lowing amendment to the address in response to the Queen's speech bad been offered:-"Our funncial difficulties, increasing from day to day will cause the run of the agricultural and manufacturing interests. It is necessary to balance expenditores with receipts, and as it is impossible to raise taxes, already too heavy, we must make reductions to the amount of 300,000,000 reals. It is only by this means that we shall re-establish our credit, and avoid dangers which threaten us." ADVICES TO THE 8th INSTANT.

Lengthy details are published of a great enterta nment given to General Clay, the American Minister at Russia, while travelling in the interior, by the Corporation of Merchants of Moscow. General Clay, and his becretary of Legation, Mr. Cortin, were received with the greatest enthusiasm. The toasts at the banquet to the Emperor of Russia, the President of the United Etates, and the guests of the evening, evoked protracted cheering. The speeches on both sides were most traternal, and ardent wishes were interchanged for continued friendly relations and increased commerce between the two nations.

The London Times devotes an editorial to the above demonstration, and says that strange as the sympathy in feeling between two criment so opposite may appear, there is nothing paradoxical in it. Each Government in its own way entertains certain aspirations, so like those of the other that they are content to sink all minor differences in the identity of overraling views. Their aspirations, the Times says, are dettiny, aggrandizement, and protection. The Austrian expedition to the East is to sail in April, with the object of concluding treaties of commerce with Siam and China. The Hungarian Diet presented a congratulatory address to the Emperor at Pesth. The En peror, in reply, expressed his belief in the satis-factory solution of the pending difficulties. The Prussian Chamber of Deputies, by a vote of 251 to 44, had adopted a resolution, in spite of the ministerial opposition, declaring that the annexation of Lunenburg to Prussia was illegal until sanctioned by the Chamber. Telegraphic communication between Malta

The Richmond "Examiner" Case.

It is well understood here that the resuscitation of the Richmond Examiner was ordered by the President in direct opposition to the desire of General Grant, whose intentions to suppress disloyal newspapers hereafter are unequivocally expressed in his late circular to his Department commanders. The revocation of the order suppressing The Examiner, while made by General Grant, was virtually done by the President, to whom Pollard appealed from the decision of the Lieutevant-General, and who, in an official communication, requested the latter to permit Pollard to resume the publication of his paper. Among the assurances given the President by Pollard of his future good behavior was a written one reading as follows :- "Mr. Pollard, of the Richmond Examiner, pledges himself to support your administration hereafter as he has done heretofore."

Printing of Currency.

The Printing Bureau of the Treasury is now engaged only upon the tractional currency, all other Government issues having ceased except the currency for the National Banks, which is printed in New York. The fractional currency is nearly all printed dry, upon the hydrostatic presses, in the Printing Division of the Treasury Department. It is supposed that Secretary Mc-Culloch will cause the expected new issues for the National Banks to be printed by the Printing Bureau of the Department.

General Lee at Arlington.

A gentleman of this city having occasion to pass through Arlington at dusk on Saturday, saw a lonely figure standing with folded arms at the foot of a tree. Struck with the sorrowful attitude of the person, he walked past him, and saw that it was Robert E. Lee, standing in the street that passes through the middle of his old estate. Mrs. Lee has applied to the President for the restoration of this estate, which has virtually become a National Union soldiers' cemetery. The expectation is general that the President will order its restoration.

President's Veto Message-Attempt to Assassinate Fred Bouglass, Etc. Special Despatch to the Evening Telegraph.

BALTIMORE, February 20. The President's veto of the Freedmen's Bureau bill gives pretty general satisfaction here. The Union men of Maryland will fully sustain him on this question.

The Baltimore Gazette, the Southern organ here, grumbles at Grant's order regarding mischievous newspapers, but very carefully and respectfully on the subject, which argues favorably for the order.

Fred. Douglass, the colored orator, alleges tha some one snapped a pistol at him whilst he was going to the Northern Central Railway station, on North Calvert street, on Sunday night. He save one of the men standing at the corner of Baltimore street attempted the assassination. Douglass instantly gave the alarm and called a policeman for protection, but the assailants fied. A colored companion of Douglass says he also heard the man snap the pistol.

The Baltimore Press on the Veto Message. The American withholds any opinion, in conequence of the lateness of the hour in receiving the message. The Commercial publishes the message, but says nothing. The Gazette (secession organ), rejoices over the President's firmness and his veto, and says:---We are sure the people of Maryland and the conservative and law-abiding people of every section of country will heartily endorse the mes-sage which the President has sent to the Senate, and in which he has given the reasons that have constrained him to veto the Freedmen's Bureau bill. His argument is irresistible, and the spirit and temper of the message are admirable. He is standing here upon firm ground in this matter, and he will be sustained by the American people from Maine to Mexico, if he will but call them to the rescue of the Constitution and laws. They are weary of the radicalism and self-seeking demagoguism of these latter days; they want the freedom, sc-curity and peace that they once enjoyed, and ney will follow any man who labors to restore to them these inestimable blessings. They are as yet troubled, because they cannot see whither they are t-nding; but if Mr. Johnson would but uplift the banner of Constitutional law and civil freedom, and carry it undinch-ingly to the front, he would find that he has nation by his side. The Sun calls it the monstrons Freedmen's Bu reau bill, and then simply refers to the Presi dent's reasons for vetoing it.

Arms are stacked in different parts of the hall, which, added to the green scenery and other emblems of Ireland, present the appearance of the foreground of an Irish camp.

General Sweeney has arrived. He is recog-nized by the crowded audience. The wildest excitement prevails. The ladies are screamin with delight; children are half strangled in their mother's arms; the crowd inside, and the thousands outside who cannot obtain admission, are surging to and fro. Pittsburg is a blaze of excitement; taken by storm; music playing; sol diers marching; banners flying; verily a great day for the Fenians.

By streauses exertions on the part of the Dis-trict Centre the excitement was subdued, and Senator Gibbons, of Philadelphia, was intro duced. He was received with vociferous cheers He commenced with apologizing for the absence of President Roberts, who, in conse-quence of the over exertions of the past month, as completely exhausted. He was sure countrymen had not come there to night to be lectured in their duty to Ireland. There has been too much speech-making and too little work for the last seven years. He was glad that the intelligence of the people had finally prevsiled, and that they have concluded that the emancipation of Ireland would come through the people and not the titled nabobs or the great O's. H reterred in glowing language to the position of Fenianism in Ireland and England to-day, and said that, for one prisoner whom British tyranny incarcerates, a hundred who never belonged t the organization before, fall in and take their places. I am opposed to making speeches. We have een talking for years, and what have we done? It is time to drop the orstor and take up the soldier. We must fight, or our names will go down to posterity as braggarts with arms in our hands. We will meet our bereditary enemy again, and if we fall we fall with dignity in the honestest cause that ever the tongue or pen of man worked for. I have been preparing for the ast twenty years for this final struggle. I have sworn to break my country's chains or die in the attempt. We have now a better prospect than ever a people had before. We have not been idle. I mean that President Roberts and the Senate nave not been idle. We have made large pur chases of arms and war material. If you are prepared to stand by us we promise that before the summer sun kisses the hill tops of Ireland, a ray of hops will gladden every true Irish heart, that time we shall have conquered and got hostages for our brave patriots at home. The green flag will be flying independently to the freemen's breezer and we will have a base of operations from which we cannot only emanc pate Ireland, but also annihilate England. If you support us, 7 pledge my name, fame, pro-perty, and life to this holy cause.

It is made of mazarine blue cash-Margarita," mere, with a circlet or oval of margarites at each end; the petals are white and the hearts yellow. The white and yellow are worked in floss silk, but may be worked in silver and gold thread. These latter, though more brilliant, are not so chaste, and consequently not so much in keeping with the name of scarf. When the margaritas describe an oval line, the two ends are joined at the top by a simulated two-heart knot; the long fringe which fimshes the ends is made of white and yellow silk, waved in imitation of young lamb's wool. It is tied at the throat in a slip-knot, which is warm and comfortable, and does not crush or wrinkle the scarf. Another preity novelty is the "Oak-leaf Eca." This piquant little tning consists entirely of knitted leaves, strung on a knitted web two inches wide. It may be made in various shades, of yellow, blue, green, or violet. "The Hunga-rian collar" is another of the spring novelties, and one that cannot fail to become a favorite with the ladies. It may be attached to any house, school, walking, or riding dress with which it will harmonize in color; and, that it may be the most serviceable, ladies who intend having but one should get that made up in black veivet.

GEORGE FRANCIS TRAIN .- This evening George Francis Train, Esq., will deliver at the Academy of Music his former lecture on "Down with Free Trade and Toadyism to England, and up with the Irish Republic and American Industry." The address is the most erratic of the many eloquent and erratic speeches made by Mr. Train. It is a defense of Fenians and American institutions. It behooves our friends of the Brotherhood to attend and prove that the ascertion that "Fenianism is dead" is a slander. It is only proper the Philadelphians should be present, as we, of all others, are most interested in protection to American industry. The orator should, and will have, an immense reception.

Eleven Men Frozen to Death. From the Beaver Dam (Wis.) Citizen, 9th.

We are permitted to copy the following from a letter written to Mrs. Reid by her sister, residing near Hamilton, Fillmore county, Minn.:--There was a brother of Frank Ibberson (drug gist in Fox Lake) frozen to death on the 26th ult., just at night, while going home from will, within half a mile and in plan sight of his own house, which is one mile from here. Sunday morning his son came to see if he was here, as he found the oxen at nome. I told him at once that he never would see his father airve again it he was not at home.

George and our nearest neighbor and brother went with him to find him, and found him on Addison's land, about half a mile from here; and they found, as they were taking him from the snow, a bottle by his side, which probably brought him to his untimely death. He leaves a wife and eight children, the oldest eighteen years of age. We have heard of ten other men who perished in the same storm—six of them all together in a sleigh froze as they were sitting in the sleigh. Three other men had been to the timber, and it seems they could not keep up with their teams; one was found, the others were not, the last account we had; the one found was frozen in a standing position, with both hands covering his face, within three rods of a house.

-There are some five thousand more females than males in Lowell.

In Oil shares there was very little doing. Ocean sold at 15], and Maple Shade at 4].
