THE FENIANS

Downfall of "Head Centre" O'Ma-hony-The "Head Centre" Arrested and Deposed by Fenlans-Fury of the Fenian Victims - Threats of Deceived Irishmen Against Killian-Excitement Among the Fenians.

The O'Mahony bubble has burst at last. The gross trauds perpetrated upon the masses of the entan brotherh od for the last four months Fenian Brotherhood for the last four months in the name of patriotism, have at last come to a close. Ever since the 8th of December, when the Senate, headed by Colonel Roberts, left the organization located at Union Square, the O'Mahony party have been weakening gradually and imperceptibly, and it was only by the most desperate laisehoods and the most profuse expenditure of the moneys taken from the pockets of the honest members of the Brotherhood for the ostensible purpose of liberating hood for the estensible purpose of liberating Ireland, that the Union Square establishment has existed and received life from the heart's blood of the organization.

THE KILLIAN FIASCO. The expedition of Lieutenant-General Killian and his host of major-generals and lesser digna-tories to the frontier, with the advertised purpose of capturing the inoffensive island of Campo Bello, has at last opened the eyes of all honest Feniaus to the terrible swindle which they have been duped into supporting and abetting. The real purpose of Killian in taking 300 badly armed men to Eastcort was to help the cause of con-federation of the British provinces, and to create a row by breaking the neutrality laws, in order that the Government might be competled to issue a proclama ion which could only result in breaking up the plans of Colonel Roberts and General Sweeney. For this Kilhan and C'Mahony have labored assid outly, and all the money which has been subscribed to free Ireland from the shackles of British tyranny has been devoted merely to pay broken-down poli-ticians and one-horse spouters high salaries to plunder the honest men of the organization who have sought to protect their countrymen from being robbed and plundered in the name of patriotism.

During the last three or four days the men who left their families and their homes, as they supposed, to take shipping for Ireland, Killian having informed the men that General Sweeney was already in the field, and that the movement to Eastport was but a part of the plan of that officer, who was to support them by a diversion on Canada. The men were induced to believe these villanous falsehoods, and lett for the frontier in perfect good taith to take sluoping at once. But when they arrived at Eastport they found neither transports nor iron-clads; and, as a last resort, the leaders, Doring, Sinand, as a last resort, the leaders, Doring, Sinnott, Killian, and company, wanted their deluded followers to at ack Campo Bello with nothing but their pistors. Colonel Watsh, Captain Laynor, and others, who did not wish to see the men slaughtered by the shells from the British fleet laying off the island, refused to accede to this mad-braned attempt of Kilhan and his confreres, and the entire scheme fell to the ground. The men had to beg their way the ground. The men had to beg their way back to New York as well as they could, and they are here now to call John O'Mahony to his last account.

THE TRIAL OF JOHN O'MAHONY.

On Saturday last the Eastport contingent of the grand army of invasion called on John O'Mahon, and demarded that they should receive remuneration for the loss of time and employment that they had suffered in the wild-goose chase. O'Mahony refused at first, and denounced Killian as a traitor, who had sold the "cause" to the enemy, Killian having already asserted the same thing of O'Mahony in the streets of Eastport, stating that the reason why his invas on scheme had come to grief was because "the administration had refused to sup-port him in the field. (Meaning John O'Mahony.) This did not satisfy the men, however, and Colonel Walsh and Captain Gaynor, it is understood, presented pistols at the head of the o'Mahony, having previously locked the doors of the mansion to prevent his escape. O'Mahony, after a slight delay to gather his scattered faculties, pad the demands of the men, and they went on their way rejoicing, with $30 per capita in their pockets.

THE LAST STRUGGLE OF O'MAHONY.

In consequence of the smash-up of the invasion and its satal results to the organization, a meeting of the department of Manhattan, which has hitherto fought tooth and nail for O'Ma-nony, was called by the District Centre, Patrick Daily, on Sunday atternoon, at two o'clock, at the hall of the Department, No. 814 Broadway. The n eeting was strictly a private one, and no one was allowed to be present but the Centre, the Secretary, and the chairman of the Committee of Safety of each Circle representing the seventy Circles of the Department, and number-ing about two hundred delegates in all. The salaried officials of Union Square, who applied for admittance to support the falling fortunes o their beloved chief, were ignominiously expelled as soon as they made their appearance.
The men were all picked, comprising the best educated and most intelligent of the Brother hood in the department; and they met with the firm purpose of sitting every wrong and outrage to the bot om. The meeting having been or ganized, and Mr. Dalby appointed Chairman, a committee was appointed to wait upon John D'Mahony and inform him that the Convention was in session for the purpose of examining his accounts and hearing explanations in regard to the shameful escapade at Eastport. O'Manony, t is said, demurred at first to appear before the Convention; but the Convention were deternined that he should no longer humbug them with plausible speeches and smooth words, and, inding that the Fenian Brotherhood were masers at last, he consented perforce to appear before the Convention.

EXCITING SCENES IN THE CONVENTION.

When O'Mahony appeared before the Convention the greatest excitement prevailed, and it was almost impossible for the once powerful chieftan, who had defied the entire Catholic hierarchy of the United States, to make himself heard. Cries of "Imbeclle!" "Spiritualist!" "Killian's dupe!" "Where is the invasion of Ireland now?" and other discordant sounds, were heard from all parts of the half. The par-tisans of O'Mahony made a strong effort to obtain silence for their chief, and succeeded. O'Mahony was then placed upon the stand, and was subjected for nearly two hours to the most rigid and scrutinizing cross-examination by the delegates, individually and collectively. He was questioned and cross-questioned repeatedly as to how the money of the Brotherhood had been ex-pended, and several members denounced him in the most violent terms

O'Mahony fought for "the mastery like a lion, out did not succeed in impressing the delegates in his favor. The scenes at times equalled anyhing ever seen in the Council of Five Hundred luring the French revolution; and at times, it eemed as if O'Mahony was about to give way nder the terrible cross-examination which he had to undergo. At times he would rise, throw his long bair back from his forehead, and repel the accusations hurled at him, only to have hem hurled back in his face. His face was sale as death, throughout, and though he was erribly badwered, he made a splendid light for iomination. At one time, when he was ques ioned as to how he came to send Killian on the wild goose-chase to Eastport, and not being able to answer the question, ac looked around in a supplicating manner and asked of the Convention:—"Am I to be lestroyed for this, the one great mistage of my life?" But he was met with the answer from several delegates who jumped on their feet:—"It is not your first mistake." "You are a servant of the Fenian Brotherhood, not the master any longer." And, "We have made you, and we will unmake you;" and several other equally determined answers. Captain McMahon, a brave soldier who unmasted a battery during the war, in the 2d Corps, denounced O'Mahony in unneasured terms as an "imbecile." It was proposed to depo e him at once, by several delegates, when O'Mahony, finding himself driven to the last ditch, produced a letter purporting to be irom James Stephens, in which that gentleman stated that he would leave Havre for the United States on the 28th of April, and expected to arrive here on the 9th of May.

A compromise was then effected, and a committee was appointed to take charge of the

A compromise was then effected, and a committee was appointed to take charge of the Union Square headquarters, and the books, papers, and rooms therein until James Stephens arrived, for the purpose of making a proper investigation. The Committee is now in charge of the mension and the valuaties, if any remain to be taken care of, which is doubtful. The utmost indignation is fell against Killian, and should the great "mobilizer" return to New York, it is probable that he will meet with rough treatment at the hand; of the outraged and treatment at the hand: of the outraged and swindled Fenians. O'Mahony, it is said, is already nearly crazed, and the entire corps of relaried officials at Union Sqbare, who have been swallowing up twelve thousand dollars a month of the funds of the Brotherhood, have been discharged by order of the Committee appointed. Crowds of the disaffected yesterday visited the headquarters of President Roberts, and tendered their sorvices which some account. and tendered their services, which were accepted with the proviso that they meant tight, And thus is ended the great swindle of Union Square, with its magnificent furniture, its liveried servants, its sumptuous Congress, its salaried officials, and all its other regal appurte

It also had, during the past few months, experienced considerable adventure. He was arrested tast full on a charge of stealing a horse and carriage from Samuel Cake, Esq., of Longacom ng, and during his imprironment feitned insanity so composity that the Court ordered him to be sent to the Insane Asylum at Tienion. From that institution he soon afterwards made his e-cape, and its whereabouts remained unknown until about ten days since, when he was discovered somewhere on the line of the Reading Rai road, and brought back to Cauden by the Sherid and Officer Ayres, when he was committed to his old quarters, or triat, but from which he has again escaped. SINGULAR DEATH .- One day last week a SINGULAR DEATH.—One day last week a young lad named Charles Godfrey, aged about seven emy cars, employed in the store of Mr. Steetman at Tuckahoe, came to his death in the following singular manner. He had gone into the second story, naised the rash, and was looking out of the window, when the sash accidentall fellon his neck and chozed him to death. He was soon after discovered, but too late for resuscitation. He was a promising youth, and his accidental death cast a gloom over the cit zees in the entire village.

AMUSEMENTS.

WALNUT STREET THEATRE-Ruy $B^{\prime}as$, in French, has, besides the morits of the story and the Freich, has, besides the morits of the story and the admirable dramatic situation, the greatest beauty of language. In Mr. Booth's adaptation the two termer qualities alone have been preserved. The language is all diverted of its elegance and poetry and converted into commonplace dialogue. Mr. Booth, however, has, no doubt, from the original conceived the character, understood all its singular devotion, power, chivalry, and poetry, and thus, in spite of the words, gives, to Ruy Blas the full power of his genius.

The melancholy and dignity of the first scenes, The melancholy and dignity of the first scenes, when the poor scholar, with a wild passion in his heart that lifts him above all earthly station, submits to his memal service, is linely and delicately portraved by Mr. Booth—the indignant scorn which the man of the people, "Ruy Blas," feels for the decayed and oppressive nobility, is admirably expressed.

Then the tenderness of his love for the "Queen!" Then the tenderness offhis love for the "Queen!" Never was more holy, yet nore ardent passion portrayed on the stare. It is indeed a passion so deep, so earnest, so entirely woven into the soul, that we feel it capable of all sacrifice. In the last scene the great dramatic effects culminated in a scene which has scarcely its equal for situation on the stage.

If Booth's dying scene last hight was not quite as pathetic as we have seen him at other times, we must attribute it to Miss Graham, and her ridiculous hoops, that covered him up at the last, and produced a titter just as the tears were starting. Indeed, much hoops, that covered him up at the last, and produced a titer just as the tears were starting. Indeed, much as this lady has been censured for coldness and mannerisms, she never deserved so much censure as last evening, when, by her stiff manner, her utter want of intelligence in the readings, her coldness, and the absence of all grace she utterly marred the play.

It is almost to be regretted that Miss Graham has the "gift of beauty," for it has been to her a fatal one and to the public, placing her in a position she has not one other qualification to fill. Last night the tableau at the cau of the first act was destroyed, and the play made unintelligable, by her failing to come on the stage at the close of the act. She never appeared at all.

Mr. James Taylor is not an efficient representative of "Don Casar," and the old hidalgos of Spain iound forly representatives. Mr. Barron's "Don Salluste" was given with power and effect, his dignified bearing well representing the haushty, highborn minister. But he was too tragic "Pon Salluste" was bitter, sarcastic, jeering, and not a neavy villan. Nor had be patred for "Ruy Blas," only for the "Queen" He should treat him scornfully, not with anger and threats as he does in the scene in the council chamber. But with all these drawbacks, Mr. Booth is the lidea of Victor Hago's hero; his "Ruy Blas" is the most sympathetic and beautiful of his impersonations. This evening Ruy Blas will be repeated, with Don Casar de Bazan.

be repeated, with Don Casar de Basan, NEW CHESNUT STREET TREATRE. - Miss Maggie NEW CHENUT STREET THEATRE.—Miss Maggie Mitchell plays "Little Barefoot," a favorite part, one in which her rival, Charlotte Thompson, utterly tail d, for Miss Mitchell is the only actress who can give interest to the part. Her engagement is drawing to a close Mr. Sinn's benefit takes place on Saturday, a fact of which the public should be reminded, for his constant desire to please it, and cater for it, deserves a spicial manifestation of its gravitude.

ARCH STREET THEATRE.—The Woman in Red, with the teautiful mysic scene of the last act, in which Celeste is so great. There is no piece in which she is seen to such advantage. Her dresses are the most superb we have yet seen on the stage.

Mn Wolfsonn's last Beethoven matinee takes place at the Foyer of the Academy, to-day, at four o'clock. The grand concert offered to him by his friends, when the Beethoven testimonial is to be presented, takes pince on Saturday, and will be a grand artistic and fashionable affair.
