THE ADVANCE IN HOUSE REBTS-MEET-ING OF TENANTS PROPOSED.-The recent remarkable advance in rents is creating much murmuring among our laboring people, and especially as the movement is believed by some to be one of unjustifiable tyranny on the part of landlords. Real estate owners were formerly satisfied with rent sufficient to pay an interest of seven per centum on the capital invested. Then the value ot real estate went up, and landlords were thus enriched without effort on their part. Just then an advanced rent was demanded to ensure an interest of at least twelve per centum on the privately appraised increased values. Now rents are increased in many instances to an extent sufficient to insure an interest of about twenty per centum on the new valuation, and pay the new four per centum municipal tax besides. Thus, a small dwelling (seven or eight rooms). which cost about $1800 to erect, and is assessed by the city officials at $2000 in value, is really held by the owner as worth $4000 and is rented at $400 per annum. This is what may be noted only as a medium case, and will show the average injustice that was to be sustained by the masses of our people. It was understood that when the war closed many Southern refugees would return to the South, and houses would be plentiful at reasonable rents. The exodus of transient residents has been very large, but houses are as scarce, and rents higher than ever before. In New York, where the municipal tax rate is much higher, and where a personal tax is levied by the city, rents are really lower than in Philadelphia. That is to say, a family in ordinary, circumstances can obtain rooms properly ar-ranged as an abiding place for humanity for a smaller rental than in our city. Yet in New York the advance in rents has become so op-pressive that meetings are being held to mature steps for doing away with what seems to be a system of tyrannical extortion. A correspondent, who gives us these facts, proposes similar meetings here, in order to secure redress and justice, if possible. In addition to this it is proposed to organize a Building Association, for the purpose of rapidly increas-ing the number of small dwellings in our city. uch a project would be successful in enriching its own members, but its field of operations would have to be very extensive to render any real relief to the poor suffering thousands who are complaining. That something should be done, however, in this matter is the demand on all hands, and we hope the people will give the question earnest attention

The exercises were opened with prayer and introductory remarks by the minister of the congregation, Rev. D. L. Gear. Then followed music, addresses, and refreshments, according choicest musical gems, which were well reeived.

Miss Townsend, a girl of twelve summers sang with great effect the beautiful ballad of "Father, Come Home." This song was encored for the third time. So the exercises proceeded until half past 10 o'clock, when the whole was terminated by the large audience singing the "Star-Spangled Banner," in honor of the anni-versary of the fall of Richmond.

This was the second festival given by the First Congregational Church during this season.

which is a tolerable hotel called the Waverly House, quite a crowd collects, and, from the noise of the freedmen attached to the hotel, one might suppose Culpeper to be a town of some extent; but a walk shrough the place soon dispels all doubts of the kind, and shows what the place is. What it might be in Yankee hands is another thing, for the locality is just suited section of the country. The level district in the immediate vicinity of Brandy Station, about four miles from this, was apparently a lavorite locality with the bold troopers of both armies, for the grave of many a cavalry man testifies to the effective style in which both "Rebs" and "Yanks" swung their sabres. It was near "Brandy" that Averill first encountered Stuart and his men, and that the standing reward in Averill's Corps of "$500 for the first dead cavalry man," was earned. Here, too, was it that Custer and Kilpatrick fought so bravely with their respective commands to cover the retreat of our army from Culpeper to Centreville, to anticipate Lee's flanking movement. And near this same Brandy Station, the same corps, on its retreat from that march, drove the cavalry bri-gade which covered the retreat of the Rebels across the Rapidan-a position, by the way, they never should have been permitted to reach Ruined dwellings, desolated farms, and fence less acres, are dreadful marks of the havoc of civil war; but there are other mementoes far more potent in bringing to mind painful reminiscences of the past; and these are the little mounds to be seen on nearly every hillside, marking the last resting-places of gallant soldiers, whose country was dearer to them than their lives. While visiting some of the old camps around Brandy, I passed by several graves, at the head of which were the boards with the name of the soldier and the regiment he belonged to inscribed on them. Among a number of graves in the old camp of General Morris' Brigade, I discovered the following legible inscriptions:-Alired Silk, F. 151st N. Y. V., died, February 6, 1864, aged 27; Josiah P. Robinson, K. 3d Maine, died April 12, 1864; George Bublen, 3d Maine, died April 18, 1864. On one grave, only the name of William Addison was legible; and on another all the marks left were the letters T. B., 151st N. Y. There were twenty-iwo graves in the collection from which these names were taken, nothing but simple posts marking each end of the graves. All these were on the farm of Mr. Botts, and about half a mile from his house.

In the garden of Mrs. Wise's farm are no less than thirty-five graves, all of which have headboards, and I copted the inscriptions on them in order that their friends or relatives may remov the bodies as the land will soon be cultivated. The dwelling-house on this tarm was turned into a hospital, and was in charge of Dr. Mitchell, of Philadelphia. The following are the inscrip-tions on the head-boards:--Z. Mitte, K. 5th Michigan Cavalry, died March 19, 1864; Henry Bansey, K, 5th Michigan Cav., died March 12, 1864; Henry Ramsey, K, 5th Michigan Cav., died March 17, 1864; M.
