OBITUARY.

Hon. Lewis Cass. General Lewis Cass died at his residence in Detroit, yesterday morning. This noted states-man was born at Exeter, N. H., October 9, 1792. The family emigrated to the West when Lewis was seventeen years of age. He accompanie his parents as far as Marietta, where he re-mained and commenced the study of law. In 1802 he was admitted to the bar, and settled at Zanesville, and by patient endeavor acquired a practice. His first success in the political arena he schieved in 1806, as a member of the Onio Legislature. He at once gained distinction in his endeavors to counteract the nefarious schemes of Asron Burr. For this service he was complimented by President Jefferson, and had also conferred upon him the office of United States Marshal for Ohio. The war of 1812 caused the young legislator to lay aside his books and papers, and assume the sword. He was chosen colonel of the 3d Onio Regiment. At the head of this regiment Cass first entered Michigan with the avmy of General Hull. The troops were marched into Canada. The proclamation issued on that occasion was penned by Colonel Cass, and for him, too, is claimed the honor of being the first man who, in the war of 1812, stepped in arms upon British soil. But misfortunes soon befel the command or Hull, and on the 16th of August, 1812, the campaign was ingloriously ended by a surrender to the enemy. Colonel Cass was exchanged in Janury, 1813, and com-missioned a Colone; in the regular army, and in the month of March following he was promoted to the rank of Brigadier-General. He joined the army of General Harrison in July, took an active share in the pursuit of Proctor, and shared in the victory of the Thames. He was next placed in command of Detroit, and soon after appointed Governor of Michigan. He then settled at Detroit, and laid the foundation of his large private fortune by the purchase of large tracts of land, then in an unimproved con-dition. Michigan, at this period, had no Terri-torial Legislature, and the business of selecting laws for its government devolved on Governor Cass and the Territorial Judges. He was like-wise ex-officio Superintendent of Indian Affairs, and this for several years remained the most important part of his duties. In 1817 he obtained, in conjunction with Governor McArthur, a cession of most of the remaining Indian lands within the State of Ohio, with adjoining tracts in Indiana and Michigan, to the extent o 4,000,000 of acres. This cession removed the Indian barrier which had intervened between the settlements of Ohio and Michigan.

In 1820, he set on foot and bore a conspicuous part in an exploring expedition to the northern shore of Lake Superior and the Upper Missis-sippi. In 1825, in conjunction with Governor Clark, of Mussissippi, he attended a grand council at Practic du Chien, of the tribes of the Northwest, and endeavored to conciliate the Indians then engaged in fierce wars among themselves. In 1828 he made two treaties, by which many millions of acres were ceded to the which many millions of acres were ceded to the United States. He resigned the office of Governor in 1831, having concluded nineteen treaties with the Indians, by which had been acquired territory equal to one-fourth the area of Ohio, Irdiana, litinois, Michigan, and Wisconsin. In 1831 President Jackson appointed the ex-Governor of Michigan his Secretary of War, In 1836 Secretary Cass laid down the war portfolio and became the Minister to the Court of France. During his residence abroad made an extended tour, visiting Nile and Jerusalem. The most remarkable in-cident of his diplomatic career was his attock on the quintuple treaty for the suppression of the slave trade. In 1845 he entered the National Councils as Senator from Michigan, and soon made himself famous by the stand he took on the Oregon boundary question, insisting upon the then popular claim of 54 degrees 40 minutes, or fight. In 1848 he was nominated by the Democratic party as their candidate for the Presidency; he was defeated for that office by General Taylor. On his nomination, General Cass resigned his seat in the Senate, but was re-elected in 1849 to serve the two years yet remaining of his original term. He was again elected for a term of six years in 1851. In March, 1857, he was appointed Secretary of State by President Buchanan—the last public office held by the distinguished deceased. In the secession troubles of 1861, during the vacitlating policy of Mr. Buchanan, Secretary Cass resigned, and entered on the retirement be had well earned. Younger men took his place, and for the past five years the venerable statesman has been residing in peace, on his ample estates in Michigan A biographer of Cass remarks that his most characteristic trait "was an aversion to everything that savored of British." He cer-tainly did much to build up the glorious repubwith which his name and fame will be forever honorably associated.

Colonel William Winston Seaton.

Colonel W. W. Seaton, for a long term of years known in the firm of Gales & Scaton, as one of the editors and publishers of the National Intel-ligencer, of Washington, died in Washington on the 16th of cancer. He was about eighty-one years of age, and had been afflicted with the disease to which he succumbed for a few months only. Cotonel Seaton was born in King William county. Va., in June, 1785, from a lather who belonged lineally to the Scotch Seatons commemorated by Scott, and who was exiled to Virginia in 1600. His mother was a cousin of Patrick Henry. He was himself educated by the Earl of Finlater. In 1803 he was an assistant editor of a Richmond paper, and an earnest politician. He was connected with journals in Halitax and Raleigh, North Carolina. While attached to the Raleigh Register he married a daughter of Colonel Gaies, and in 1812 tounded the National Intelligencer at Washington, with his brother-in-law. In 1860 Mr. Seaton took the entire charge of this important publication, and retained it until a late day. Mr. Seaton was chosen Mayor of Washington from 1840 to 1852, without interruption. The reputation which Colonel Seaton leaves behind him, like that of Mr. Gales, is highly flattering. He was a more solid than brilliant man, and had an excellent judgment. He possessed a very large acquaintance among the leading men of all parties, and was personally respected by all. He was a gentleman of the old school, and his position in municipal and local affairs will cause his demise to be seriously left over the whole country.

Hon. James Humphrey.

Hon. James Humphrey, M. C. from Brooklyn, N. Y., died in the latter city on Friday night. He represented the Third Congressional District of New York, and recently returned from Washington on private business. He has been sick for some time, though not seriously or danger-ously unweil. He was taken sick while going from New York to Washington, and was com-pelled to stop at Wilmington. He left there for home, where he was attended by many friends, and his illness was not considered dangerous. He grew weaker gradually until his death. Mr. Humphrey was born in Fairfield, Connecticut, in 1811, and was the son of Rev. Herman Humphrey, President of Amherst Col-lege before President Hitchcock. In 1839 he was a citizen of Brooklyn and a member of the bar. He was an Alderman in 1848-9. In 1858 he ran for Congress, and was elected by a plu-rality over his Democratic competitor. He was rality over his Democratic competitor. He was deteated by Mr. Odell in 1862, In 1864 he was elected again, and was considered an admirable and hard-working representative. He was a member of Rev. Dr. Storr's Church—Church of the Pilgrims-in Brooklyn.

Joe Jefferson is coming to this country in August, and will play here in September. A letter from the comedian to Mr. John T. Ford, of Baltimore, states that "his constant exertions, whilst achieving London triumphs, has had an effect upon his health, and it is by the imperative order of his physician that he seeks rest and recuperation in a sea voyage." For the past ten months, Jefferson has been acting at the Adelphi Theatre, with such success as has been achieved before by no American comic actor. He not only gained an immense popularity, but has also won the unqualified approbation of every English critic.
