The National Capital.

The subject and the necessity of removing the national capital is being taken hold of with more zeal, particularly since it is becoming daily more and more apparent that in its present location it is literally hemmed in by a population of traitors, through whom the Union men of this country constantly stand in danger of being compelled to pass, with fixed bayonets, to reach the city of Washington. A contemporary, referring to the subject, has prepared and presented tables of the square miles and population of the three great divisions of the republic. The Eastern division includes the States looking directly to the Atlantic seaboard, which now have the capital, as it were, exclusively to themselves. The Western division embraces the States and Territories lying west of and upon the Rocky Mountains, looking directly to the Pacific seaboard. The third division embraces the great Central Valley, looking directly down the Mississippi. It is claimed that to this central division properly belongs Western Pennsylvania and portions of certain territories that lap over this side of the Rocky Mountains.

The following are the tables showing the square miles and population of each division:—

Dedication of the Cornplanter Monument

This ceremony took place on Thursday last. The day being warm and beautiful, with a "cloudless sky and balmy airs," a very large concourse of people assembled at the burial-ground of Gyantwahia, the "Cornplanter." The monument erected is placed in a conspicuous part of the ground, having a base of sandstone, one and a half feet high; the sub-bases are of marble, together with the die and shaft, making eleven and a half feet of marble. The whole is surmounted by a suitable cap. Upon the north side of the monument is very beautifully engraved the name and date—

"Gyantwahia, the Cornplanter.
John Obail, alias Cornplanter,
DIED,
At Cornplanter Town, February 18, A. D. 1836,
Aged about 100 years."

Upon the west side is the following inscription:—

"Chief of the Seneca tribe, a principal Chief of the Six Nations, from the period of the Revolutionary war to the time of his death. Distinguished for talent, courage, eloquence, sobriety, and love for his tribe and race, to whose welfare he devoted his time, his energies, and his means, during a long and eventful life."

Upon the south side is the following:—

"Erected by authority of the Legislature of Pennsylvania, by act passed March, A. D. 1866."

The assemblage was called to order by Hon S. P. Johnson, who made a few prefatory remarks, which were interpreted by Harrison Halftown, from the Alleghany Reservation. A prayer was offered by the Rev. W. A. Rankin, Chaplain of the day. After which a very able address was delivered by Hon. James Ross Snowden, of Philadelphia. It was full of happy and beautiful things, and interesting events in the character and life of Cornplanter, both public and private. It is useless to enumerate here, as such an interesting address will of course be given to the public in full. Then followed an address by Rev. W. A. Rankin, giving a personal history of Cornplanter's life, both in the domestic circle and as a brave warrior and chieftain. This address was all given in the Seneca language by the interpreter, after which responses were made by some of the Senecas present, which were characterized by their usual beauty of expression. Thus closed the exercises of the day. An extensive collation was prepared to refresh the weary, and it made a pleasant finale to the various exercises of the day. Music was discoursed from time to time by the Aboriginal Brass Band, which did great credit to the performers.

I could not but be reminded, as they played one old, familiar household air, of the "Home, sweet Home" to which Gyantwahia, the Cornplanter, passed so long ago. The warm sunlight of thirty summers and the cold sheeted snow of thirty winters have dropped upon his grave, since the spirit of Cornplanter has roamed through the vast hunting grounds above—and as often as his tribe shall visit the monument which marks his last resting-place on earth, may they be led to think of the Great Spirit of the Senecas, and the "Home, sweet Home" of Cornplanter.—Warren Mail, Oct. 20.

CABLE BARONETS AND KNIGHTS.

Sir Curtis Mirandar Lampson, created a baronet in England for his services in the Atlantic Telegraph enterprise, is a native of Vermont. His early life was passed in the hunting and fishing grounds of Canada and the Hudson's Bay territory. He was married in Vermont, and in 1834 went to England, where he became permanently settled, taking the oath of allegiance in 1848, and engaging in the Hudson's Bay fur trade. He was one of the earliest directors and shareholders of the Atlantic Telegraph Company, and has since continued his active interest in that work. An English paper says of him:—

"Mr. Peabody nominated Sir Curtis Lampson as one of the trustees of the magnificent fund which he founded; and in conjunction with Lord Stanley and Sir Emerson Tennent, the management of that fund has been such as to realize with the most marked success the wishes and designs of its benevolent founder. The new baronet is the owner of a fine estate at Rowfant, near East Grinstead, and the old Tudor mansion, a moated grange, is preserved as an almost sacred trust. Sir Curtis has two sons, both of whom were educated at Cambridge, and who will shortly, on his retirement, succeed to the whole of his business, in which they are at present partners."

The other officers of the Cable expedition upon whom the Queen has conferred the honors of the realm are Sir Daniel Gooch, Sir Richard Atwood Glass, Sir W. Thompson, Sir C. Canning and Sir J. Anderson. Gooch is chairman of the Great Western Railroad Company in England, and a high officer among the Freemasons; Thompson is Professor of Natural Philosophy in the University of Glasgow, and the leading electrician of the Telegraph Company; Glass began life as an accountant in a mercantile house in London, and is now the head of the firm of Glass & Elliott, who made the Atlantic Cables; Canning is the engineer who superintended the laying of the cable; Anderson is the Captain of the Great Eastern, who was selected by Sir William Cunard to command that vessel on her different expeditions in the service of the Telegraph Company.

German Gymnasiums and Universities.

In 1865 there were in the whole of Prussia 153 gymnasiums; in Brandenburg and Saxony respectively, 24; in Silesia, 23; in Prussia (province), 21; in Westphalia, 16; in Pomerania, 13; in Posen, 8. The examination that has to be passed by all who form the gymnasium to the university, was passed in all by 1982 scholars. Of these 1982 absturients, as they are termed, 240 went to the university to study for the Protestant ministry, 383 to study for the Romish priesthood! A very significant and not a very encouraging fact.

At the Prussian universities, at the close of the summer term this year, there were altogether 562 teachers. Of these 270 were ordinary professors, 122 extraordinary, and 170 lecturers. Of the ordinary professors, 55 were Protestant theological, 25 Catholic theological; 70 law; 135 medicine; and 277 philosophical, including natural science.

NEW YORK September 3, 1866

I have analyzed a sample of CHESNUT GROVE WHISKY received from Mr Charles Wharton, Jr., Philadelphia; and having carefully tested it, I am pleased to state that it is entirely FREE FROM POISONOUS OR DELETERIOUS substances. It is an unusually pure and fine flavored quality of whisky.
JAMES R. CHILTON, M. D.,

BOSTON, March 7, 1859

I have made a chemical analysis of commercial samples of CHESNUT GROVE WHISKY, which proves to be free from the heavy Fusil Oils, and perfectly pure an unadulterated. The fine flavor of this whisky is derive from the grain used in manufacturing it.
