[For Additional Local Rems see Fifth Page,] EVENING SESSION OF THE CONVENTION

OF SOUTHERN LOYALISTS. - Unity about forty delegates were present. Mr. Brownlow stated that the Convention had now been in session for four days, and many of the delegates had left after the harmonious action of the Convention. He thereupon moved that the Convention adjourn sine die.

A delegate moved that the vote be taken by A delegate asked whether it was in order to adjourn sine die without a quorum.

A motion to lay Mr. Brownlow's motion on the table was made and negatived.

Mr. Warmouth, of Louisiana, said he supposed the object of the motion to adjourn sine die was to cut off the report of the Committee on the Non-reconstructed States, because the Border States men were afraid of impartial suffrage. He would say that the delegates from the nonreconstructed States would hear that report, and he was authorized to say that impartial sui-

Mr. Creswell suggested that as the Convention had performed the labors for which it assembled, it would be well to allow an adjournment sine die, so that the Border States men might return to their homes. If the delegates from the non-reconstructed States desired to adopt an address, they could meet to-morrow

The motion to adjourn sine die was rene wed and the previous question was called upon it.

Mr. Hamilton appealed to, the Convention not to press the motion to adjourn sine die object of the Convention was to present to the country the true condition of the unrecon-structed States. The Convention had already yielded too much to the Border States. It was well known that it was not originally intended for the Border States to participate in the Convention. (Appliause.) It was of more im-portance to the country to have the business of the Convention well done than to have one more or less of Congressmen elected belonging to a particular party. The Border State dele-gates were here by courtesy only. Mr. Creswell asked leave to make an explana-

Mr. Hamilton declined to yield the floor, and continued his remarks, appealing to the Convention not to force an adjournment. There was once a statesman from Maryland who would not be afraid to face an issue of this kind-Henry Winter Davis. (Great applause.) If the Maryland delegates in this Convention did not wish to continue in the Convention, let them go home, and he (Hamilton) would follow them and tell their constauents how they had be-

Mr. Fowler, of Tennessee, next spoke. He was one of the few who assisted in making the call for this Convention. He was not prepared to desert the true Union men of the South. He would stay with them to hear what they had to

Mr. Brownlow rose to withdraw his motion to and stown of the state of the state of the state of the would make an explanation. He had not made the motion at the request of the Maryland delegation or any other delegation. It had been said that he (Brownlow) was alraid of negro suffrage. He had never held a doubtful position on any question, and he had no hestation in he was for negro suffrage. He would rather be elected to office by loyal negroes than disloyal whites; he would rather associate with loyal negroes in private life than with white Rebels; he would rather be buried in a negro graveyard than a Rebel graveyard; and if he had to go to hell or heaven after death, he would rather go with negroes than with Rebels. He withdrew his motio, to adjourn sine die.

Mr. Willey wi hed to know if the Border States were to participate by vote in a discussion of the report on the non reconstructed States! (Cries of "No, no.") Well, then, he said, he hoped gentlemen would not feel offended if delegates from the Border States who nuclbusiness to call them home went home to night, and left the delegates from the non-reconstructed States to agree upon their report. The general business of the Convention was done. The general report and platform had been agreed upon, and there vas nothing further for Border State delegates

A delegate moved that the report of the Committee on non reconstructed States be recoved and printed, with the statement that it is the action of the non-reconstructed States alone.

Mr. Boreman, of West Virginia, said that it was understood in his State that no other issue than that between Congress and the President was to be made in the Convention. He felt that it this Convention adopted the dogme of negro suffrage, the Republican party was rone, and gone forever. (Cries of "No. no.") He knew the temper of his people. He hoped the Con-vention would adjourn, and that if the nonreconstructed states desired to have a Convention afterwards they could do so.

A delegate said it was not treating the dele gutes from non-reconstructed States fairly to make this proposition. If the Border States withdraw, what was done after they left could not be taken as a part of the proceedings of the

Mr. Sherwood, of Texas, was willing that the platform of the non-reconstructed States should drawn up, and signed only by those who wished to sign it.

A resolution was offered that the Committee on the Non-reconstructed States shall make their report, which shall be printed for the in-formation of the country, but that action in the Convention on that report shall be confined to the delegates from the non-reconstructed States. The above was adopted, and the Convention adjourned till ten o'clock this morning.

MASS MEETINGS LAST NIGHT. in Front of the Union League House, Broad Street.

SPEECH OF JUDGE HIESTAND, OF NEW ORLEANS. A large and enthusiastic meeting was held in front of the Union League House, on Broad street, above Wainut, last evening. Judge

Hiestand, of New Orleans, addressed the assemblage substantially as follows:-If there is anything in this life dear to a man. it is the devotion to a land he has lived in from his boyhood, and which he has scarce left even in his manhood, and the dearest experiences of his existence are bound up in it.

The example of the loyal Southern men is gratilying to us. I have resided in the city of New Orleans for upwards of thirty-seven years, and during the last seven years have never left but for a few days, and therefore speak of facts within my personal knowledge and as they really were. Almost the entire population of the entire South, during the war, were actively and sympathetically engaged in the Rebellion against the country, otherwise it had never assumed the gigantic character it did. You are familiar with the conclusion of that war, some cighteen months since, by an utter collapse. The rule, the general rule, of the Southern peo-ple was one of absolute and general hostility to the Government. Slavery was first abolished by the emancipation and then by the amendment to the Corstitution. The negroes who were once slaves are still there, and this is the real cause of the state of affairs now existing in the South. No extraordinary conditions need be enforced in the South. If, instead of conferring on the returned Rebel soldiers the highest offices of trust and emolument, and pardoning in advance these getters-up of the Rebellion (applause), he had conferred power on those loyal to the Government, it had been well for the true interests of the South. The returned Rebels went to Washington to offer to Johnson adherence to his policy to retain their power.

The people of the Southern States are determined to retain power, and increase it by getting into Congress sgain. In the eleven seceded States there is only a difference of six hundred thousand in favor of the white population. Dostie died not in vain (applause), for the principal of the states of the principal difference o ciple upon which he was massacred, like dragon's teeth, will spring up armed men through the South, ready to do battle for the principles which he advocated. It had the effect of bring-to render us incapable of neting justly on the great questions of the day. The great question which agitates the minds of the people is the principle, true as the Gospel, and eternal as the Deity, that the man who is bound in his person to peril his life in the delense of his Government has the right to join in the choice of those who shall govern him. (Applause.) And in that country where a different rule prevails, the true principles of republicanism have not been arrived at. (Applause.)

The question must be determined, and when preparing your ballots for the coming elections you must prepare your bullets for the coming risis. (Applause.)

SPEECH OF GOVERNOR FLETCHER, OF MISSOURI, Fellow-Citizens: - Missouri speaks to-night words of encouragement to the staunch patriots of the North and South. The South, since we have met in this city, have reconstructed themselves on the basis of loyalty. (Applause.) The great State of Missouri, with all its resources, belongs to loyal men-(applause) -won by them in lair fight. The loyal people passed laws to protect themselves. All we have done in our State we have done in pursuance of legal enact-ments; all we propose doing we will have legal power to do. (Applause.)

A number of fossils went down to Washington o represent that he was making a law to himself, and would prevent the Rebel conservatives from voting themselves into power. What has been done in Missouri has been done legally, and Johnson has no right to interfere in what has been done in that State. The Union men of Missouri have fought and bled in defense o that flag, and will not submit to having their laws interfered with. (Applause.) Johnson's speeches have but the effect of bringing out the ushwhackers and Rebels from the mountains the Democratic doctrine. The Legislature of Missouri has made such laws as will permit none but loyal men to vote. (Cheers.)

The old togies had said that he had said that Andrew Johnson had had a hand in the murder of the lamented and sainted Lincoln. (Applause) He had said that it Andrew Johnson had said if he were President he would grant such protection and such power to the Rebels it was a sufficient inducement for them to com-mit the assassination. (Applause.) That is what he did say, and no more. The immense gatherings in this friendly city that assemble night and day to greet the loyal representatives of the whole South, will carry hope and strength to the neart of the nation.

Mass Meeting at National Hall. A Republican meeting was held last evening at lational Hall, under the auspices of the Union

Governor Hamilton, of Texas, addressed the cetimir. He reterred to the action of the Conention now in session, and said that the dis-inct issue is put before the country; that the o-called policy of the President is an assump oon of power not warranted by the Constitu-ion; that the status or the people lately in re-ellion is within the control of Congress.

The President has never had a policy; what e calls a policy is merely a scheme to break p the great Republican party and to form a lew one, through which he may continue in ower. The speaker then reterred to the events of the past five years, and said that the United States had more than belligerent rights in the late war, and could deal with those engaged in the Rebellion as public enemies. He contended that the Southern States did secode from the United States by severing the political bonos which had existed; they paid no taxes, nor did they respect the authority of this Government or any of its officers. They resolved and respect that they proved that they are not the source of the support of the source of the support of the source of the sou resolved that they never would unite again with the Union, and would die in the last ditch before they consented to a treaty of peace. They did secode, but they were not beyond the con-trol of the Government of the United States. The so-called Confederate Government was com-posed of States in rebellion, and was recognized as a government de facto, and having belligerent power. All the formalities in the exchange of prisoners were adhered to the same as it it had been treating with a foreign The United States Government had as many rights, as a belligerent, as the Confederate Government, and it they had been successful, the States at the North would not have been permitted to send their representatives to Congress, unless upon the terms dictated by the South. The United States being the con-queror, how is it the United States shall not dictate the time and place when the Southern States shall be admitted? They are not in the Union, because by the Rebellion their governments were destroyed; and now how are they to be controlled except by laws dictated by their conquerors? (Applause.) The power rests with the Congress of the United States to blot our State lines and re-map the Southern States, if it is thought best for the proper settle ment of the question that now agitates the country. He contended that there never was a now among the people of the South The speaker then referred to Texas, and said there was a time within the past twelvementh when the army afforded some little protection to loval citizens, but under the present teach ings of the President there is no protection. He supposed that the people would have to bear this infliction, unless high Heaven should see fit to remove the cause of the evil; and it this should be done, he would bow with Christian greater hate of the Government than there is

In conclusion, he said that the people should ustain the Congress, and see to it that those who now represent the people of this State are again returned. He said it would not do for the people to say they are in favor of universal reedom and equal rights, and then deny a large class of citizens many of the rights to which they should be entitled. The slaves have been freed, but unless we give them equal rights and equal suffrage, our great duty had not been accomplished

Colonel Pope, of Missouri, followed in a speech, in which he referred to the condition of the country, and said that, in the language of Jefferson, "I tremble for my country when I reflect that God is just."

THE NATIONAL UNION CONVENTION .-The Convention met pursuant to adjournment of Monday last, and was called to order by the President at 3 o'clock vesterday.

Upon searching the house, the officers und several counterfeit plates, besides a large amount of counterfeit money and in plements used in the manufacture of it. One plate, for the making of "bues," as figures for aftering the denomination of genuine bills are called, was tound in one of the pri-oner's pockets.
