VERDICT ON THE CAUSE OF THE "YEW-DALL" EXPLOSION. — The jury summoned by Coroner Taylor to investigate into the cause of the explosion of the steam boiler at the Yewdall in Hestonville, West Philadelphia, rendered the following verdict last evening:lst. Plan of boiler good, providing the same was made of good iron, and of proper thickness in proportion to size of said boiler. The iron of said boiler proves to be of good quality.

3d. On examination of thickness of the iron used in the construction of said boiler, the shells prove to be only scant quarter inch iron; to our opinion it should have been five-sixteenths in thickness; the beads and tube sheets prove to be only three-eighths of an inch in thickness, and should have been at least half an inch in thickness.

4. It appears from the evidence produced before your jury that this boiler had little or no attention paid to it, as regards cleaning or removing the scale deposit, except twice dur-ing the year, at which time it was merely opened and scraped out, and never while in operation was the blow-off cock used to free the boiler of mud or loose deposit.

5. The immediate cause of said explosion. from evidence produced, and observation by your jury, is as follows:—Said boiler had been overworked, and that with heavy pressure. On stopping the engine at 12 o'clock without drawing the are, the pressure in the botter was necessarily increased in this case with more than usual rapidity from the low stage of water. strength of the iron was much lessened for the same reason (overheating), and the explosion took place from these causes, or perhaps by the injection of water from the donkey-pump (turned on after the engine was stopped) on the overheated Iron.

From the evidence produced, the boiler was very hot-so much so, that many of the tubes were heated to a red heat; and this is clearly proven from the fact that the scale on the boiler was thoroughly charred, even so much so that it became perfectly black, as though burnt in a

7. In the estimation of your jury we cannot but censure the managers of said mill for heretofore employing incompetent hands to take charge of their engine and boiler, as was clearly proven in the evidence; that at different times they have employed different men entirely incompetent, as was proven on examination of one man, who admitted his incompetency before this jury, and stated that he had full charge from four to seven days at one time, during the absence of the regular engineer.

In conclusion, we hereby submit the following as our verdict:-This jury find that the said Robert Hamilton, Catharine Carney, and Annie Given came to their death by an explosion of a steam boiler at Yewdall's mills in Hestonville, on the 26th day of July, 1866—said explosion having been caused (as the tury are fully satis-fied from the evidence, as well as from a thorough examination) by gross carelessness in the management of said boiler by incompetent hands, by overheating, causing low water and high pressure of steam. ANOTHER TERRIBLE TRAGEDY - Ex-ALDERMAN J. T. HARMER SHOT DEAD IN A BAR-ROOM FIGHT.— Last evening ex-Alderman James '. Harmer, whose residence is in Fitth street. below Federal, was shot, and almost instantly killed, at Peck's tavern, corner of Passyunk road and Federal street. The shooting originated in a political brawl, and was done by Jacob Bastian, a resident of the lower section of the city. Harmer, it seems, drove in a back to Peck's tavern, in company with several others and Bastian. George P. Finney, and one or two others, were sitting in the bar-room. As soon as Harmer entered he began a discussion with Finney on politics, they belonging to different parties. The he was passed, and deceased threatened violence to Finney. While this dispute was going on the parties got outside, and Harmer, incensed at something said by Finney, struck him in the face and knocked him down, he falling over a chair in the footway. Bastian, who was the friend of Finney, ran to his assistnce, and he and Harmer h a quarrel. ex-Alderman ran Bastian into the bar-room, and then commenced to throw glasses at blan. Bastian then took retuge beaind the bar, and the attack was continued by Harmer.

The last thing thrown was a large dish, which the friends of Bastian say barely escaped his head. At this point Bastian picked up an old musket behind the eating bar, belonging to Mr. Peck, and raising it, told Harmer to keep back. Seeing that Harmer was about to throw something else, the musket was discharged. Harmer turned at that moment, and the load entered his left breast; he then staggered to the door and tell on the step, and died in a few minutes

As soon as Bastian saw that the load had taken effect, he left the house by the back door, and hurrying up to the Central Station, asked for the Chief of Police as soon as he reached it, and himself up to the officer in charge. then, though cautioned against saving anything to implicate himself, stated that he had shot Harmer, and narrated the occurrence substantially as given above. He stated that the shooting was entirely in self-defence; that he had every reason to believe, from the violent conduct of Harmer, that he would not stop short of taking Bastian is quite a small man, and Harmer above the ordinary size, weighing above two hundred pounds. Deceased was well known in the southern part of Philadelphia, where he had lived from childhood. He was on the police force under Mayor Vaux, and subsequently was elected Alderman of the Second Ward, which office he held for five years.

At the time of his death he kept a restaurant on Delaware avenue, near Dock street. He was married, and leaves a wife and five children. As soon as intell gence of the killing resched the Coroner, he proceeded to the scene, and made arrangements to hold an inquest on the body, which will take place to-day. Several of the persons who witnessed the occurrence, including George P. Finney, were held as witnesses, and will be examined before the Coroner's Bastian is a single man, and resides in Eighth street, below Wharton. The shooting created good deal of excitement in the lower part of the city, where the ex-Alderman had a large number of acquaintances.

IMPROVEMENTS WITHIN THE CITY LIMITS. -During the month of July there were issued out of the Building In-pectors' Office permits for the erection of 337 buildings, and for the alteration and extension of 130, making a total of 467. Of the structures to be erected 254 were for dwellings, 3 for churches; school houses, 5 factories, 8; stores, 13; shops, 16; wash-house stables, 19, and 1 each of the following named:boiler house, engine house, dve house, green house, brewery, and station house. The dwell ings were, 2 tour-story, 170 three-story, and 8: two-story. Last month the permits numbered two-story. Last month the permits numbered, for new buildings, 309, for alterations and additions, 223. There has been very little, if any, decrease in the price of building materials. as was anticipated early in the spring. The best pressed brick sell tor $25. The prices of last vear are kept up, and in some materials there has been a slight advance.

Notwithstanding eight hundred dwellings have been erected since the opening of spring, it is as difficult to obtain a dwelling-house now as at any time in the last twelve months.

It will be seen, by a comparison between the Building Inspectors' report of July, 1865, and that of last month, that there was a considera ble increase in the number of dwellings for which permits were taken out-112 in July, 1865, and 254 in the month just passed. Some of the dwellings now erected are rented before the cellars are dug, and generally before they

MEETING OF THE PHILADELPHIA SO-CIRTY FOR PROMOTING AGRICULTURE.—A stated meeting of this society was held yesterday, Colonel Craig Biddle, President, in the chair. The usual monthly reports of the Agricultural Department at Washington were presented and distributed; also samples of wheat from the same source. Mr. John McGowen exhibited a lot of early Goodrich potatoes, which were very large and fine. This led to a statement from several members, to the effect that the crop of late potatoes in the vicinity of Philadelphia would be very short, in consequence of the drought. The President appointed Mr. George Blight, Dr. C. R. King, and John McGowen delegates to the Farm School in Centre county, to participate in the annual election of officers which takes place next month.

DISINFECTING "LA MORGUE."-The Commissioner of City Property has received a notice from the Board of Health, requiring him to im-mediately disinfect the Dead House. Some months ago Councils passed an ordinance authorizing the erection of a new Dead House, but for some cause the work has never been com-menced. The old Dead House is in a bad con-dition, and the measures adopted by the Board of Health were necessary to prevent disease in he neighborhood.

CHILD RUN OVER .- About 11:45 o'clock vesterday morning Pauline Semweller, two was run over by a market-wagon at Julian and Callowhill streets, and so badly injured that she is not expected to recover. was removed to her home, No. 589 Callowhill street. Why will not parents take warning by the frequency of such accidents, and keep their children within bounds? It is more owing to a special Providence than the care of parents that score of such accidents do not occur every day.

SLIGHT FIRE.—A slight fire occurred yesterday afternoor, in the stable on Leopard street, below Girard avenue, caused by some setting fire to a lot of hay stored there. The damage was trifling. The stable was the property of Jonathan Holmes.
