WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 28, 1864.
AN AUTUMN SONG.
Across the stable glooms the wind,
High calls the lark to sing,
The west with pallid green is lined,
Fog tracks the sun's bright ring.

Secretary Seward has returned from his visit to the front. He reached City Point in company with the Hon. W. E. Washburne on Sunday morning, and accompanied by Generals Grant, Meade, and Sherman, proceeded to the works in front of Petersburg.

On Monday morning the party went up the James river on the steamer Baltimore. General Butler, General Ord, and General Birney, on Butler's steamer Greyhound, joined them on the way, and the two boats steamed up to within a mile of Dutch Gap.

THE STATE AGRICULTURAL FAIR AT EASTON.
The fair opened on September 28, 1864. All the fields and fields have been making for the annual Fair of the Pennsylvania State Agricultural Society, are nearly completed, and the results are shown in the most complete arrangements and accommodations for visitors as well as stock, which the Society has ever effected.

THE MAIN ELECTION.
The official returns from 47 towns, cities, and plantations, or nearly the whole of the State, are as follows:
Republican, 104,771
Democratic, 104,771

DECEASE OF JOHN B. MYERS.
We regret to have to announce the death of John B. Myers, senior partner of the Dry Goods Auction House of John B. Myers & Co., formerly Myers & Claiborne. The sad event occurred about 10 o'clock this morning, at his residence. Mr. Myers has been ill for several weeks with diabetes, and his death was not unexpected.
