MATTERS OVER THE RIVER.

BURGLARS ARRESTED .- Two colored men, BURGLARS ARRESTED.—Two colored men, giving their names as mackett and Jordan, were arrested yesterday by the polos of Philadelphia and brought to Camden on the charge of having been extensively engaged in stealing namess culoxens, and numerous other articles from beope residing in various parts of South Jersey. Hackett had been previously arrested, and exx bills of indictment were found against him for larceny by the Grand Jury. They were taken before Justice Cussady, who committed them to answer at the present term of the Courts and their trial will take place during this or next week. These robberies have been very extensive, reaching as far as Salem.

LONGACOMING .- The M. E. Church congregation at Longacoming, Camden county, are determined to provide themselves with a fine church determined to provide themselves with a fine church edifice. Some ten cirizens have taken the matter in hand, and raised among themselves about four thousand do lars for that purpose. A beautiful site has been purchased, and the structure will be commenced as soon as the plan has seen determined upon. It will be a decidedly that teful building when completed.

DISASTROUS FIRE.—A day or two since the barn in the reat of Lewis Gahre's store, in West Bridgeton, was destroy to be fire, and two valuable horses and some loss were burned. The cause of the fire is unknown. Mr. Gahre's loss is estimated DISORDERLY .- The Mayor was quite busy yesterday in attending to disorderly characters, who had been arres ed for poisterous and granken conduct. The usual fines were imposed upon them.

HANDSOME CHURCH.-The Presbyterians of Absecum village are building a very handsome church, which is nearly completed.

AMUSEMENTS.

New the summable "Robert Landry" of years are "Robert Landry" was one of the reveations of his fine endowments for the stave. His figure occomes the revolutionary costume. As he stood before us in his costume of Representative, we could not but retail the young enthusiast of the grand epoch of the revolution, who dreamed of republics as poets create it—Camile Desmoutins. So, too, Camille must have stood on the scriffold, his feet in the bood his cuttous as made here of the descriptions. his enthusiasm had heiped to shed—good and gazed upon a world which shudderingly now he was eav-ing in the midst of a reign worse than that of any ing in the midst of a reign worse than that of any hing he had denounced—the reign of briror. Adams "Robert Landry." and the "D ad Heart," are the finest and most vivid pictures of the revolution we have seen on the stage. The full character of the times is represented in the popular scenes and the grand but misguided spirit of the higher minds set before us in Adams. The aristocracy and the degraded priesthood, that required martyrdom to purity them, are admirably sketched in the "Abbe Latour" and the "Count St. Valerie." The "Abbe Latour" is one of the tew characters on the stage of our modern drama that hes real character. Mr. Ciscke gave it to us with all the eas, elecance, and seern, the wit, the bravery of the man; all he wanted eern, the wit, the bravery of the man; all he wanted was n ore animal spirit, in the first act he was young, then a companion in evi; not, as in the second act, the guide to evil. Besides, the reckless animal spirits of the first act, commasted with more sober sarcasm in the after part, indicates the difference age has made the character. in his character. hr Ciarke's French is Parisian, one of Barton Hill's great advantages and an im-mense qualification in an actor who aims at being an artist, for one piece of ignorance jers on the taste and destroys faith in the artist's interlectual supehr. Dubois was good in his old part, and makes a

Mr. Dubois was good in his old part, and makes a capital gendarine. Allss Orron has been no doubt, burned in the study of so many parts. We were somewhat disappointed in her 'Catherine Duya.'' though one or two of her speeches, especially in the last act, those of which she had that to study the spirit as were as the words, were admirably given. The grouping in the popular scenes was not well attended to. At the Waimut, as originally produced, every scene was a picture. The French tricolor flag was avong; the stripes go the other vay across, and not like the American red, white and blue. The play, and Adams' admirable 'Robert Landry,' drew a fire Louse.

ARCH STREET THEATRE.—This evening, Who Killed (ock Robin, with Jack Sheppard To-morrow evening Mr. Mackay will take his benefit. This gentleman has scarcely been seen sufficiently in parts suited to his talents and his admirable artistic conception to have made a popular reputation, but the intellectual portion of the public have fully understood and appreciated in Mr. Mackay the great artist. For his benefit he gives O'd Phil's Birthdry, a piece new to this city, The Old Guard, and The Wird Duck A fine till, which should aid his own talents in drawing a fine house. ARCH STREET THEATRE.-This evening, Who

Mr. Caertner's standing as a classical artist is well known, and Madame Abel, from New York by whom he will be assisted, was compared whilst in Europe to Madame C ara Schumann Mr. Gaertner will also be assisted by our own excellent prantst, Mr. Jarvas, and the other members of the Quintette Club.

ASSEMBLY BUILDINGS - HAYDN QUINTETTE ASSEMBLY BUILDINGS — HAYDN QUINTEFTE —
This ammeur association will sing, at their concert to morrow (Wednesday) evening, several new songs never before produced in this city; also, some of the choicest elections of the day. They have frequently sung for the amusement of the insane (arough the kind permission of Dr. Butler) at the Asylum, thus helping to soothe their sad affliction. The lovers of good music should not fail to be present on this occasion.

ACADEMY OF AUSIC - This evening The Seasons, with Miss Richings, Mr. Simpson, and Mr. Thomas. The pland Handel and Haydn chorus, and the fine orchestra will fill the house. Besides, it is long since we have heard Miss Richings, and she is always welcome to a Pailade phia public.

ABBEMBLY BUILDINGS.—The Carolina Twins, with the mysterious union that binds them, and their sweet songs, will appear on the 17th that. They are the most curious and melaucholy spectacle we have had for a long time.

Artillery, April 7. The Patriotism of Philadelphia in Pennies. We have already adverted to the contemplated reception of the State flags on the 4th of July, in the city of Philadelphia. The ceremonies of receiving these glorious emblems of the patriotism and valor of our fellow-citizens who per-illed their lives in the national defense, it is anticipated, with be one of the most imposing ever beneld in any city of the Union; but if we are to judge from the spirit of contracted parsimony already exhibited by the Councils of Philadelphia, the municipal authorities thereof will not be entitled to much credit therefor. When the civilian committee was appointed on the part of Philadelphia, to co-operate with a military committee on the part of the State at large, Councils specially provided that the cost of the contemplated ceremonies should not exceed one thousand dollars! It is expected that at least one hundred thusand people will be the contemplate of t visit Philadelphia to be present at this recep tion, and that it will cost each visitor at least five dollars while sojourning there, making a total of half a million of dollars carried to that city, for which the Councils offer the beggarly inducement of a thousand dollars! Almost any borough in the State would have done better. It is began't and contemptible, entirely unworthy a great city.—Harrisburg Telegraph.

EVER LOYAL, EVER TRUE. -The Mobile (Ala.) Tribune refers editorially to the subjoined card, which is published in its advertising columns, as coming from one "noted as a skilful officer and for indomitable perseverance and pluck:"—

To the Public,—The undersigned has been pained by the circulation of slanders concerning her loyalty to the late Confederacy. She takes this means of pronouncing them all false and without shadow of foundation. Those who desire a refutation of them can see her at the Bat-tle House, and those who persist in circulating them will do so at their personal peril.
