suffering whither—God—GRANT—VICTORY!

Father, never let brave traitors, In the land of brave and free, Rule o'er those whose hearts are saying—God—GRANT—VICTORY!

Thus to Thee our prayer is rising— This we humbly come to Thee, Asking Thee in broken accents—God—GRANT—VICTORY!

But if Thou wouldst longer chasten, We'd submit to all Thy will, Knowing that in His gloomiest hour, God will GRANT us VICTORY!

Then, when this dread strife is over, And the day of Peace we see, With glad hearts and voices hurled—God and GRANT us VICTORY!

SCOTCH BANKING.

"Black Monday." From the Banking and Exchange.

If, ninety years ago, somebody had inquired at the Exchange, or the Bank of England, who was the most successful man of the day, the answer would have been "Alexander Forsyth." His success in life, indeed, bordered on the marvellous; it was a sort of poetry of success—up to a certain point.

He was a Scotchman, and his success was due to his abilities, he came to London, and after a short while, succeeded in obtaining employment as an out-door clerk in the office of Messrs. Baring & Co. A handsome, dashing man, possessed of considerable energy of character, and a great force of intellect, he attracted the attention not only of his masters, but of other gentlemen, and before long he was introduced to the family circle of Messrs. Baring & Co., formerly Baring, and subsequently heads of the banking firm of Roper, Neale & James.

At the private residence of the gentlemen, a young Aberdeen draper captivated all hearts, particularly the supposed softness of the fair hair, and the sparkling eyes, which were the more attractive, as they were so young. Mr. Forsyth was offered a partnership in the banking-house of Roper, Neale & Co., in Thames-street, London, which he accepted. He was a Scotchman, and his success was due to his abilities, he came to London, and after a short while, succeeded in obtaining employment as an out-door clerk in the office of Messrs. Baring & Co.

THE WONDERS OF CAMBODIA.

Its History, and its Ruins.

In the London Athenaeum for July 2 there is an account by one Dr. A. P. N. of a journey recently made to the Kingdom of Cambodia, which affords some very interesting information about that distant and little-known country.

The great marvels of Cambodia are the numerous ruins of the Kingdom of Cambodia, which Dr. A. P. N. has recently visited. These ruins are scattered over a large tract of the Kingdom, and are the remains of a civilization which flourished in Cambodia from the 9th to the 13th century.

These places bear the traces of the grandeur and the rich gliding which were once used to cover the palaces of the monarchs of Cambodia. The ruins are scattered over a large tract of the Kingdom, and are the remains of a civilization which flourished in Cambodia from the 9th to the 13th century.

THE SIGN MANUAL.

A great deal of precious time has been wasted, first and last, in speculations touching the handwriting as a revelation of personal character. The proposition has been seriously made that there are direct and readily traceable analogies between the style of a man's character and education, and the style of his chirography.

We do not know a man or woman in the world whose handwriting betrays in any respect their true character. The handwriting of a man or woman is a mere mechanical exercise, and is not a revelation of personal character. The handwriting of a man or woman is a mere mechanical exercise, and is not a revelation of personal character.

There are other causes that modify a man's handwriting, sufficient of themselves, without the aid of the pen, to render it unrecognizable. These causes are the state of the mind, the state of the body, the state of the hand, and the state of the pen.

The handwriting of a man or woman is a mere mechanical exercise, and is not a revelation of personal character.
