NATIONAL RAILROAD CONVENTION Proceedings Vesterday.

The National Convention of Railroad Managers reassembled at the St. Nicholas Hotel, at halfpast ten o'clock this morning.
The following persons were present:—

John Hulme, Director of Pa. Central Railroad, R. H. Houston, Director of Pa. Central Railroad, J. M. Kennedy, Director of North Cent. Railroad, I. H. Sturgeon, President of North Missouri Rail-

J. B. Moulton Director of North Missouri Railroad. B. H. Latrobe, of North Missouri Railroad. S. L. Fremont, of Wi mington and Weldon Rail-Marsoy, of Rome, W and Opdensburg Railroad.
Mervey Reys, President of Passaic River Railroad. G. Merrill, Superintendent Vermont Central Railroad, Thomas Webb, President North Carolina Rail road. E. Wilkes, Engineer and Superintendent N. C.

E. Wilkes, Engineer and Superintendent N. C. Railroad.
D. C. McCallum. President of Alexandria and Fredericksburg Railroad.
John E. Lyon. President of Boston. Concord, and White acountain Railroad.
Bentley D. Hasell President and Chief Engineer of Sheiby and Broad River Railroad.
O. Charnute, of Chicago and Alton Railroad.
Warren Colburn. Vice-President Toledo, Wabash, and Western Railroad
J. H. Ramsey, of Albany and Susquehanna Railroad.

J. H. Mamsey, of Albany and Su-quenature road.

Imaac Hinckley, President Philadelphia, Wilmington, and Baitmore Railroad.

S. Rush, Superintendent Richmond, Fredericksbury, and Potomac Railroad.

L. J. Flemmg, of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad.

D. L. Harris, of the Jonn citcut River Railroad.

F. W. Jackson of the New Jersey Railroad.

Charles Butler, of the St. Louis, Aiton, and Terre Haute Railroad.

Daniel H. Crane, of the Montgomery and West Point Railroad

W. D. Dunn, of the Mobile and Great Western Railroad.

John C. French, of the San Antonio and Mexican

Gulf Railacad.
Mr. A. Welsh, Chairman of the Committee on Signals and Safety Regulations, made a report, in which he recommended the use of safety signals on all the railroads. He stated that it was the practice now to use danger signals which were very unsafe. When the danger signal did not appear, the engineer would take it for granted that everything was all right. He re-commended that there should be no danger sigmals used, but that, in case the safety signal was not seen, the engineer could take it for granted that there was danger, and would, therefore, be compelled to stop. He thought it was much better to speud money in caution than to pay damages for accidents.

General D. C. McCullum, Chairman of the Committee for Preserving Timber, reported that he had examined several plans for the preserva-tion of timber, and would recommend that a committee be appointed to witness the experi-ments of various plans for accomplishing this end, and that they report to the Convention. Several communications were received from inventors explaining the merits of their various patents, which were referred to the Committee on Patents. Messrs, Welsh, Hulme, and flinckley were ap-pointed a committee to superintend the printing of Mr. Welsh's report and its distribution to the

of Mr. Welsh's report and its distribution to the different railroad companies.

Mr. Isaac Hinckley read the report of the Committee on Post Office service. It recited that there was a great want of similarity in regard to the mode of carrying the mails, and the pay. A revision of the rates of payment was suggested, and attention paid to the tonnage of mail matter. The Committee were of opinion that it was impossible to dispense entirely with Sunday trains.

Sunday trains.

A Committee on Mail Service was appointed, consisting of Messrs, Hulme, Jewett Twitchell, Slevin, Ogden, Bridges, and Pollard.

A report was made upon the subject of several alieged improvements in railroad machinery.

Committees from the different districts were as pointed to urge the passage of measures re-con mended in the report upon Patent laws, as fello we:-New 1 Ingland-D. L. Harris, G. Twitchell, W. D. Bishop.

The Special Committee on the Rollins mount preserving wood was authorized to report during the recess of the Convention.

The Executive Committee was continued.

The next meeting of the Conventiod was designated to take piace at the St. Nicholas Hotel, in this city, at noon on the second Wednesday of May, 1867.—N. Y. Evening Post, 25th.

Matilda Heron as a Southern Sympathizer. The St. Louis (Mo.) Dispatch contains the following letter from Matilda Heron Stormer, the actress, addressed to the President of the St. Louis Southern Relief Fair:—

SOUTHERN HOTEL, October 8, 1866.—Mrs. J C. Barlow.—Dear Madam;—Will you accept as an humble donation to the glorious, humane, C. Barlow.—Dear Malam:—Will you accept as an humble donation to the glorious, humane, and holy cale in which you are engaged, the accompanying set of antique lace? Though I call it antique, it is far, far beyond the different articles so called, and indeed I can also say it cannot justly be called antique, dating only so far back as mediaval history. Yet, still, with only three hundred years over 'its head,' it has the present proud and unique boast of standing without its peer in the art of the needle. I am speaking of the class of lace of which I send you a specimen. Of the specimen itself, it stands alone in America. Mrs. Carter, of New York, has offered me five thousand dollars for it. It is a singular fact that, under the microscope, the thread used in it is of the same exquisite fine texture as that employed in the finest point d'aiguille in Brussels, and finer than the Honiton of England. So much for the linen looms of the middle ages. In giving this dear relic to the Southern mairons and orphans, I feel that I am giving them a bit of my heart. I kept it out of the celebrated set I recently sold for my only child. In giving it to the orphans of the American heroes, I feel I dedicate it to as holy and sweet a purpose.

"In haste, yours most respectfully," sweet a purpose,
"In haste, yours most respectfully,
"MATILDA HERON STORPEL."

People's notions of beauty differ. Tamerlane's wife, who had no nose, was thought a belle by her contemporaries. A patrician of Venice had a scurvy little probosels, and that was held of itself a sufficient disqualification for the Doge's cap and ring. Cicero admired the squinting eye, such as Greek sculptors often gave to Venus, and Minerva was sometimes figured with a complexion as dusky as any gipsy wife of Epsom Downs. Some of the Greeks held blue eyes to be hideous, and Dioscorides tells us that they had an art—the same practised, perhaps, centuries afterwards, at Donnybrook Fair—of making them black. Hunchbacks have had their admirers, who contend that the dorsal curvature is the true line of beauty, and that the hump, so far from being a deformity, "as dull fools suppose," is in itself a graceful ornament.

—Madaine Ristori's favorite "street costume"

—Madaine Ristori's favorite "street costume" appears to be a dress of the heaviest black damask sitk, with large white sitk stars woven into the texture of the faoric in a manner which made the stars look as if they were made of silver; her head-dress white lace lapels of the most costly and fairy-like workmanship, hung pendant and covering the ears, reaching down to where the dress was fastened at the throat; and from each ear a string of diamond drops, four in number, valued at $12,000—very massy in their appearance. She uses a parasol of the finest and heaviest white silk, and a Chinese tan of intricate workgranship.

Herculaneum.—A French paper says the excavations of Herculaneum are expected to be much more productive than those of Pompeii, whence a great many persons had time to carry away their chief valuables before the storm of ashes and lays overwhelmed the place. At Herculaneum the case was different. The labor will, it is said, be greater than at Pompeli—a mountain of laya has to be pierced, and a descent made into the city as into a mine.
