The Head of Richelien. The Paris correspondent of the London Star says:—"The head of Richelieu was separated from his corpse during the first revolution in Paris. M. Fortoni was the first person to whom it occurred to restore the head to the remains of the once mighty Uardinal, but in spite of all his exertions he lailed to do so. The present the person with the help of M. Dareston Public Instruction, has been more successful.

Authentic documents proving its identity have Authentic documents proving its identity have been sent up with it. It appears that the head so the Cardinal was taken by a hosier of the Kue St. Denis during the breaking open of his tomb. The mob got into the coffin, and, trampling upon the embalmed corpse, cut it in seces. The head was instantly taken possession of by the hosier, who, taking a favorable epportunity, hid it under his clothes, proud and happy to be the proprietor of so valuable a retic. Fearing, however, that it would be found out that he had robbed this treasure, he was suddenly seized with the idea of sawing it in two, so that the face alone is preserved was suddenly seized with the idea of sawing it in two, so that the face alone is preserved from the forehead to the chin. It is thus mask, as it were, that is now at the Ministere de l'Instruction Publique. It is perfectly mahogang colored, the teeth are beautifully white, and the moustache and impersal are of a reddish brown. Philippe de Champagni's portrant, which we have all gazed at in the square room of the Louvre, is proved to be a marvellous likeness—the outline of the features as correct as though it had been photographed.

The Distracted "Almanach de Gotha."

All the Year Round has the following:—
"There is consternation in the editorial room at Gotha. The Almanach for 1867 was almost ready to be launched forth into the world when, let like the simoom, Prussia sweeps over the North of Germany and kings and converse. Borth of Germany, and kings and princes are carried away by the blast like so many reeds; even the stalwart tree of Austria has list many of its branches, blown away by the storm, though the stem still stands firm on its deep-set rects. The hurricane has lulled, the treaty of Prague calms for a time the troubled elements, duplomacy has done its work. But it is a much carier task to sign a treaty and exchange ratifications than to rewrite a compendium like the Almanach de Golha. The whole German Confederation is extinguished, and Frankfort, the seat of the Diet, annexed; consequently the thrity-two States, including the Hanse towns, must be struck out of the Almanach, and the North German Confederation above the Main in-North German Confederation above the Main in-serted instead. As regards the embryo Contede-ration of the Southern States, all is chaos. Then Austria has lost Venetia, Denmark has lost the Duchies, and, worst of all, no one knows whether the lew remaining ninepins will not be bowied down by the strong arm of a Bismarck or of a Napoleon. It is easier to shoot a hon with a single bullet than to exterminate a nest of wasps. Saxony is not yet annexed, and may remain intact in the Almanach of 1867; but Hanover, Nassan, Hesse-Cassel, Darmstadt, and others must all have a pen struck through them, and added to Prussia. Prussia is like the devilfish described by Victor Hugo in his "Travail-leurs de la Mer." It holds in its strangling grip all the petty princes in Germony. We are in October; the continental arrangements are by no means settled, and the Almanach must appear on the 1st of Jahuary. We have good reason for saying, again, that consternation prevails in the editor's room at Gotha.

A Prison Outbreak About Tobacco.—The Toulon journals give accounts of a serious outbreak among the youthful convicts confined in a penitent ary in the He de Levant. A feeling of dis-satisfaction was expressed among the convicts that they were not allowed longer periods of recreation and permission to smoke tobacco. The concession demanded being refused, the rulians overpowered the warders, seized the director of the establishment and thrust him lishment, and set fire to large quantities of petroleum and other inflammable materials which they found in the cellars. A coastguard signs man succeeded in rescuing the director, but at the risk of his own life, for he was caught by the convicts, who revenged themselves by casting him into a deep ditch, where he lay for a long time with a broken leg. Upon the news of the outbreak reaching Toulon, a strong mili-tary force was despatched, which speedily restored a certain degree of order, but the penitentiary buildings were almost entirely de-stroyed, and fourteen of its inmates were found to have perished in the flames. The principal leaders of the insurrection are said to be nearly all Corsicans, and none more than sixteen years

Death of Surgeon C. S. Tripler, U. S. A.—We regret to see the announcement that Brigadier-General C. S. Tripler, Surgeon U. S. A., died at Cincinnati on the 20th instant, of cancer, at the age of sixty years. He was born in 'New York, in 1806, and was a graduate of the College of Physicians and Surgeons. On General McClel lan's accession to the command of the Army of the Potomac, Dr. Tripler was appointed Medical Director, and at the time of his death was Medi-cal Director of the Department of the Ohio. Dr. Tripler was an army officer of the old school, often petulant and peppery in his manner, but having a true warm heart beneath his gruff outside. In his profession he was a hard student and enthusiast, being, in that, something of an exception to many of his colleagues in the regular service. He was so universally known in "the old army" that there will be thousands to mourn his loss.

The Helmets of the London Fire Brigade.—The members of the Fire Brigade in London have their heads protected by a new helmet, which is thus described;—"The helmets vary in weight from the beautiful from two pounds two ounces to two pounds fiteen ounces, and are in appearance similar to those worn by the Dragoon Guards when on state duty. They have each a comb varying in height from three to five inches as a protection against falling bricks, etc. At the side of the comb are fiery dragons, with illustrations of the hose, stand cocks, axes, and other implements used at fires, the lower part of the helmet bearing the 'ctiers 'M. F. B.' (Metropolitan Fire b_{r, ade)}."

The C'dest German Newspaper.—The oldest in journal in Germany, and one of the oldest in the world, has just disappeared. The Postzeitung (Post On. c. Journal), published at Tankfort, was established in 1616, and copsequently had to describe the control of the property of the Princes de la Tour and Taxis, who, it is known, were entrusted with the general postal administration of the German Control of the House. tion. Equally devoted to the Houses of Haps-burg and Taxis, the Postreilung has fallen with them. It was tolerated by Wall-astein, but has been suppressed by Bismark. Lively Patriarchs.—The Journal de Nice has the following:—"On the 8th instant, at Bleussase, Canton de Cantes, arrondissement de Nice, Le Sieur A. C.—, aged eighty-four, married before the Maire and M. le Care, M'me B.—, aged cighty-one. After the benediction, the priest, according to usage, recommended the bride and groom to increase and multiply, and to bring up their children in the love and fear of the Lord. This the newly married couple promised to do. After mass this lively brace of patriarchs danced a jig (une gigue) in the pub-Is General Sherman Ever Profane?—When Sherman was in Toronto, a reporter sidled up to him and said, "General Sherman, will you ave the kiadness to give me your views hon the Fenian question?"
