

Evening Telegraph

A DAILY AFTERNOON PAPER. OFFICE NO. 108 S. THIRD STREET. PUBLISHED EVERY DAY EXCEPT SUNDAY.

Do we want to have the same old band of the opera-house, concert-room, and parlor? Are we tickled when the organist stilly introduces little gems from Verdi, and Donizetti, and Rossini, and Bellini, and...

New School House.—The children's great school-house, erected for the purpose of new school-rooms, &c., was reported in Common Council yesterday, and passed that body.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 30, 1864.

THE REBELLION AND THE DEFT OF THE GOVERNMENT.

It may now reasonably be hoped that the war is rapidly drawing to its close in the only manner and on the only basis on which it ought to be concluded.

Those who urge an armistice and a Convention of the States, to confer about the terms of a pacification before the Rebels will confess themselves subdued and brought under by compulsion, profess to make such propositions for the sake of humanity, and civilization.

THE LAST DAY.

We trust that every one whose eye falls on this paragraph, and who has not been assailed, will give immediate attention to this vital subject.

WEDNESDAY MUSIC ON SUNDAY.
