French Atrocities in Mexico.

It will be remembered that before MAXIMILIAN went to Mexico to assume supreme authority there, he and his allies tried to make the world believe that he was going to relieve the Mexican people from a state of intolerable anarchy, and at their invitation. In order to anticipate any possible question of the solidity of this pretension, especially by the United States, a Mexican delegation waited upon him in Europe, and assured him in addresses, afterwards published, that they were commissioned by a competent number of their countrymen to express their desire to change the constitution of their Government from that of a republic to a monarchy, and to tender to him the position of imperial head of the administration. In all this there was a well-sifted bit of diplomatic cunning. The right of a people to freely alter their political institutions, and substitute others deemed more suitable to their condition, and likely to promote their social happiness, is very generally recognized by all civilized nations, and is expressly avowed in our own Declaration of Independence. If, therefore, it could be established that the present Government in Mexico, or what is claimed to be the Government, is the result of the voluntary choice of a majority of the Mexican people, manifested in some regular and authoritative manner, no foreign power would be justified in interfering in the matter.

It has, however, long been sufficiently apparent that MAXIMILIAN'S rule is a flagrant usurpation, which has been steadily resisted by the Liberalists in that unhappy country up to this time; and that France and Austria are employing their military power to destroy a sister republic immediately adjoining the United States, and whose people have continually appealed to us to aid them in their efforts to defend and preserve their civil liberties and national independence. There can be no doubt that this Government, under the actual circumstances of the case, has a clear right, on every principle of law, policy, and humanity, to intervene in these Mexican troubles; and it is more than probable that the European powers are somewhat amazed to find that we are permitting that to be done, right on our own borders, which we long ago declared, in the enunciation of what is known as the "Monroe doctrine," should not be done with our consent anywhere on this continent. While, however, the Washington Administration was engaged in putting down a formidable Rebellion at home, it was not altogether convenient to interfere in behalf of Mexico, nor are our internal affairs even yet so completely and permanently settled as to make it expedient for us to rush with unnecessary impatience into a foreign war.

Nevertheless, if we mean to help Mexico in her struggle at all, the execution of that purpose cannot safely be much longer delayed. We want no stronger evidence not only that the Austro-French alliance are waging in Mexico a war of subjugation, but are waging it also with a barbarity that is violative of all the rules of Christian warfare, is needed than the news now reaching this country from the scene of the conflict. A private letter just received from an American citizen of high intelligence and respectability, now in Mexico, and from which we are allowed to make the following extract, says:—"This country is getting rapidly into a most horrible state. The French have taught this people how to be savage, and to disregard human life entirely. The daily sight of scores of Liberals led out to be shot; the torture to which they are subjected before execution; and the absolute disregard to all considerations of justice or humanity, are circumstances that are rapidly producing their legitimate effect on all classes, destroying in them those amiable and humane qualities which ever distinguished the Mexican race, and which even made their civil contests comparatively bloodless. Times are sadly changed within two years. The Mexican of to-day scarcely at all resembles the Mexican I knew three years ago. Guerrillas formerly summoned to surrender before firing. Now they have adopted the French plan of butchering first, and inquiring afterwards. You have read the account of the taking of Bagdad. Compared with what passes here, that was civilized warfare. I am excessively anxious and impatient to be off."

The above is fully confirmed by a correspondent of a New York contemporary, who in a late letter says:—"If the country is to be given up peacefully, how happened it that the French military commander permitted liberal Mexicans to be driven like beasts, bound with pieces of rope, through the streets of Vera Cruz but a few days past, and at the same time that they were guarded by soldiers in the French service, carrying arms with fixed bayonets and loaded? The Mexicans were bound with cords, not particularly to prevent them from escaping, but as a mark of disgrace. The object in binding them and driving them through the streets was to hold the natives of liberal propensities under the terror of being eventually reduced to the same situation. Immediately afterwards these men were sentenced to be shot, their crime being that two of the party were taken while trying to capture a railroad train, being soldiers in the Liberal army, and that the rest were members of a Liberal armed force of the regular republican army. Civilized nations bury their missionaries to the Pacific Islands to try and convert the savages there, but they had better first send their missionaries to this part, and to the court of MAXIMILIAN, to convert the savages in Mexico."

Testimony of this kind is enough to provoke the earnest protest of every just and humane people in the world; and this nation will be eternally disgraced if it much longer sits still, and sanctions by its inaction, an attempt to fasten the yoke of despotism on the necks of a free people by such an exercise of military force as is positively shocking to the sensibilities of this enlightened age. And these atrocities are practised, too, under the direct auspices and by the troops of two foreign monarchies whose ministers are resident at Washington, in order to maintain and establish in Mexico a revolutionary authority which the United States have thus far refused to acknowledge.

Surely it is nearly time that Congress and the Executive were taking some decided steps to interpose in defense of popular government in Mexico, and rescue its abused and oppressed people from outrages that are unknown to legitimate warfare. The "Monroe doctrine," again reaffirmed by the late Republican Convention at Harrisburg, certainly commands the approbation of the whole American people; and if ever there was a case clearly and urgently calling for its vigorous and complete vindication by the United States, that case is indisputably presented in the existing condition of the Mexican Republic.

The Reception of Mr. Bancroft's Oration Abroad.

By the last steamer from Europe we have the utterances of the London Times on the eulogistic oration of Hon. GEORGE BANCROFT. At the tone adopted by the leading organ of British sentiment we cannot express the least indignation or surprise. Our own opinion of the address was freely stated on the day of its delivery. It was anything but a eulogy on the life and character of Mr. LINCOLN. The speaker exposed himself to the just criticism of foreign and home journals by the desultory character of his harangue and the over-comprehensiveness of his plan of action. We cannot be either astonished or offended when the Times pertinently asks, "What had the tenure of land in Great Britain, or the occupation by this country of the Asiatic forts, to do with the birthday of Mr. LINCOLN?" If it suited Mr. BANCROFT to expose so salient a point for attack, it does not behoove us to be angry when an enemy selects that as the point of assault.

Again, in regard to the tone adopted by the speaker in his criticisms on England, that great organ of English nationality only speaks with justice. It sneers at the "taste which could invite a British minister and his suite in order to inflict on them a coarse invective," and says with frankness, "We can well understand that there are many among the Americans themselves who were shocked by such indecency." While we do not take the least offense or express the least surprise at the editorial of the Times, nor on other course was with honor open to it, yet at the same time we would call attention to a grave wrong it has done our people in asserting that the British Minister was invited only to be insulted. The manner in which such invitation was issued precluded such a supposition. A committee of the two Houses of Congress had the matter in charge. They knew nothing of the contents of the address to be delivered, nor were they aware of any intended attack on foreign powers. In fact, the character of the address naturally led them to think that only a biographical eulogy of the late President was intended. They therefore requested the attendance of all the foreign legations. Even had they known of the forthcoming attack on Great Britain, they could not have acted otherwise than they did. What an insult it would have been esteemed for the ministers of the various European powers to be invited, and the representative of Great Britain omitted! We think, therefore, had the Times taken this into consideration, it would not have asserted that Sir F. BRUCE was invited in order to be grossly insulted. We cannot, however, see any cause for indignation at the Times' article. It is but the offended utterance of an insulted nation, and however just the castigation inflicted might be, it would have been dishonorable had it received it other than it did.

MALLOREY RELEASED.—On Friday afternoon, in accordance with orders from Washington, S. R. MALLOREY, ex-Secretary of the Confederate Navy, was released from Fort Lafayette. He has been in failing health for some time, and it is understood that he was released in consequence of representations by physicians that a prolonged confinement would prove fatal. He will join his family, which has been residing for some time in Connecticut.

Mr. MALLOREY'S public career has been a comparatively short, and by no means particularly brilliant one. Entering the United States Senate in 1851, he held for ten years the seat of Senator from Florida, and at the outbreak of the Rebellion identified himself with the Rebel cause, and became its Secretary of the Navy. We do not know how much is due to him of the millions of dollars wasted and hundreds of vessels destroyed by privateers; but, as the privateers generally sailed with some instructions, it is not unlikely that his agency in the matter was confined to signing letters of marque and endeavoring to protect from the gallews those whom it could legally claim as its own. We hope that he has learned wisdom in solitude, and will come out of his prison a loyal and wiser man. Mr. MALLOREY is the last of all the State captives confined within the walls of Fort Lafayette.

Only a few State prisoners now remain confined, and these will probably be soon disposed of, either by trial or pardon. Of all the mighty host so recently engaged in the most gigantic and causeless Rebellion in history, none but JEFFERSON DAVIS, CLEMENT C. CLAY, and a few of better note, personally suffer for their crimes. If our Government is not the strongest, it is certainly the most merciful in the world.

RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE.

METHODIST PROSPERITY IN NEW JERSEY. The Methodist Churches in New Jersey are the pride of their dioceses as such rates as they—Keypoint, $2200; Centerville, $1450; Squan Village, $600, etc. The Willow Grove and Vineland churches have just spent $35,000 in church building and improvements. The missionary collection at Bordentown is $1000. Members are added to the churches—over sixty in Clinton Church, over hundred in Vineland, one hundred at Waterford, etc.

AMERICAN BIBLE SOCIETY. At the last meeting of the managers of the Bible Society, an earnest discussion took place on the application of the English Bible Society for a set of plates for the Arabic Bible now being electrified by the Bible House. Some alterations were proposed in deference to English ideas, but it was resolved that the plates should not be altered. The question whether the English Society should pay for the plates, and if so, how much, the bare additional cost of the plates, or an equal share of the preparatory expense, was settled in a generous and national way, by a hearty vote to make the plates a fraternal gift to the other society.

MISSION AMONG THE INDIANS OF HUDSON'S BAY. Rev. James Horden, of the Church Missionary Society, has returned home to England after laboring fourteen years among the Indians on the shores of James Bay. When he first went among them they were a poor debased people, not one being able to read; now there is scarcely a family of Indians connected with his station at Moose Port, of whom some one or more are not now able to read. In some families the whole are able to read fluently and write neatly. There are about one hundred and twenty altogether who can speak English. Mr. Horden relates the circumstances of several recent happy deaths among them, and their dying testimony to the good done by the gospel.

EFFECT OF THE LAW OF CIVIL MARRIAGE IN ITALY. An interesting case has occurred at Naples, in connection with the new law of civil marriage. A priest recently presented himself at the office of the Civil Registrar, provided with all the papers necessary for marriage, and wishing to be united to a Neapolitan lady. The case was referred to a higher court, and it was decided that as the civil code neither explicitly nor implicitly made any restriction as regards the purposes bound by civil marriage, the priest was at a right to marry like any other citizen. Accordingly Pasquale de Francesco was married on the 29th of January last.

HEBREW BIBLE SOCIETY. Mr. Bliss, the commissioner of the American Bible Society for the Turkish empire, in a recent letter from Constantinople, relates the following instructive incident:—"A Jewish rabbi of Nicomedia, some time since, that the young men of his flock were inclined to spend their Sabbath (Saturday) wandering about the town, idling away their time, and in danger from such dissipation, proposed to them to come to his house and study the Old Testament. His proposal was accepted, and they now meet every Saturday for this purpose, using the present edition of the Hebrew Spanish Old Testament, that proposed, that each young man bring two cents a week, and deposit them in a box, to be used in the purchase of the Bible for the poor. This was also accepted. Hence arises a Jewish Bible Association in Nicomedia."

FIRE AND BURGLAR PROOF SAFES THE FIRE IN CHESTNUT STREET Letter from Wells, Fargo & Co. $10,000 SAVED IN HERRING'S PATENT SAFE. PHILADELPHIA, January 3, 1866. Messrs. FARREL, HERRING & Co.—Gentlemen:—We have just opened our safe, one of your manufacture, which passed through the destructive fire in Chestnut Street last night. The safe was in our office, No. 67, which building was entirely destroyed. The safe was in a warm place, as you may well suppose, and was red hot when taken out of the smelter. We are well satisfied with the result of this trial, and find our books, papers, and some ten thousand dollars in money almost as perfect as when put in the safe. Nothing is injured, if we except the leather bindings of the books, which are steamed; the money and papers are as good as ever. Truly yours, WELLS, FARGO & CO., Per J. H. COOK, Agent. The above safe can be seen at our store. FARREL, HERRING & CO., 310 1/2 No. 625 CHESTNUT STREET.
