UNION REPUBLICAN MEETING .- A meeting of the Union Republicans of the First Congressional District was held on Saturday evening in front of Independence Hall, and was largely attended. Colonel Thomas Fitzgerald presided, and opened the meeting with a brief address, in which he expressed his belief in the success of the Republican candidates on Tuesday by large majorities. He was followed by the Hon, Charles Gibbons, candidate for Congress in the First District, who discussed the question, What are the duties and powers of the Executive, and what of the Legus-lative branch of the general Government? The speaker argued that the functions of each are separate and distinct from the other, and that the President has no right to interfere with nor attempt to control the action of Congress. The libertles of the country, said Mr. Gibbons, can only be maintained through the Congress of the United States, which represents the people, and is the only law-making power. The President could no more interiere with Congress than he can with the Judiciary, and his attempt to do so was a usurpation of power. Mr. Gibbons argued that as the representatives of ten of the States had voluntarily vacated their seats in the Senate and House of Representatives, and had with others rebelled against the Federal Government, they were properly out until Congress should say when and how they should come back. He referred to the consti-tutional provision that in the election of a Presi-dent by Congress, two-thirds of the members shall constitute a quorum, as a circumstance showing the opinion of the framers of the in-strument as to the number that may constitutionally perform one of the highest functions of the body; and he reminded the assemblage of the fact that the present Congress, whica had been so much abused by the President, had done so much during the Rebellion to save the life of the nation. In the course of his remarks Mr. Gibbons was frequently interrupted by ap-

General E. D. Mussey, of Ohio, and Mr. J. W. Newlin, of this city, delivered addresses, after which the meeting adjourned.

REPUBLICAN MEETING AT THE ACADEMY or Music.—On Saturday evening Judge Bell, of Texas, Governor Hawley, of Connecticut, and Colonel John W. Forney delivered addresses at the Academy of Music. The building was filled, and the greatest enthusiasm prevailed. Judge Bell discussed the condition of affairs in the South, referring to the fact that in 1861 the deceived by their leaders as to the real sentiment of the country upon the subject of secession; and se in 1866 they being deceived in regard to reconstruction, reviewed the course of the President, charged him with inconsistency, and he de-clared his policy nothing but an attempt to usurp a power lodged in Congress. In the South no Union man can be found who sustains Mr. Johnson's policy.

Governor Hawley contended that the promises of the Southern men could not be relied upon, and that therefore new guarantees were needed before they could be allowed to participate in the government of the country.

Colonel Forney, who was received with pro-longed cheering, said that the people of the South by this time must have learned the lesson that "we offer no more terms—these are the These or nothing. Each of these States must come to Congress with a free Constitution and a clean bill of health. I have spoken in twenty-five counties of Pennsylvania, and I come back to you to-night, niter speaking at two meetings vesterday and the day before in my native county of Lancaster, to sell you all is well. (Cheers.)

MASS MEETING OF THE JOHNSON-CLYMER PARTY. — On Saturday evening the National Union (Johnson) party held its final mass meet-ing of the campaign on Broad street. The demonstration was a very large one, the street being well filled from Filbert to Sansom. Turee stands were erected on Broad street, and around these large crowds were gathered. The presence of a number of ward delegations, with music, banners, and transparencies, added to the excitement. The main stand was located on Broad street, midway between Market and Chesnut, John S. Norton, Esq., presided. He at nounced himself as a firm and ardent supporter of President Johnson, whose policy he considered the very best, and the only one to secure the restoration of the Union. The war itself had been prosecuted for the maintenance of the Union, and to deny to the States the right to secede. It was under this that so many men entered the army and gave their lives and health, having been assured that their sacrifices would not be in vain. And yet we are now told, although the war is supposed to be over and the Rebellion crushed, that the Union is not restored, and that certain of the States did s cceed in separating themselves from the rest.

This is the radical doctrine. John W. Stokes, Esq., read a series of resolutions endorsing the sentiments of the address of the 14th of August Convention, and declaring the saith of all conservative citizens that the afety of the Union depended upon the adoption of the policy indicated by the President.

Mr. Stokes addressed the meeting, and stated that he was a personal friend of Andrew John son, and knew him to be an honest, upright, and well-meaning man — one who was determined to do his whole duty to the country. Since he has been President of the United States he has remembered his oath to support the Con-st tution of his country; and it is for this that he is denounced by the men who, five years ago, were avowed disunionists.

General R. Clay Crawford, of Tennessee, was the next speaker. He was introduced as a member of the Convention that had nominated Abraham Lincoln. General Crawford said that he was satisfied that the people of this country were as loyal to the Government to-day as they had been when the first gun fired upon Fort Sumter awoke the North. Let the people understand the objects sought to be accomplished, and they will not mistake the wrong path for the right. Before the war began two factions existed. The contest between them precipitated the war which aimost ruined eleven States. One faction (the secession faction) has been utterly destroyed; the other (the abolition faction) still exists. It has grown fat on the blood of the martyrs. This faction is making use of every possible means of holding the power they got in the patriotic excitement of the people. They seek to perpetuate their rule by getting negro votes. They pretend to tell you the President is attempting to re-establish slavery, and is the author of the riots in New Orleans. Is Andrew Johnson the Judas Iscariot they represent him? Nothing of the kind. He remains firm to the platform upon which he was elected. Ex-Governor William F. Johnston followed. He was here, he said, not to inform his fellow-citizens of their duties, their rights, or how they were to exercise them to maintain the institutions of our fathers. He had made political speeches for nearly a quarter of a century, and he had said, on all occasions, in franknes- and in trath, his own convictions. He had talked about tariff, about slavery and what bearing it had upon free labor, about improvements, and about our currency. All these questions have passed and are gone, and we stand here to night to discuss a more important question than all-that Constitution or not? Are the people the rulers, or is all authority vested in the hands of a few who assume to dictate to all? You intend to vote next Tuesday not under the dictation of the Philadelphia League, but from the impulse of pure patriotism. You don't intend to be dictated to. is, have we a Government or not? Have we a

He believed that League was a dangerous power in this land. If you permit organizations that kind to control your votes, the liberties of the people of the United States are not worth preserving. They say to you and me that we are not loyal men. Why? Because we don't think as they do. He had given his children in the defense of constitutional liberty, and yet these men tell me that I am disloyal. Who are they? He came to urge his tellow-citizens to the performance of a duty that is to be per-formed next Tuesday. The Constitution and the Government are to be maintained or lost by the results of that day.

If radicalism be successful, he feared that the Government of our fathers was lost to us to rever. He believed that radicalism would be defeated. There were thousands of men in this defeated. There were thousands of men in this commonwealth who had, during the elections of the past few years, voted to maintain constitutional liberty. They will still vote for it. He cared nothing for party. He wanted the Constitution of our fathers sustained. Let us look at the "Boys in Blue." General Geary says he is a "Boy in Blue," and we have some who say they are "Boys in Blue" on our ticket. General McCandless is a "Boy in Blue." (Great cheering.) We have others who have fought in the field. He don't ask newspaper men to say what he has done. Their record is before all the people. General Geary says that the "Boys in Blue" General Geary says that the "Boys in Blue" on our ticket were skulkers and bummers. He had nothing to say about Geary's military racord; but he never knew a true soldier to abuse his fellow-soldier behind his back.

Look up this street as far as you can see, and look around you and see if you think it worth while for William F. Johnston to speak any more to you. The people speak for themselves, At a meeting in West Philadelphia he had said that the Representatives in Congress in the Fourth and Second Districts had declared that unless the nearo had a vote the Government was gone. These men have the impudence to make this assertion to an intelligent white community. He was surprised to know that such was the avowed sentiment of any in such high position. All he had to say was, that if these men preferred the company of the negro, they were welcome to it. (Applause.) Other speakers, at this and other stands, addressed the meeting.

DEMOCRATIC PARADE ON SATURDAY Evening.—The Democratic procession, on Saturday evening, was large, though not more than half of the wards were represented. Those which did participate had large numbers out, and looked very creditably. The wards formed on the different streets intersecting Broad, above Market. At about nine o'clock the files entered Broad street, and thence down Broad street to the Democratic meeting at Broad and Chesnut streets. The procession was got up under the direction of General Peter Lyle, assisted by the following aids:—General William McCandless, General John F. Ballier, Colonel A. H. Tiprin, and Major Burmeister. The procession, after paying its respects to the meeting, passed down Chesnut street. No regular route had been decided upon, but wherever the parade passed it was witnessed by thousands. At dif-terent places along the route, especially at Broad and Chesnut streets, fireworks of various descriptions were set off, which added still more to the excitement of the evening.

THE PENSION AGENCY .- The payment of ensions by Colonel Greene, for September, re-uired an expenditure of about $600,000. Under he new system of setting apart particular days for pensioners, alphabetically arranged, the Pension Agent has been enabled to pay more ensions in a given time than ever before in the history of the agency, while the pensioners are relieved of the annoyance and the loss of vauble time incident to crowds. On the 30th of deptember every case presented up to that date had been settled, and the money ready for the pen ioners. During the present term it has been noticed that large numbers of the pensieners residing outside of the city have pre-ferred to deal directly with the Pension Agent, rather than avail themselves of attorneys. The publication of the days on which parties will be paid enables them to visit Philadelphia, if they mefer. It is also worthy of notice that Colonel Greene, since he has been in office, has de-creased the fees one-half, and now charges less than the amount prescribed by the Department.

THE SOLDIERS' HOME SLANDER.-The Executive Committee of the Soldiers' Home have made a public refutation of the slanderous statement that inmates of that useful and praiseworthy institution have been discharged in con-sequence of their political preferences. A con-densed statement of facts, submitted to the public by the Committee, disposes of one of the basest attempts to injure the character of the Home for political purposes:—

The Soldiers' Home is an institution chartered by the State of Pennsylvania, maintained by subscriptions from members of the association, donations from charitable persons, and some assistance from the State. It is governed by a board of twenty-four managers, elected annually from among the contributors, assisted by a board of twenty-four lady visitors, who have charge of the housekeeping department.

From the evidence submitted by the Committee, it appears that the men who were dis-charged were discharged for direct infringements of the rules of the institution, and not for any political reasons whatever.

STABLES BURNT.-Yesterday morning a stable in Dobb street, below Hobbs, was fired and destroyed. There was a very large quantity of hay and feed stored in it at the time. The loss will amount to about 1500. A small stable aujoining caught fire and was destroyed also. The loss from the latter will not amount to over two hundred dollars.

FIRE.-On Saturday evening a fire broke out in a brick atrachment to a wall-paper manufactory at Eleventh and Catharine streets, and was confined to that building. The damage was not heavy.

ACCIDENT.-On Saturday, Joseph White was seriously injured by tailing through one of the piers at Richmond. He was removed to the Episcopal Hospital.

DIED OF HER INJURIES .- Mary McKees, who was run over at Twelfth and Christian streets by a wagon a few days ago, died at the Hospital on Friday night,
