

Evening Telegraph

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 30, 1864.

LEADING EDITORIALS FROM THE NEW YORK PRESS PAPERS THIS MORNING.

WILMINGTON.

It is unnecessary to say that the great Wilmington expedition... The expedition... The expedition... The expedition...

It is not known how otherwise it was expected to be advanced... The expedition... The expedition... The expedition...

On the following day (Sunday, the 23d) General Butler's troops arrived... The expedition... The expedition... The expedition...

Our readers, if they have been able to follow us thus far, will probably agree that the whole business in great need of elucidation... The expedition... The expedition... The expedition...

By the Australian we have the text of Mr. Adams' reply to an address of the British Emancipation Society... The expedition... The expedition... The expedition...

By the Australian we have the text of Mr. Adams' reply to an address of the British Emancipation Society... The expedition... The expedition... The expedition...

By the Australian we have the text of Mr. Adams' reply to an address of the British Emancipation Society... The expedition... The expedition... The expedition...

By the Australian we have the text of Mr. Adams' reply to an address of the British Emancipation Society... The expedition... The expedition... The expedition...

THE ATTACK UPON FORT FISHER.

Special Despatch—Explanation of the Explosion... The explosion... The explosion... The explosion...

When the Rebel General Robert H. Lee was about to start... The explosion... The explosion... The explosion...

Captain John Synon, of the steamship City of Richmond... The explosion... The explosion... The explosion...

The Rebel Divisions Continuing Religious Services... The explosion... The explosion... The explosion...

The Case of Bishop Colenso... The explosion... The explosion... The explosion...

The Case of Bishop Colenso... The explosion... The explosion... The explosion...

The Case of Bishop Colenso... The explosion... The explosion... The explosion...

The Case of Bishop Colenso... The explosion... The explosion... The explosion...

THE ATTACK UPON FORT FISHER.

Special Despatch—Explanation of the Explosion... The explosion... The explosion... The explosion...

When the Rebel General Robert H. Lee was about to start... The explosion... The explosion... The explosion...

Captain John Synon, of the steamship City of Richmond... The explosion... The explosion... The explosion...

The Rebel Divisions Continuing Religious Services... The explosion... The explosion... The explosion...

The Case of Bishop Colenso... The explosion... The explosion... The explosion...

The Case of Bishop Colenso... The explosion... The explosion... The explosion...

The Case of Bishop Colenso... The explosion... The explosion... The explosion...

The Case of Bishop Colenso... The explosion... The explosion... The explosion...

The Case of Bishop Colenso... The explosion... The explosion... The explosion...

FOURTH EDITION

LATEST FROM WASHINGTON.

Verdict in the Lunacy Case.

ADVANCE IN GOLD.

COMMERCIAL ITEMS.

Washington, December 29.—Ailing Major R. J. Meade, of the Confederate Navy, captured at Fort Fisher, has arrived here.

The whole of the Rebel army is not confined to the ranks alone, and lately several officers have gone to their homes, and a batch of one hundred deserters are thought to be in the hands of the Union army.

Fort McAllister, Georgia, Ga., December 29.—I herewith transmit some copies and interesting correspondence which has recently passed between the two opposing cavalry commanders, General Kilpatrick, of the American army, and General Wheeler, of the Rebel army.

General Kilpatrick's Cavalry, Washington, December 15, 1864.—General J. Kilpatrick, Commanding Cavalry, United States Army, General—Your letter of yesterday was received today.

General Kilpatrick's Cavalry, Washington, December 15, 1864.—General J. Kilpatrick, Commanding Cavalry, United States Army, General—Your letter of yesterday was received today.

General Kilpatrick's Cavalry, Washington, December 15, 1864.—General J. Kilpatrick, Commanding Cavalry, United States Army, General—Your letter of yesterday was received today.

General Kilpatrick's Cavalry, Washington, December 15, 1864.—General J. Kilpatrick, Commanding Cavalry, United States Army, General—Your letter of yesterday was received today.

General Kilpatrick's Cavalry, Washington, December 15, 1864.—General J. Kilpatrick, Commanding Cavalry, United States Army, General—Your letter of yesterday was received today.

MARKETS BY TELEGRAPH.

New York, December 30.—Cotton is steady... The market... The market... The market...

Philadelphia Trade Report.

Philadelphia, December 30, 1864.—Bark is quiet at present.

Latest Marine Intelligence.

Arthur H. Messiter, Professor of Music.

The First National Bank.

United States 10-40 Loan.

Office of the Volcanic Oil and Coal Company.

Cooper & Graff, Subscription Agents.

Phillips & Read, No. 40 S. Third Street.

DRY GOODS.

Goods Suitable for Presents.

E. M. Needles, No. 1024 Chestnut Street.

Latest Marine Intelligence.

Arthur H. Messiter, Professor of Music.

The First National Bank.

United States 10-40 Loan.

Office of the Volcanic Oil and Coal Company.

Cooper & Graff, Subscription Agents.

Phillips & Read, No. 40 S. Third Street.