WELCOME TO EDWIN BOOTH.

A Magnificent Beception in the Winter Garden Last Night-New York's Greeting to the Great American Tragedian-Enthusiasm Run Mad-Fair Women Cheering and Brave Men Executing Gymnastic Feats-Mr. Booth's Appearance-Groans for the New York "Hernid" and the "Old Mime," Etc.

Last night's performance of Hamlet, at the Winter Garden, was one long to be remembered. The return of Edwin Booth to the stage, after a prolonged absence-in part occasioned, we may by the sad circumstances which brought his family name into prominence in connection with the closing calamity of the late war-was made the occasion for a most enthu-siastic demonstration of sincere welcome on the part of those of the great artist's friends who succeeded in gaining a footbold within the walls

It was felt that under the peculiar, unfortunate circumstances of his position, this estimable citizen and honored player deserved an expression of sympathy and a heartiest greeting from the public that would in some measure encourage him to resume the round of his professional duties. So universal was this sentiment that it needed no concerted action to crowd the theatre upon the opening night of the Shakespearian eason with an audience that fairly represented the wealth and intelligence of the city, and which eagerly awaited the first opportunity for bestowing upon Booth one of the most remarkably spontaneous ovations ever extended to an

The extraordinary warmth of this magnificent demonstration was in part due to the fac-that the public sense of decency had been re-cently outraged by a most brutal attack upon Booth's fair fame in the Herald, which was followed by another even more atrocious and in-cendiary in character published in the Playbilla sheet whose disgraceful existence terminated with the number containing this last shock to the popular sensibilities.

The desire to indorse Booth, and resent the Hera a's unparalleled insults, was last night uppermost in the minds of all clarses. People unaccustomed to going to the theatre flocked to the Winger Gardenberg matter of that the number of the contains the Vinter Garden[as a matter of duty, to sustain by their presence and applause a gentleman who had been so grossly wronged.

The crowd was immense, of course, but as orderly and quiet as if at church. A cordon of police appeared at an early hour in the vestibule of the house, and those composing it were placed in various positions by the Captain of the Fifteenth Precinct. Their services were not needed, however, the unanimity of feeling being too apparent to permit of any handful of eviled persons from seeking to create a disturbance.

Stuart had announced that the curtain would rise considerably earlier than usual, but when the fine orchestra, under Mr. Robert Stoepel, began the "Hamlet Overture" (com-posed by the leader) there was scarcely a vacant spot to be found in the house, and it seemed as if the number of persons standing was as great as those whose good fortune had placed seats at their disposal. It is in the second scene of the first act that "Hamlet" is first discovered—scated near the throne in the audience-chamber of the palace at Elsinore. Upon the opening of this scene the enthusiasm broke forth, and surely such a scene was never before witnessed in a theatre. The applause burst spontaneously from every part of the house. The men stamped, clapped their hands, and hurraned continuously; the ladies rose in their seats and waved a thousand hand-kerchiefs; and for full five minutes a scene of wild excitement forbade the progress of the play.

Mr. Booth was at first overcome by the tremendous ovation. His head dropped low upon his breast, and his frame shook with emotion. The huzzas continuing, and even gathering force and volume as they were protonged, he arose from his chair and bowed repeatedly. In a moment or two more the agreeable tumult subsided as spontaneously as it had begun, and the play proceeded.

At the close of every act the enthusiasm burst forth anew, and Mr. Booth was compelled to cross the stage under a fire of wreaths and bou-quets, and saluted by the frantic waving of handkerchiers and hats and the mighty cheers of the

It was at the close of the third of these halfdozen or more distinct ovations that a gallerian, whose sense of justice might well qualify him for a position on the bench or in the jury-room, demanded "groans for the New York Herald." This mild but pertinent request awakened a storm of hisses and indignant groaning of the kind peculiar to political meetings in the vicinity of election days. After that cheers were proposed for the party who originated the idea of rebuking the recipient of the recent Maretzek letters. It is needless to say that the necessary cheers followed by a sturdy "tiger," were promptly forthcoming.

Of the performance itself we can speak satisfactorily in a very few words. Mr. Booth acted with never so much careful ease and precision, reading with admirable effect, and entering more fully than ever into the business of the scenes. seemed ambitious to surpass his own best efforts, and without being prejudiced by too fully sharing the enthusiasm of the occasion we may say that, in our own opinion, this was truly his most brilliant illustration of his most admired

In the first scene with the Ghost, in the interview with Polonius, in the play-scene and at its conclusion, he acted with consummate finesse, and betrayed a warmth of passion and a depth of true emotional power far beyond his own foimer grand portrayal. The full merit of this exquisite performance cannot be conveyed in a few hastily written sentences strung loosely together at the final fall of the curtain. Its effect upon that vast and intent audience best indicates the intense humanity, the eloquence, the sterling vigor of the noble characterization.

It seemed after the first long outburst of ap-plause had died away, that the actor had caught the enthusiasm of the hour, and was freshened to his work thereby. Mr. Booth was freshened to his work thereby. Mr. Booth was capably supported. Mr. Charles Barron took the part of "Laertes;" Mr. W. Taylor that of the "Ghost;" Mr. C. K. Mason that of the "King;" Mr. W. A. Donaldson that of "Horatio" while Mrs. Marie Wilkins appeared for the first time at this theatre as the "Onesne," and Mrs. Edic Common with the street of the "Onesne," and Mrs. Edic Common with the street of t as the "Queen;" and Miss Effic Germon as "Ophelia," Mr. John Dyott played "Polonius,"

A couple of new scene—the "King's closet," and another—have been added since the tragedy was presented last winter, and the entire set is therefore now wanting in no particular. "Hamlet" will, of course, be continued for a considerable period, although it is in contemplation to have Mr. Booth appear in other characters of his fine repertoire during his present engagement.-N. Y. World.

HOMICIDE CASES. COURT OF OYER AND TERMINER AND QUARTER Sessions—Judges Allison and Ludlow.—Cantwell's Case. Yesterday after our report closed the case of Edward Cantwell, indicted for the murder of James McGinnis, on the 25th of October, 1863, on the pavement in front of a tavern kept by a man named Delaney, in Water street, between Walnut and Dock streets, was tried.

On the evening of the day in question, Mc-G nnis, who had but a few minutes before been in the tavern, and had drunk at the bar with Cantwell, and had been called out by him, was found lying on the pavement bleeding and in-sensible. He was brought into the tavern by parties there. None of them, however (all being side) saw or knew what had transpired out-

The Commonwealth was not able to produce any witness as to the actual beating, but it was shown that the deceased went outside the house at the request of the detendant; that he was seen almost immediately after; and when deceased was first discovered lying on the pavement in front of the tavern, just across the street, and that notwithstanding he was a married man with a family, he within a day or two, left the city, and did not return for more than

The Coroner and Dr. Shapleigh, who made the post mortem examination, were the only witnesses examined up to the hour our report closed. The Doctor testified to the character of the wound, and that it was the cause of death. District Attorney Mann for Commonwealth; G. Remak for defendant.

ACTION AGAINST THE SECRETARY OF WAR-DA-MAGES LAID AT ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOL-LARS.

SUPREME COURT-Chambers, Before Judge Sutherland—Joseph H. Maddox vs. Edwin M. Stanton. The arrests by military process, now that the war is over, are causing somewhat of a stir in our civil courts. The present action may be considered a test as to the liability of Government officers for any arbitrary measures that may have been exercised during the progress of the war.

In the suit about to be tried, the facts, according to the complaint and answer, are as follows:-On or about the 18th of April, 1864, Mr. Joseph H. Maddox was arrested in Baltimore, by order of the Secretary of War. The charges alleged against him were that he, in company with M. E. Martin and J. F. Manahan, held unlawful intercourse with the Rebels, in the transportation of goods, illicit correspondence, etc., written evidences being shown to prove the fact.

That on those charges he was confined at Camp Hamilton, Fortress Monroe, until the 8th of June following, and again arrested on the 16th of March, 1865, being this time confined some ninety-nine days. Praintiff was arrested on these occasions under the name of James Brown. While thus confined he alleges that a large quantity of tobacco belonging to him and placed at Fredericksburg, Virginia, for safe keeping, was destroyed by orders of the defendant.

It is also alleged in the complaint that he re-ceived permission from President Lincoln to purchase this tobacco in Richmond, and that he was acting solely under executive authority. He claims that in consequence of the sudden and unlawful scizure of his person, being prevented from having intercourse with friends and counel, he has been materially injured both financially and physically, and seeks for damages to the amount of one hundred thousand dollars.

Secretary Stanton, in his answer, says that he s not a resident of the city of New York, but of Washington, D. C. That the plaintiff was arrested for violation of the Articles of War, and was afterwards discharged on parole after giving proper security for his appearance when required. That at the time of his arrest war xisted, and Baltimore was under martial law, and that plaintiff was taken in custody by the Provost Marshal of that city, and not by any command of the respondent.

The case came up in Court yesterday on a action of ex-Judge Cowles to strike out the whole or a portion of the answer. Ex-Judge Pierpont, on the part of the Secretary of War, opposed the motion.

The points of law governing this branch of the subject were argued at some length. Judge Sutherland reserved his decision

While Secretary Stanton was in this city some months since a process was served upon him which brought the case before our Courts.— N. Y. Herald.

MATTERS OVER THE RIVER.

CAMDEN COUNTY BIBLE SOCIETY .- At the recent meeting of this Society, the usual annual reports were presented. From the report of the Treasurer. Mr. James H. Stevens, it appears that the amounts contributed last year were as follows:-Fifth Street M. E. Church, Camden, $35; Bethel and Turnersville M. E. Church, $11-32; Third Street M. E. Church, den, $10.75; Blackwoodtown Church, $18; First Presbyterian Church, Camden, $48.86; Second Presbyterian Church, Camden, $15.25; Black-woodtown Presbyterian Church, $15.23, Ninetysix volumes were donated during the past year, and fifty-two were sold. It was ordered that the Executive Committee take measures for the canvass and supply of the county, and that they begin the work by April 1st.

Rev. S. Vansant and C. Wood were appointed delegates to the next annual meeting of the Burlington County Bible Society. Able and interesting addresses were made by Revs. G. D. Carrow and Alexander Reed, of Philadelphia. Also by Rev. George Sheldon, D. D., State Agent, and Rev. I. H. Torreuce, of the Pennsylvania Bible Society. Statements having been made to the society concerning the Jubilee Year of the American Bible Society, the following aper was read and approved :-

Whereas, The American Bible Society is now pass ing through the fittleth year of its existence and labors, by the blessing of God having been instru-mental in issuing more than twenty millions of in-spired volumes, in fifty different languages, during

AN INTERESTING OCCASION .- Yesterday an interest the Occasion.—I esterday atternoon Messrs, Massey, Collins & Co. opened their immense brewery, at Tenth and Filbert, in order to give the public an opportunity to discover the mystery of ale and porter manufacturing. This, we believe, is the most extensive brewery in the United States, and among the first exactly lished in this city. After the videous had in in the United States, and among the first es-tablished in this city. After the visitors had in-spected the establishment to their satisfaction, they were invited to partake of a fine repast and some specimens of the liquids which were so abundant on all sides. When the cloth was removed. Frederick Fairthorne, Esq., in a neat and graceful speech, proposed the health of Mr. Massey, to which that gentleman responded, giving a number of interesting statements in record ing a number of interesting statements in regard to the rise and growth of the brewing trade in Philadelphia. Mr. Massey, as is well known, is one of our oldest and wealthiest citizens, and has made the manufacture of malt liquors the study of his life. Mr. Massey was followed by George L. Buzby and others, in terms highly complimentary of the business energy and enter prise of the firm.

SCHOOL DECISIONS .- The Department of Common Schools recently made the following decisions, which will be interesting alike to parent and pupils:—It is not legal, in any case, to keep schools open on Saturdays. Scholars whose parents have a legal residence in one district cannot legally attend the schools of another district merely by going in that district to work for their board, with the intention of attending school, and returning to the residence of their parents when the school has closed. Christmas-day, Washington's birthday, Fourth-of-July, and Thanksgiving-day are legal holidays, and when these occur on an ordinary school day, they are to be observed by closing school, and the teacher is to write on the roll-book the name of the holiday, in the column under the proper date, and count the day as if school had been open. If other holidays are taken without the consent of the proper board, the time is to be made up at the end of the term.

COMMENDABLE .- On the night of the fire at Sixth and Chesnut streets the Florence Sewing Machine Company's store, at No. 630 Chesnut street, was deluged with water through the carelessness of a person leaving a spirgot turned on in one of the upper rooms. The loss sustained by the Florence Company amounted to about one thousand dollars, besides causing a that Howard & Co.'s Express were looking for a temporary location for their money business, Mr. G. This promot and generous conduct of Mr. Evans is deserving of commendation, as it must, to some exten, derange and interfere with his own business, etc. etc.

RAILROAD ACCIDENT-MIRACULOUS Escare.—The passengers on the train from Lancaster for this city, on fuesday, were detained several hours by an accident which occurred at the bridge over Vall-y creek, near Downingtown. The train slacked up to cross the bridge, and when the steam was applied the wheel of the water tank struck the tank, let out the water, and threw it from the track. On examination it was found that the axle of the tank wheels was broken, and the wheels had kept the track and passed over the bridge, which is long, and sixty or seventy feet high, without an axle! The passengers were wholly unconscious of the perilous ride they were making over that bridge until the danger was over.

SLAUGHTER OF SHEEP .- One of the cars of a treight train on the Pennsylvania Radroad. near Parkesburg, Chester county, broke an axie a day or two since. The car was loaded with fat sheep from the West, bound to this city. The next car was also loaded with sheep; the cars were double-dockers, and contained four hundred head. Many of the sheep were killed by the accident, and others so badly wounded that they were slaughtered on the spot. The killed and slaughtered amounted to one hundred and twenty-five.

QUEER WEATHER .- Mild, unusually mild is its character. More mud than ice or snow in commodes the pedestrian in our streets. ground has hardly been clad with a clean white mantle since the winter came in. It is winter by the almanac, but not by the weather. The Frost King has made but one sharp raid among us, as yet, and that some two weeks agone. The old-est inhabitant gives his usual testimony on the history of the subject.

RIOTING.—About 11 o'clock last night a riot took place at Ninth and Race streets, be-tween adherents of the Good-Will Engine and Fairmount Engine companies. Pistols and bricks were freely used. The police interfered, and one young man, giving the name of William Morrow, was arrested while in the act of hurling a large stone. Morrow had a hearing before Alderman Massey this morning, and was committed for trial.

THE FIRE IN CHESNUT STREET

Letter from Wells, Fargo & Co. SILOGO SAVED IN HERRING S PATENT SAPE. PRILADELPHIA January 1 1866 MESSES, FARRIEL, REBRING & Co,-Gentlement-We have just opened our Sale, one of your manufacture, which passed through the destructive fire in Chesnut airest. last night. The Safe was in our office, No. 607, which building was entirely destroyed. The Sa'e was in a warm place, as you may well suppose, and was red hot when taken out of the embers. We are well satisfied with the result of this trial, and find our books, papers, and some ten thousand dollars in money almost as perfeet as when put in the Safe. Nothing is injured, if except the eather bindings of the books, which are teamed: the money and papers are as good as ever Truly yours.
