

HOW VIRGINIANS TREAT FREEDMEN.

To the Editors of The Evening Telegraph.—SPOTTSYLVANIA COURT HOUSE, August 1. I enclose you a clipping taken from the Frederickburg News of date July 31, ultimo, the object being to give your readers some idea of the garbled statements made up of suit the vindictive prejudices of the people. I enclose you an authentic statement of the case.—This man Keen threw a quid of tobacco out of his shop window, hitting a colored man by the name of Madison, who was, with another colored man, guilty of walking along the street. The colored man, in an angry manner, told Keen not to throw his tobacco at him. Angry words were given by both parties, and the colored man passed up the street. Keen concealed a hammer in his coat-sleeve, came out of his shop, and rapidly followed Madison on some two hundred yards up the street, overtook him, and asked him what he had said to him. Madison told him that he did not want him to throw his tobacco upon him. Some words followed, whereupon Keen struck Madison upon the back part of the head, causing a wound from which the blood flowed, saturating his clothes. Madison applied to Mayor Slaughter for a warrant to have Keen arrested. The Mayor refused him; hence the arrest by General Taylor. Keen lately came to this place from Baltimore, is a Rebel, and like many renegades that have come from the North (an editor of a certain paper, for example), who, fool-like, suppose they must perform some act of cruelty towards the negroes, in order to convince the people that they are with them in their prejudices against the blacks—ready and willing to persecute the blacks, or do any other foolish act to ingratiate themselves into the good graces of the F. V. V's.

The editor of the News says that the bitter is bit. I wonder if he does not consider it a case of a bitter bit, when a certain editor obliterated himself—about the time of the breaking out of the late war—to cheer up, soothe, and digest every "Yankee" that would step his foot in Frederickburg. JUSTICE TO ALL. From the Frederickburg News of July 31. KEEN'S CASE.—We fear Keen has got the "military" in "a bad box"—even if they have got him in prison. Doubtless they would be glad to release him if they could do so gracefully. Our advice to them is to apologize to Mr. Keen, and let him go, for the sake of the peace of the city. Keen is a man who has been concerned in Keen's arrest who, with the same provocation, would not have hesitated to do the same to him, and punished the negro. With this consciousness, they must feel deliciously comfortable in meditating on his arrest and imprisonment. Now, if Keen had only been a Confederate (as they doubtless supposed), his arrest would have suited them exactly, and they would have "photographed" the atrocious Rebel, with uplifted hammer, murdering an unoffending freedman. This beautiful illustration for the Journal of Civilization, or some other equally laudable publication, would have been by Keen's being no Confederate. Alas! alas! Let Northern "preachers" beat three-year-old children to death for not saying their prayers, and let Boston boarding-house keepers starve nine small children, but if they come South and crack a negro's head (the hardest part of him), they are forth with arrested and imprisoned indefinitely.

How and when is Keen's imprisonment to terminate? No man is here with a particle of self-respect, or an atom of true appreciation of the dignity of his office and the sanctity of his oath, can now issue a warrant for his arrest. He has been substantially tried and discharged. The negro's complaint was heard, witnesses examined, and the decision went against the plaintiff. What more can any other magistrate do? For every day Keen is imprisoned he can claim heavy damages. General Grant's order did not require his arrest, and is no legal excuse. Altogether it is an interesting case of "the bitter bit." The military have "got an elephant," and no civil magistrate will help to get him out of their cage.

MATTERS OVER THE RIVER.

THE HEALTH OF CAMDEN.—The general health of Camden is usually good, but the recent advent of cholera among us has caused the necessity of an energetic work to be performed. Many places are so filthy, filled with garbage, dirt, and other disease-breeding deposits, that it is imperatively necessary the work of removal and purification should be at once commenced and prosecuted thoroughly to completion, and the streets, alleys, and lanes cleaned and purified. Purgers and other nuisances should be removed, so that the entrance of the disease may be mitigated in every possible manner. There are stagnant pools of water standing in many sections of the city which need siling up. The Board of Health and the Sanitary Committee should proceed at once to this work, for the simple sprinkling of chloride of lime, or other disinfectants in some places will do little good towards purifying the city, if these pestiferous places are left unremoved or are not abated. Now is the time to go earnestly to work.

TEMPERANCE LABORS.—The friends of temperance in Camden are unusually active in their labors. They have a large field before them, and a glass of beer is no legal excuse. New societies are being constantly formed, meetings held, and the provisions of the law against selling intoxicating liquors on the Sabbath strictly enforced. Many arrests of persons who have violated the law have been made, and the determination of the gentlemen engaged in the work to see that the indelicat trade in rum on the Sabbath shall be broken up.

FRIGHTENED.—The people residing in a small town called Casawa, near English's creek, Atlantic county, became unusually excited and alarmed in consequence of the sudden death of a Mrs. Rachel Babcock. The impression at once obtained that she died from the effects of cholera, and scarcely enough citizens could be procured to perform the necessary rites of sepulture.

CENTENARY MEETINGS.—The centenary meetings which are being held by the Methodists at various places and times in New Jersey, are of the most interesting character. At the one recently held in Absecon village, the sum of $450 was raised for local purposes, and the ceremonial exercises were highly interesting.

NEW PROJECT.—Parties in Egg Harbor City have obtained a steamboat to ply up and down the Mullica river, from that place to the several towns on the coast, and it will also occasionally run to Atlantic City. This enterprise, it is thought, will meet with all expected encouragement.

TOBACCO.—The cultivation of tobacco in Camden county is carried on to a considerable extent. The Messrs. Browning will realize about $9000 the present year from some twenty acres of ground. In Sweetwater, Tenn., there is a gigantic girl five years old, that weighs one hundred and thirty-five pounds. Her name is Alice Leroy Leath, and she is described as "blue-eyed, dark-haired, rosy-cheeked, quick-spoken, and of a beautiful countenance." She is the daughter of a Union soldier who was killed at Resaca.

CITY INTELLIGENCE.

[For Additional Local Items see Fifth Page.]

THE GREAT FIFTY THOUSAND DOLLAR FRAUD.—FURTHER INVESTIGATION BY OFFICE U. S. COMMISSIONER SERGEANT.—William Kingdool Cooper, the young man who recently obtained $50,000 from the First National Bank on a genuine Government draft was, under the endorsement, had a hearing before the Commissioner Sergeant on Saturday. Before the examination of witnesses was proceeded with, David Paul Brown, Esq., who represented the defendant, took occasion to complain of his client having been denied the benefit of counsel at a hearing which had taken place on the day of his arrest, and said that he understood it to be the practice of the Assistant District Attorney, Mr. Valentine, to deny to prisoners heard before United States Commissioners the right which they enjoyed under the Constitution of being represented by counsel. Mr. Valentine said in reply that he was not aware Mr. Brown had been engaged to represent the defendant, Cooper, or he would have delayed the hearing until he arrived. The gentleman had been entirely misinformed as to the practice of himself in such cases, as he was always careful to guard the interests of persons under accusation, and ever ready to accede to them all in their rights. The hearing in the case of Cooper was merely to give the Commissioner an idea as to the amount of bail to ask. He thought the Government had a right to have a prisoner committed without a hearing at all, if its interests demanded it.

Mr. Brown, dejected this, and said that if he were present when such a wrong was attempted, he would take care that it was not done. The Commissioner remarked that if he had known of the prisoner desiring counsel on the day of the first hearing, the case should not have gone on until he arrived. The hearing was then proceeded with. Morton McMichael, Jr., testified that he is Cashier of the First National Bank, and that on the 24th of July the defendant came to him in bank, and stated that he was Robert W. Allen, Assistant Paymaster United States Navy, and desired to open an account with the bank. After some conversation, being satisfied with his representations, it was agreed to receive a deposit from him in the sum of $50,000, and he was handed over to the receiving teller. On the cross-examination of Mr. McMichael, he said that the draft for $50,000 which defendant deposited in the bank was a genuine paper; he could not tell how the name got into the hands of Mr. Miller, receiving teller, testified that defendant was introduced on the 24th of July by Mr. McMichael, who said that the gentleman wished to open an account, and please to take it; he took the account, and defendant handed in a package of $2000 in notes and a United States Treasury Note for $3000, the Assistant Treasurer at Philadelphia for $50,000. (The drawer was here shown, and witness said it was the one he received.) The account was opened, a check-book was handed to defendant, and he left. The next day of the account was on the 26th; he was at the bank, and the money was paid to him, and he paid out, but could not say the amount.

H. M. Lutz, paying teller at the bank, testified to the defendant coming to the bank on the 25th, and presenting a check for $50,000, and remarked to him that the check was not endorsed, and he wrote the name of R. W. Allen on the back of it; witness recognized him as the man who had opened the account, and after satisfying himself that it was all right, proceeded to pay the check; witness remarked that the man drawing the whole deposit out, and he replied, he was not allowed to use the banks as depositories, and that he was going to place the funds in the Assistant Treasurer's hands.

Paymaster R. W. Allen testified that he is Acting Assistant Paymaster, U. S. N., stationed on the receiving ship New Hampshire, at Norfolk (draft shown); the endorsement is not mine; I have seen a forged requisition upon which the draft was made, dated July 12, 1866. N. B. Brown, Assistant Treasurer, testified that the draft was presented on the 26th of July; had no doubt of its genuineness; had been advised of its being issued, as is customary. This closed the case. A second charge was then preferred against defendant, the charge being the name of J. W. Fairfield, Paymaster United States Navy, as endorser of a draft for $10,000. This draft had been presented at Adams Express office, in Baltimore, to be forwarded to the Treasurer's office, and had been received upon the production of papers by defendant to show that he was the person he represented himself to be. Mr. Scott, the clerk in the express office, fully identified the defendant as the endorser of J. W. Fairfield. He was committed to answer the charge preferred against him.

The accused is quite a small man, and apparently not more than twenty-two or three years old. He was dressed in a coat and pants of a sumptuous material, and was elegantly decorated with navy buttons. During the hearing he paid very little attention to the testimony, and was most of the time in conversation with a gentleman in the dress of a naval officer. We have before the court a man who is a clerk in Mr. Horstmann's military trappings establishment. He afterwards obtained a situation as Purser in the navy, in which he acquired a knowledge of the manner of obtaining money on requisitions, to be used in the Treasurer's department. The boldness with which he operated, his depositing $2000 with a draft fraudulently obtained and having upon it a forged endorsement, and his visit to the bank two days afterwards, to draw out the whole amount of the deposit in cash, shows that he is bold enough for anything. He seems to have gone to Baltimore soon after he got possession of the funds, where in the month of June $10,000 had been obtained in a manner somewhat similar, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when he was before the court as a witness, and to have made arrangements for his marriage to a young lady with whom he had been acquainted several months. The marriage had taken place in Baltimore, and the wedding party was on its way to New York city, from which the happy couple were to start on a tour to Europe. A state-room had been engaged in one of the steamers, and the husband no doubt fancied he should spend a very delightful honeymoon abroad. His surprise and consternation may be imagined when