Second Trial of Dr. Andrews' Flying-ship—A Partial Success, but the Mecua-mism Still Imperfect—No Intelligence Yet from the Voyagers.

Dr. Solomon Andrews, the inventor of the Flying Ship, made a second trial of his apparatus, from his yard corner of Greene and Houston treets, in this city, yesterday. Mr. C. W. Plumb, Secretary of the Aerial Navigation Company, only, accompanied him. The partial ailure of his former trip Dr. Andrews attributed o the imperfect action of the rudder of his craft, which proved to be insufficient to keep her in the proper direction. Since then he has con-structed one of a different form, which it was hoped would prove more efficient.

The ascent was made about 5 o'clock P. M. The wind on the surface of the earth was then blowing briskly from the North. Although no public notice of the proposed attempt had been given, a suspicion seemed to have crept abroad that such an attempt would be made, and at the hour of starting a large number of persons had collected in the streets and on the neighboring roofs. In starting, the balloon at first rose almost perpendicularly until above the surhouses, and then drifted with the wind about 150 yards, when Dr. Andrews endeavored to bring her into the wind. In doing this the rudder ropes appeared to become jammed, and the rudder remained fixed on one side, causing the balleon to move round and round in a circle for several minutes, still drifting with the wind and rising at the same time. At last the navigators appeared to obtain a partial control over their machine, for they commenced to move in various directions and soon passed back again towards the North, going over almost precisely the same spot which they had just before crossed towards the South.

That the balloon was not drifting with different currents of air was amply proved by the fact that the streamer attached to the car, in-stead of hanging down as in the case of an ordinary balloon, stood out from it in different directions, as if blown by a strong wind. Sometimes this streamer pointed towards the head of the balloon, sometimes astern, and again towards either side, showing that the balloon was moving in a different direction from the air which surrounded it. The sand ballast, too, which the voyagers threw out, instead of dropping direct, could be seen blowing away from the car.

It seemed clearly demonstrated that the balloon possessed motive power of its own, but it was at the same time apparent that the proper mechanism for using that power to its effect has not yet been obtained. These faults of construction are, after all, not more than could fairly have been expected in any new machine, and if an effective motive power has really been obtained, there can be no insurmountable obstacle to making it entirely effec-

A Sad Calamity-Capsizing of a Small Boat-Loss of Five Lives.

On Saturday afternoon last a small boat, called the Bravo, set sail for St. Augustine bound up the North river on a pleasure trip, with ten persons on board-men, women, and children. The boat had not proceeded further than five miles when she got ashore on one of the shoals, and upon an attempt being made to get her off she was unfortunately capsized, and her occupants precipitated into the water, where they were le't struggling for their lives. Under these circumstances, a Mr. Bravo exhibited a heroism which was the result of saving the lives of two individuals, and in an effort to rescue his sister he was drowned with her.

A young man named Lampheus succeeded after great risk and exertion, in saving Mrs Bravo and two other persons, whom he dragged upon a shoal. He immediately started for assistance, and after a walk of two miles obtained the aid of several men, who returned with him to the scene of the disaster, and brought ashore the four persons who had been saved. Among the lost were a little daughter of Mr. Bravo, and two children of Mr. Mickler.

We regret to state that Mrs. Bravo was rescued an exhausted condition, that up to Sun day night last slight hopes were entertained of her recovery.—Savannah Republican, June 1.

Appual Communication of the Grand Lodge of Freemasons of New York. The Grand Lodge of the State of New York commenced its annual communication vester day afternoon, at Irving Hall, M. W. G. M. Holmes presiding. After the customary cere-monies, the M. W. Grand Master delivered an address, in which he dwelt upon the interior workings of the actions of its members during the recent war, and the changes which had taken place during the year. In the course of his remarks, the speaker said:-Some months ago I received a letter from a friend, in which it was stated that an original Masonic letter, written in 1782, by our illustrious Brother George Washington, and a lock of his hair, were in the possession of a lady who resided in this State. I subsequently went to the residence of General Ward, at Sing Sing. where I saw these very interesting relics. Two brethren from the Great East of Nantes had written a very flattering letter to Washington, and presented to him a highly ornamented such and Masonic apron. Washington replied from his headquarters at Newburg, as follows:-

"STATE OF NEW) ORK, August 10, 1783 -Gentlemen:—The Masonic ornaments which accompanied your brotherly address on the 23d of January last, though elegant in themselves, were rendered more valuable by the flattering sentiments and affection-ate manner in which they were presented. If my en-deavors to avert the evil with which the country was threatened by a deliberate plan or tyranny, should be crowned with the success that is wished, the praise is due to the Grand Architect of the Universe, who did not see fit to suffer the superstructure of juswho did not see it to suffer the superstructure of justice to be subjected to the ambition of the princes of this world, or to the rod of oppression of any power upon earth. For your affectionate yows permit me to be grateful, and offer mine for true brothers in all parts of the world, and to assure you of the sincerity with which I am,

"Yours, "Geo, Washington."

"Yours, "GEO. WASHINGTO: "Messrs. Watson and Cassoul, East of Nantes." The apron referred to is now at Alexandria. a., in possession of Washington Lodge, Fo. A Jewish Divorce.

Tribune.

The New Haven Journal and Courier has the following:"Yesterday a divorce, according to the practice in the Hebrew Church, took place at the residence of the Rev. J. Gabriel. At the present term of the Superior Court a divorce was obtained by Louis Rothschild from Esther Rothschild. One of the parties desired that a divorce should also be granted after the manner of the Hebrew custom. Yesterday it was ac complished. As it is somewhat interesting to know what the ceremony consisted of, we give it. It was as follows:—The wife, dressed in black, with a black veil over her face, appeared with her husband before a council of ten men, members of the Synagogue. There were also present three rabbis, one of whom acted as the titioner, and wrote out on parchment a petition in Hebrew asking for a divorce, and also wrote out the decree of divorce; the second acted a the respondent or defendant, and the third as a kind of judge; the council of ten acting as a lury. The man and wife having appeared, they spod side by side before the council. The rabbis and council then took an oath, all shaking hands—the oath 'eing to the effect that they would always consider the divorce legal and binding. The wife then removed her vell, and binding. The wife then removed her the peti-the rabbi who acted as petitioner read the peti-tion in German, and stated the case to the coun-tion in German, and stated the case to the divorce. cil, who, having heard it, decreed the divorce. The decree, folded up, was handed to the husband, and the wife raising her open hands, the nusband dropped the paper into them. The rabbi who acted as judge then took it and cut the ends like a fringe. He then handed it to the pr sident of the synagorue, telling him to place it among the records of the society, to be preserved as evidence of the divorce. This having en done, the ceremony was finished, and the parties departed, no longer man and wife,"

Professor Agassiz and the Emperor of Brazil.

A correspondent of the Boston Advertises writes:-

"Very agreeable letters, dated May 3 and 4, were received in this city to-day (Saturday) from Professor Agassiz. They were written at Rio de Janeiro, where he had arrived a few days earlier from his eminently successful expedition up the Amazon, and while he was making his arrangements to return home.

"The kindness of the Emperor of Brazil, who is a man of no common culture, had followed him wherever he had gone, and had facilitated in the most generous and effective manner all the scientific purposes and plans which Mr. Thayer's munificence had enabled Professor Agassiz to avrange and undertake a year ago. Emperor even had borne in mind the favored naturalist, when they were separated by a thousand miles of Brazilian territory, and at a period of spxiety, too, when his Majesty was at the head of his army on the Rio Grande de Sol, carrying on the war against Paraguay. For, while he was in the distant province of that he made a large and beautiful collection of its fishes, which, after showing them to Pro-fessor Agassiz, at Rio, he the next day presented with a graceful autograph which the following extract is translated:-

"The fishes are to be sent to you. It you may entirely belong, for it was with this thought that I collected them. It is a slight homage that I pay to science; but I see that it was or some value to your eyes, and I shall be happy if I thus place myself partly in relation with the labors by which you will make better known the rich nature of my country.

"Dow PEDRO II."

"An imperial collection thus made will, we suppose, hardly be found to grace any other museum in the world-certainly no similar col lection made with equal intelligence and ear-pestness. The Emperor, it is plain, put his heart into it.'

A FANATIC.—An adventurer named Leonidas Bulgaria has just caused some excitement in Athens and other parts of Greece. Carried away as it would seem, by a false sentiment of patriotism, and after long laboring in secret for the triumph of what is there called the great idea, he thought the hour come for the Christian population of Turkey to take up arms, recover their independence, his mission being to rouse them. Having succeeded in persuading about forty men to join him, he sailed with them, a fortnight since, for the coasts of Turkey. Several others, following his example, have taken their departure for the Dardanedes, Smyrna, and other towns of the Ottoman empire, and in consequence some disturbances are FIGHTING IN A GOOD CAUSE.-In Fifth street, above Pium, in a celiar, an honest citizen conducts the business of selling vegetables, lemons, and oranges. Last evening, as he was removing his show goods from the pavement to the security of the ceffar, a suspicious-looking individual poxed himself through the doorway, and, little by little, edged himself nearer to the proprietor. In answer to waat he wanted, he inquired if the storekeeper had much money. Glaucing as the burly, broad-shouldered questioner, the other cautiously answered he navery little. Thereupon, taking a step nearer, the stranger demanded that little portion, and, for an answer, got a stunning blow on the temple, that answer, got a stunning blow on the temple, that sent him reeding upon a pile of potatoes in the corner. Stimulated by this first success, the energetic storekeeper, big in spirit, though little in body, determined to keep the upper hand, and showered upon his opponent a multitude of blows that he could not resist. The result was that the stranger thought discretion the better part of valor, and withdre v, muttering dire threats of ven-geance. Little heeding the impotent in naces, the strong-hearted merchant glanced proudly around upon the field of carnage, evident in the potatoes wet with the blood that had so copiously flowed from the noise of his opponent, and then leisurely ias ened the holts of his vegetable bayaar. the bolts of his vegetable bazaar.

There is a perfect understanding between Sir Frederick Bruce and the Executive officers of our Government in relation to the Fenian movement on Canada, Sir Frederick is perfectly satisfied with what the Government has done and is doing, and does not he itate to say that if it had not been for the prompt and efficient measures taken by the twovernment in the seizure of arms, etc., the task of repressing the recent invasion of Canada might have been attended with far more serious consequences The Government is determined that all who par ticipated in the late demonstration on Cavada shall be brought to condign punishment, and orders have been issued for the safe keeping of all who have been taken prisoners.

The Memphis Investigation. A gentleman with the Congressional Investigation Committee at Memphis writes the following :- 'They have brought to light nearly two hundred distinct crimes perpetrated within those three days, many of them by police and other city authorities, embracing murder, rapes, arson, burglaries, highway robberies, maiming, &c. The offenders walk the streets in open day, and no man has been arrested. No steps have been taken by the civil authorities to bring criminals to justice. TRIAL OF JEFF. DAVIS.

here in the course of two weeks."

Proceedings in Richmond To-day. RICHMOND, June 6 .- There was quite a large attendance of spectators in the court room this morning, including all the members of the Rich. mond bar.

Messrs. Reed, Brady, and Brown, the counsel for Mr. Davis, entered the room at about 10 o'clock, and awaited the opening of the Court. At about a quarter to 11 o'clock Judge Underwood took his seat, and the Court was opened by the crier.

After the lapse of several minutes Judge Underwood, addressing the Assistant District Attorney, said, "Mr. Hennessy, we are ready to hear from you whenever it suits your convenience." Mr. Hennessey arose, and the counsel, lawyers, and spectators present all rose, and pressed forward to hear his respon.e. He said :-May it please your Honor, as the answer of the Government to the que tions propounded by Mr. Reed on yesterday are considered of some importance, I have written them out, and propose to read them to the Court, May it please your Honor, yesterday Mr. W. B. Reed, one of the counsel for Jefferson Davis, propounded certain question to the Court and to me, high in the absence of Mr. Chandler, I at that time declined to answer. Mr. Chandler is still absent, being, I regret to say, entirely prostrated by a recent severe domestic calamity; and, as I promised, I to-day proceed to reply to the questions of the learned gentleman. That gentleman correctly says that an indictment has been found in this Court against his client, Mr. Davis, and asks:-"Is it to be tried? Is it to be dropped-or is it to be suspended?" So far as I am instructed, I believe it is to be tried; but it will not be possible to do so at present, for a variety of reasons-some of which I proceed to give.

In the first place, Mr. Davis, although indicted in this court for high treason, is not now, and never has been in the custody of this Court, but is held by the United States Government as a State prisoner at Fortress Monroe, under an order of the President signed by the Secretary of Wer. In the second place, even if the prisoner were in the custody of this Court, it would not be but this I assure the gentlemen who represent him here, that the hour Mr. Davis comes into the custody of this Court, they shall have full and prompt notice when it is intended to try him; and so far as the District Attorney and his associates are concerned, they may be assured that their case will have a just and speedy trial without further barrier, let or hindrance,

This I say for the special department of the Court which I represent. But what the intentions of the Government are with regard to the disposition of Mr. Davis, I am not further instructed than I have said.

I now move, may it please your Honor, that this Court, as soon as the business before it is disposed of, adjourn until the first Tuesday in October next. By that time, I trust, the heat of the summer will have passed away. The weather will be cool and pleasant, and, should we have the pleasure of seeing these gentlemen here again, they will be more fitted for the arduous labors which their profession constantly imposes upon them.

In the meantime the crystallization process referred to by the learned gentleman yesterday made it possible for the Attorney-General, in view of his numerous and pressing engagements at the close of the session, to come here now, and try this case, which as a case of great national importance he would be expected to do

In the third place, if Mr. Davis is in the delicate state of health suggested by Mr. Reed, it would be nothing less than cruel at this hot and unhealthy season to expose him to the nuavoidable fatigues of a protracted trial, which appears to be an inevitable result of the array of counsel present; and prospective engaged for his detense.

Neither this Court nor any of its officers has any present control over the person of Mr. Davis, and until they have, it becomes impossible for the District Attorney to say when he will be tried. Mr. James T. Brady, of New York, then addressed the Court.

At the Fenian meeting last night, Fitzgerald, s Fenian Senator, spoke of the late movement against Fort Erie, and said it was made by order or General Sweeney. It was intended to draw the main body of the British forces from their strongholds, and it succeeded far better than was expected.

A Murderer Twenty-eight Days Under

Ground. About three weeks age we published a letter from Brownsville, announcing the escape of one Rodgers, who had killed an Assistant Surgeon of his regiment. The gallows was erected and all preparations made, the prisoner received religious consolation, and expressed his readiness to die; but during the night preceding the day set for execution, managed to effect a mysterious disappearance. It was positively asserted that he had joined the contra-guerillas in Matamoros, and was flourishing in grand style about the streets of that town; but the sequel, as given in the subjoined letter of our correspondent, proves that this statement was a mis-

Brownsville. Texas, May 25.—Astounding as it may seem, it is nevertheless true, that William Rodgers, of the 77th Chio Veteran Volunteers, sentenced to be hung, escaped, seen and recognized, drunk with men of his own company in Matameras, etc., etc., was captured last night a most within the prison limits, above ground. He never had passed those limits. Last evening the town was in a perfect ferment, when it became known that a convict had lived for twenty-eight days in a subterranean abode, dug out by his own hands, within easy hearing distance of guards, sentinels, etc. The capture demonstrates the unreliability of rumors, or even some positive assertions, for it has been positively asserted, by those who protessed to know, that Rodgers had joined the contra-gaerillas in Mstamoras.—N.
