SATURDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1866.

The One Thing Needful.

BE not distracted, men of the North, from the true issue now before you, by any of the side questions which the wilv Democrats seek to involve in the contest. Let the great cause for decision be stripped of all its superfluities. Let it be kept constantly in sight, and it must compel you to stand steadfast. The question to be settled is not negro suffrage; it is not equality of the races; it is not an opposition to the President for the sake of opposition. It is whether disloyal men shall be permitted to make laws for our country without giving sufficient guarantees of their future good behavior. The issue is not in regard to our right to exact guarantees, for both the President and Congress agree on that. There can be no discussion over that right.

The President distinctly stated that the South must ratify the amendment by abolishing slavery ere they could be recognized by him. In so doing he did right. But we want something more than that. We want additional guarantees. The Congress of the United States, which certainly has as much right to propose conditions as the Chief Executive, demands that another amendment be adopted. The issue is on the adoption. Those in favor of the amendment will vote with us; those opposed to it will vote with our foes.

The speakers of both parties have kept all the provisions of this mildest of conditions continually before the people. They have explained them tully. It would be insulting the intelligence of our readers to go over the ground again. Every man with proper selfrespect must favor the amendment. It is simply a declaration of that equality of protection of every man who has property to hold it, and for all to acquire it if they can. It is a pledge that the national debt shall be paid; and a provision that perjured traitors shall not hold office, unless they be specially pardoned. These are its simple sections. They are only just. They are mild, and no fault can be found with them.

When the Democrats state that the issue is negro suffrage, they wilfully state what they know to be false. We believe that the question of suffrage rests with each State. We believe that they have the sole power. We merely say that if the negro is to be counted in the apportionment he must vote. If he is not counted, he need never have the right until doomsday. This is the issue, the sole and only issue, and one which the opposition are seeking by all the means in their power to disguise. Keep it before the people. Loyalty is the test of readmission to Congress. It, and only it, is the one thing needful.

lant canvass. Able speakers are addressing immense audiences throughout the entire State, and the interest of the people in the questions of the hour is deep and intelligent. The popular interest in the discussion of political questions is a marked feature of the campaign this fall in all the States. We ascribe it to the peculiar character of the contest. It is really a summing-up of the great work of the war, an endeavor to realize the fruit of our victories in the field over the Rebellion. The people who, have made such heroic sacrifices in sustaining the Government, are now justly incensed at beholding the hard-earned fruits of their toil and suffer.ng imperilled by the corrupt machinations of reckless and abandoned politicians. In addition to this, the contest has assumed a shape which involves a fundamental constitutional question of the deepest moment. For the first time in the history of the country do we find the constitutional power of the people, through their Representatives, to make the laws seriously menaced. The claim of President Johnson to reconstruct the late Rebel communities into States of this Union is a claim on his part to exercise legislative functions of the highest order. and upon one of the most important subjects ever brought before the American people. The claim is a startling one, for it strikes at the root of the Government. Hence the profound interest which pervades the public mind.

New York is cursed with one of the most corrupt cities in Christendom, but she is blessed with a vast rural population of great intelligence and moral worth. The city rolls up a huge majority for that sham and imposture which cails itself Democracy; but the country is generally able to overcome this concentrated voice of vice and villany, and keep the State true to order and the interests of good government. Of the population that contributes to the real welfare, growth, and greatness of the State of New York-of her taxpayers and industrial classes—a majority of from fifty to one hundred thousand are uniformly voters and supporters of the Union Republican ticket. The nature of the fight, locally, is thus revealed at a glance. The only hope of the Democracy is in New York city. The State, outside of the city, is as reliably Republican as Massachusetts. Our friends are confident of carrying the State. The coalition between the Conservative Republicans and the Democrats, which at one time threatened to cost us a few thou-send votes, has fallen through, and the Republican ticket will get the votes of all the Conservatives, except those who belong with the Democratic party, and have been waiting for a chance to go over to it. It Pennsylvania shall do her duty, there is no doubt of a glorious and inspiring victory in New York.

The Fight in the Third District. In the Third District of our city the issue between the sympathizer of the South during the war and the stern lovalist of all time is squarely set forth in the Congressional canvass. Mr. Charles Buckwalter, the gentleman who could not understand how a political opponent could call him a gentleman, and who deems it inconsistent for a paper to praise him personally and condemn him politically, is the representative of the ultra wing of the peace Demoeracy. We have quoted from his record. We stand by our quotations. He dare not deny them. They were published in his organ. They were seen by him, and not contradicted. They were his views, and he ought now to stand by their expression. He is of the Democracy, with the Democracy, part of the Democracy, and all not Democrats should oppose him. Hon. Leonard Myers, on the other hand, is a loyalist to the core, is a tried and experienced public servant, and should be sent back to his seat, as a deserved compliment to a faithful servant. and a rebuke to the anti-war men. The issue is fairly and squarely settled. Let those who voted for Pendleton during the war vote for Buckwalter now. Let those who supported Lincoln and the war vote for Leonard Myers.

The Falsehood of Desperation. So active and able were the efforts of Hon. Leonard Myers for the business interests of his constituents, that it is no wonder many ot their trades associations have passed resolutions of thanks in his lavor. Among others, the public have read in our columns those of the cigarmakers and glass-blowers, of whom there are thousands in his district.

To-day, the malignancy of spite is exhibited by some of the officers of the Cigar-makers' Union in attempting to deny their own act in his behalt, by asserting that he voted against what he advocated.

The Daily Globe of Phursday, May 22, 1866, will show the utter falsity of this statement. Mr. Myers was thanked for his efforts to obtain a tax on leaf tobacco. He voted for his amendment, but the House voted him down; and these men, it seems, then wished him to have voted against the whole tax bill and prevent the Government from getting any revenue at all, because he failed to impress the House with his views.

Such miserable tricks will not prevent Mr. Myers from receiving the thanks of the Cigar-makers at the polls.

The Glorious "Invincibles."

WE suppose a grander spectacle in the matter of processions was never witnessed than the parade last night of that splendid body of young men known as the Republican Invincibles. It was en inspiring sight to behold their massive columns, over twelve hundred strong, as they passed along the streets. They are fine representatives of that great bost of intelligent young men all over our country who contribute so much to the life and vigor of the Republican organization.

The form of this organization has spread far beyond our own city, and similar organizations are being perfected in many other localities. The dastardly assaults upon these young men last night by Democratic rowdies shows how their influence is felt and feared in the ranks of the opposition.

The Meeting Last Night.

THE immense gathering last night on Broad street-numbering its tens of thousands, and filled with the loftiest and most inspiring enthusiasm-was one of those magnificent demonstrations which, on the part of the Union Republicans, have so signally marked the present campaign. Beside it, the attempts of the Democracy dwindle into utter insignificance. There is no mistaking the sentiment of the people. They are with us overwhelmingly, and next Tuesday will witness a victory whose magnitude will astonish the most ardent of our friends. But we must work, work, work, until the polls are closed on Tuesday night.

Clinging to a Falsehood. THE Age repeats the stale and utterly wornout lie about the bounties to white and colored soldiers. Neither the word "white" nor the word "black" occurs in the bounty law; and what is more, the law as it passed received the nearly unanimous support of the Democratic members in Congress, and was signed by President Johnson, whom the Democrats pretend to endorse.

Mr. Greelev's Speech.

HORACE GREELEY addressed a vast aud'ence at the Academy of Music last night. He spoke words of truth and soberness, befitting the momentous issues of the hour. The house was full to overflowing, but we wish that every voter in the city could have heard his speech. It will be found reported in full in our columns to-day.

THE THIRD of a series of murderous and cowardly attacks was made last night at Sixth and Chesnut streets on the Myers Campaign Club, in which a number were injured or shot. While noticing these outrages, on behalf of the cause, and at the especial request of Hon. Leonard Myers, we beg our friends to desist from retaliation. Such infamous outrages are the last resorts of desperate men, spurred on by the infamy of despair. Mr. Myers' success is sure. His cause is just. It is the cause of the country and the country's defenders. The day of election is at hand. Let the ballots of the people answer the murderous bullets of aur traitorous foe.

BASE-BALL.-The views we expressed in regard to the present dissipation of base-ball have been assented to by the leading papers and reasonable people all over the country. Our editorial on the subject has been republished in nearly all the leading journals, with comments in favor of our views. The merchants also support us, and all true lovers of the game also see the sense of our suggestion and have declared in tayor of a renovations, of the game and remedy of the excess. As they value its continuance, let them see to it
