Almost a Riot.—The neighborhood of Front and Reed streets was last evening the scene of a diagraceful disturbance, which was almost riotous in its proportions. There has been a feud of long standing between the residents of the district who are of opposite nationalities and creeds, and every how and then this breaks out afreen. On Monday the difficulty was commenced by certain parties who were proceeding down the river on an excursion. In what particular manner or at what precise hour the trouble began last evening, it has not been possible to ascertain up to the time of our going to press, as no arrests have as yet been made. But about half-past 7 or 8 o'clock it is certain that there was collected on the corner of Front and Reed a large crowd of men, who were decidedly belignerent in disposition. There was unfortunately a pile of bricks a few doors from the corner, and from this source came the majority of the weapons used. Bottles, black-jacks, and knives were also in plentiful demand. The result was a considerable flow of blood, the principal sufferer being Thomas Reilly, living at No. 29 Reed street.

He was first struck in the face, and as he stepped

He was first struck in the face, and as he stepped backward caught by the heels and dragged into the street. At least so his own story runs. He certainly received the worst of it, one side of his face being pounded almost to a lelly.

In the effort to save her husband's life, Mrs. Reilly claims to have received a blow on the arm with a block least.

Thomas E. O'Riley, a young man living at No. 1821 South Front street, was also badly beaten about the head and face.
This Pappened near the corner of Second and Reed, a id after the conflict at the next corner had subsided. Joseph Kaires, living at No. 1822 () seep subsided, Joseph Kaires, aving at No. loss Osego street, was also pounded about the heas and breast, as he was returning to his home with horse and cart. Both he and O'Riev claim to have had no connection whatever with the earlier part of the disturbance.

It is impossible to ascertain whether any other in-juries were inflicted at this time, but it is quite blely, as some one ran into the crimking saleon of J. F. Gallagher on the northwest corner of Front and Reed streets, and returned immediately with an old cutlass, which he brandished in a fashion that

A po icemsn appearing on the ground, the rioters dispersed, and comparative quiet reigned until about hall-past 10 or 11 o'clock when it was again disturbed by the shooting of guns and pistols.

The trees, windows, and walls in the neighborhood bear full winess of this. One pistol ball passed through the door of a public house kept by Robert Barns, on the corner of Olsego and Reed streets, lodging in the opposite wall. During this part of the contest at least two men were wounded.

One of them, whose name we could not ascertain, hat who is described as a delicate, genteel-looking young man, was carried into a drug store on Second street, below Reed, where a rifle bullet was extracted from his wrist.

Another young man, by the name of Andrew J. Hargesbeimer, a member of the Shiffler Hose Company, and living at No. 319 Carpenter street, was taken to another drug store, and had a rifle bullet extracted from his knee.

During the firing of the guns and pistols, a woman ran from the neighborhood to the station House of the Second District for help; but by the time the Fergeant and his men had reached the spot, quiet was restored, and the streets were empty. The absence of the police during the progress of the two separate conflicts is easily accounted for.

The beat of the officer on duty in the neighborhood extends from Whart in to Mifflin streets, and from the river to Second street, and if he is in need of assistance he must go to I wentieth and Fitzwater streets to procure it.

DISTRESSING CASE OF DROWNING AT GLOUGESTER POINT.—A very distressing occurrence took place yesterday afternoon at Gloucester Point, involving the death by drowing of a gentleman of high respectability, and a resident of this city, named William Hale Mercer, a son of Mr. Mercer, President of the Farmers' and Mechanics' Bank of Philadelphia.

Mr. Mercer, in company with an acquaintance named Price, a naval officer, proceeded to Gloucesnamed Frice, a naval officer, proceeded to Glodoes-ter for the purpose of escaping from the intense heat of the city. While there they resolved to take a bath, and proceeding to the hotel, Mr. Mercer left his watch, pocket-book, and other valuables in the hands of the landlord for safe keeping. Think-ing the weather was too warm for bathing, a post-ponement was determined on, and Mr. Mercer ap-plied for and rece wed the articles left at the hotel.

The two then proceeded sowards the Fish House, when a bath was again resolved en, and bo'n gentlemen deposited their clothes on the beach and entered the water. A schooner lay at anchor a short distance from the shore, and they attempted to swim out towards it, but before reaching it they became exhausted. The recondition was observed by the hands on the schooner, when a plank and other things were thrown them. Mr. Frice succeeded in sustaining hinself until rescued, but Mr. Mercer isiled in the attempt, and met with a watery grave. The deceased had a large number of friends in this city who will greatly regret his

It appears that one of the two fugitives stole a watch and chain from a lady at Race and Eighth streets and being detected, dropped the watch, and started on a run. His companion not de iring to lose the time-piece, picked it up, and started after his 'jal.' The cry of "stop thier" was raised, and they were pursued as stated above. One of the party was arrested in a tavern by Dist. ctive Levy, but the other managed to effect his escape over a back funce. The deceased are e, having a frightful gash above her eye, and walked a little beyond Sixth street, where she fell upon a cellar-door. In this position she was found by a policeman, who carried her to the Pedriy vania Hospital. She remained in the hospital until her death, which took place on the second day after she was wounded.

It is alleged by the Commonwealth that this wound given by the prisoner was the cause of death; that by this wound excessive external bleeding was caused, and internal bleeding also, the blood-settling on the brain, so as to form a heavy clogging there, this causing death.

One of the resident physicians of the Hospital, who assisted in the post mortem examination of the body, stated that upon removing the skin around the wound over the right eye, it was discovered that the instrument that caused the wound had struck the skull just above the eye, chipping off a small piece, and had passed over the orbit of the eye and entered the brain just at the angle of the eye. of the Treasury, in accordance with said acts and the tenor of said certificates, is prepared to redeem before maturity all Certificates of Indebtedness talling due after August 31, 1866, with accrued in. terested thereon, if presented for redemption on or

That this caused great bleeding on the brain and around the brain, which probably did a great deal in bringing on death; that, according to his judgment, death was caused by a sharp instrument penetrating the cavity of the skull, and the cavity and substance of the brain. He stated that the neight of deceased was about five feet eleven inches, and her weight a out one hundred and forty pounds; also, that in other respects deceased was periocity sound.

The Prisoners at the Dry Tortugas. William White, of Henrico county, Va., one of the prisoners at the Dry Tortugas, who was recently pardoned, has arrived at Memphis. He is quite a youth, and has been confined on the island about two years, under conviction of being a spy during the war. The Memphia Appeal says:—

Mr. White was, for a time, a room-mate of Dr. Mudd, who was sentenced to hard labor for life in the Dry Tortugas, for alleged aiding in Wilkes Booth's escape after the murder of Mr. Lincoln. The Doctor's health is rapidly failing, and Mr. White believes he will not live through the summer.
