

It is no pleasure to me to triumph over any one," said the President, in his speech to the Pennsylvania...

We do not currently trust that these magnificent words will be needed by the people of both parties, and that all the animosity...

We have had our fight, attended by all the vicissitudes and the fate of our incident to great success. The day is no longer an occasion for such manifestations...

The late city editor of the National Republican, Mr. Ward, is a man of great talents and a constant effort to assimilate all the large...

It is easier for Mr. Lincoln to change his skin than for one who has been a thoroughgoing Republican...

There is no good reason why this same public spirit of the people of the North...

It is the solemn duty of every man who gave Mr. Lincoln his vote...
