The Two Addresses.

WE published yesterday, side by side, the two great political manifestoes of the day. The one was the address of the National Republican Executive Committee; the other that of the Soldiers' Convention at Cleveland. The first was evidently from the pen of Horace Greeley; the second is attributed to General Thomas Ewing, Jr., of Kansas. We do not appeal to partisanship in order to draw a comparison between the two similar yet unlike productions; but would ask any careful reader, of ordinary literary taste and common sense, whether the Republican manifesto is not as far superior as Horace Greeley is when compared with General Ewing.

We frankly say that we have never read an address which so completely covers the ground intended, which is more in symetry, more powerful in solid force, more earnest from deliberatec onviction, than the Republican Executive appeal to the people of the country. When it has been read carefully through, it leaves an impression of completeness. There seems as though there was nothing omitted which should have been mentioned, and nothing mentioned which could have been with propriety omitted.

The World vainly endeavors to-day to discover a flaw in its logic. There is a wholesouled determination to do right, and a fixed conviction that right is being done, in every word, such as no one but an earnest believer in the truth of what he writet could express. It will go forth to the people a convincing argument to the wavering, and a support and cheering draught to those who are steadfast in the faith.

Of its counterpart, the Cleveland Address, we would speak with perfect fairness. It is a creditable document, and most plausibly conceived. So far as literary execution is concerned, it is by many degrees the interior of the Ward Address, but its chief fault does not lie in the absence of neatly worded periods. It lacks sincerity. It would require no special tamiliarity with its author to convince the reader that he was a proselyte. It is too long. It does not fairly meet the issue, and utterly and entirely ignores the great question, "Why should a Southern vote have twice as much influence as a Northern one ?" It exposes many vulnerable points, but we would call attention only to two glaring eriors. The great objection to the present proposed Constitutional amendment made by Ewing is that it comprises various sections utterly disconnected, and that it must all be voted for or be all opposed. There can be no division of the question. The report says: -"The manner in which these conditions, in the form of an amendment to the national Constititution, have been presented, not only to the people of the South, but to the nation, is without precedent. For the first time in the history Government propositions, without con nection have been united in one amendment, and the people have been denied the opportunity of free choice concerning each." We can see no difference between the alternative allowed to the States now and that presented to them when the twelve amendments were adopted, in the nature of a bill of rights, immediately after the ratification of the original instrument. Each State Legislature then had the privilege of giving its assent to such and such proposition, and of dividing the issue for itself. In fact, as late as 1865, If we are not mistaken, Mississippi gave but a partial consent to the Constitutional amendment in regard to slavery, and added a clause "that nothing shall be so construed" to imply assent to a certain deduction.

Desperate Efforts of the Democrats in the Third District.

THE canvass in the Third Congressional District is opening up vigorously, and the opponents of the present able and faithful incumbent, Hon. Leonard Myers, despairing of the contest on the legitimate vote, are already resorting to expedients as disgraceful as they are desperate. Colonization is being resorted to in some of the wards; men are promised places in the Navy Yard and elsewhere, if they will vote for Buckwalter; and threats have been made to remove the Commodore, who will not lend himself to such work, and is endeavoring to carry out Secretary Welles. order issued last year, forbidding such political interference.

A committee of Democrats waited on a prominent citizen of the district, a few days. since, and offered him the position of Postmaster if he would assist in deteating Myers. He spurned them from his presence.

Mr. Myers' district is one of the marked ones, upon which the Democrats are concentrating all their energies. The Unionists, however, are thoroughly aroused, and will send Mr. Myers back by a heavier majority than ever. Buckwalter is no more popular now than when he was beaten before. His record is a bad one, and he belongs to that class of politicians whom General Grant says no good Union man can support. He is too much of the Vailandigham order to be a fit representative of the loyal and patriotic people of the Third District.

"Hiester Clymer."

"HIESTER CLYMER, in one word, is the candi-date of the Union party in Pennsylvania, and his election will be as signal a victory for the Union as any won by Grant or Farragut."-Age,

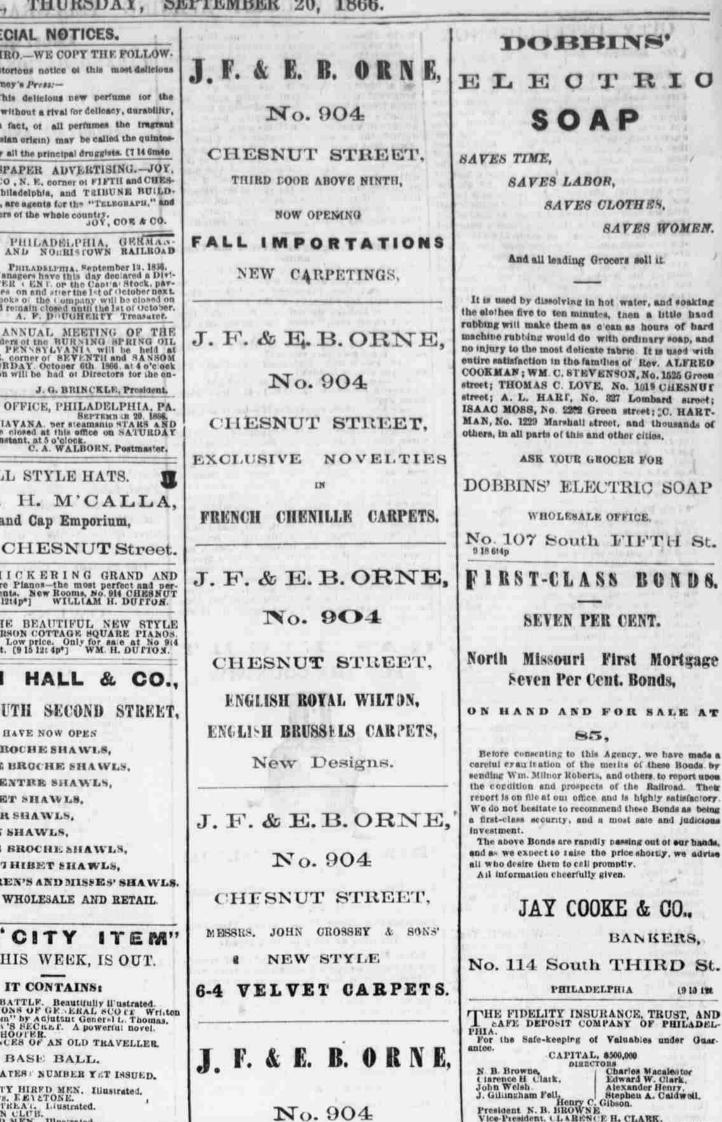

-Hiester Clymer is the candidate forced on the Democratic party by its leaders of the Vallandigham and Ben Wood stripe. He has no sentiment in common with the Union men of Pennsylvania, and never had. His record is that of a Kebel sympathizer, and he now adheres to it. He is detested by a large class of moderate Democrats, and General Grant says it is an "insult" to ask any Union sold er to vote for such a man. He will be the worst beaten man that ever ran for Governor in the State of Pennsylvania.

Democratic Abuse of General Grant. As we anticipated, General Grant has suddenly lost all popularity with the Democrats. The broadside he fired into their ranks the other day was a little too much for them to bear politically. But the soldiers, who vote as they tought, will give them a still more terrible fire at the polls in October and November. The Richmond Examiner gets off the following :-

"If a tyrant needed a tool, he would find him in Grant. Grant is a fool, but he is a vicious one, who is cunning for mischief. He is as vain as he is toolish, and as cruel as he is vain. 'His hopes and wishes' do not care a bawbee for the masses.' whether loyal or otherwise, All he knows of masses is of masses of soldiers that are to be hurled against each other for destruction. Heaven grant us some respite from Grant."

More than Five Thousand Gain in Maine. THE Union gain in Maine is more than five thousand votes over last year. Some of the Democratic journals are attempting to falsify the figures, to keep up the hopes and spirits of the rank and file of their party; but it is of no use. The Maine election has sounded the knell of Democratic hopes for the elections this year.

Not content with opposing the amendment themselves, these soldiers of the republic endeavor to incite opposition from the Rebels. In regard to the section disfranchising Rebel ex-United States officers, it atrociously says :---

"The Southern people, after following their political leaders into the late struggle, and sharing the risk of their late through four years of terrible war, are called upon to aid the proscription. Whatever punishment their leaders may deserve at the hands of the Government, it is unintelligible that statesmen should have dreamed of asking their associates and followdreamed of asking their associates and follow-ers to inflict that punishment upon them, espe-cially punishment of lasting disgrace, more terrible than any which the Government itself is authorized to impose. If in the midst of their errors the people of the South retain the ordi-nary fidelity of comrades in arms to each other the common semiment of becaute which the the common sentiment of honor which rules all companionship-they will not voluntarily desert the men whom they have voluntarily and steadily followed amid so many perils. They will not accept this."

If this is not inciting Rebel soldiers to stand by their leaders, who deceived them into a dreadful war by their sophistries, we do not read English correctly.

But one word more. The address states that while the amendment demanded by Mr.

Johnson was just, that proposed by Congress endangers the peace of the country. Who is to be the judge of the propriety of the two amendments? If not the people, who then? And to the people we have appealed, and will abide by their decision. In fact, the address is one which gives us satisfaction. We had feared a frank, manly, terse, soldier-like appeal; we have a verbose, fallacious, and weak call for aid. It will do us no harm, and the civic danger it will cause the Union party will about equal the martial terror with which its author inspired their late Bebel foes, now their political allies.

great Soldiers' Convention was held at Syracuse, New York, yesterday, at which resolucuse, New York, yesterday, at which resolu-tions supporting Congress were passed, and a large delegation, composed of General Bar-low and other distinguished officers and soldiers, was appointed to attend the Soldiers' Convention at Pittsburg.

WHAT IS THOUGHT OF HIM .- The Trenton State Gazette thus speaks of Hon. A. G. Cattell, the new Senator from New Jersev :-

"We do not exaggerate when we say that loyal men everywhere throughout the country will rejoice at this termination of a protracted controversy. Mr. Cattell is not only in every respect eminently qualified for the dignified posi-tion of Senator, but he has richly deserved the position by faithfui and long-continued services in the causeof freedom and human rights. Intellectually and morally he will confer distinguished credit upon the State. His voice and vote may at all times be depended upon to represent the sentiment and wishes of the loyal people, and New Jersey, during his term of service, will give no uncertain sound as to any of the great issues of the times. In the past, we have been compelled, not unfrequently, to hang our heads in shame that when other States pro nounced in lofty tones in favor of great and sublime measures of policy, we had no voice to declare our sympathy therewith. Henceforth this humiliation at least will be escaped, and our goodly State will rank side by side with the most advanced in the advocacy of every good principle,"
