The Effect of an "Enlightened" Foreign Policy. THERE seems to be a feeling of satisfaction in certain quarters at the announcement of the alleged intention of the Government to change its foreign policy, and demand immediate reparation from England, and the instantaneous evacuation of Mexico by France. We are told that a foreign war would do us good; that there is nothing so potent in healing family broils as an attack from a mutual foe; and that all the difficulties of our internal position would be at once removed did we declare war against Great Britain. The conservative party, headed by the New York Herald, rejoice greatly over what they suppose is an indication of the intention of the Executive to insist on certain claims which, in [all probability, will produce a conflict between ourselves and some foreign nation.

We cannot gain by pressing these claims, nor do we believe that the President has any intention of such a course. We cannot bring ourselves to have so poor an opinion of his patriotism as to suppose that, in order to free himself from the consequences of domestic blunders. he would endanger our nation, nor, in order to turn popular attention away from his reconstruction failure, that he would expose us to a war with a powerful country. Although the declaration of war rests with Congress, yet should Mr. Johnson insist on our claims, the pride of our people would compel us to sustain him, even though we knew that by such demands we were risking success and yielding up peace. Hence it is within his power to cause a foreign war by premature claims on Great Britain. This line of conduct he has been frequently advised to adopt by certain tollowers If there is one act more criminal than another in all the misdeeds of which our Executive is capable, the adoption by Mr. Johnson of the course laid down for him would be the most vile. For personal or political ends to invoke the evils of war, and to hazard our national honor, incur another enormous debt, and sacrifice tens of thousands of lives, is a crime worthy only of a Nero. No, we do not believe that the President dreams of precipitating a war between our land and a powerful and wily foe.

Let those who are thus talking think for a moment of the effect. Supposing that victory was certain, and that all the lives which were lost were of no account, let us the certain effect. Our bonds would sink to the level of those of the small German potentates. Those already issued would lose the too credulous holderhalf their investment, while the new loan to be incurred, if negotiated at all, would involve a condition of taxation which is fearful to contemplate. For all this, we would get in return, what? A prestige for the Administration and national glory. National glory is an excellent thing, but the cost of it in the past has been so remarkably dear, that when we have a trifling debt of two thousand five hundred millions of dollars involved, we do not think that we can afford it. The result on our people is well expressed by Rev. Sidney Smith :-

"We can inform Jonathan what are the inevitable consequences of being too foud of glory:-Taxes upon every article which enters into the mouth, or covers the back, or is placed under the toot; taxes upon everything which it is pleasant to see, hear, icel, smell, or taste; taxes upon warmth, light, and locomotion; taxes on everything on earth and the waters under the earth; on everything that comes from abroad or is grown at home: taxes on the raw mateor is grown at home: taxes on the raw material; taxes on every fresh value that is add d to it by the industry of man; taxes on the sauce which pampers man's appetite, and the drug that restores him to health; on the ermine which decorates the judge, and the rope which hangs the criminal; on the poor man's salt, and the rich man's spice; on the brass nails of the collin, and the ribbons of the bride. At bed or board, couchant or levant, we must pay! The school-boy whips his taxed top; the beardless youth manages his taxed horse, with a taxed bridle, on a taxed road; and the dying Englishman, pouring his med: cine, which has paid 7 per cent., into a spoon that has paid 15 per cent., flings himself pack upon his chintz bed, which has paid 22 per cent., and expres in the arms of an apothecary who has paid a license of a hundred pounds for the privilege of putting him to death. His whose property is then immediately taxed from 2 to 10 per cent. Besides the probate, large fees are demanded for burying him in the chancel; his virtues are handed down to posterity on taxed mathie; and he is then posterity on taxed mathie; and he is then gathered to his fathers—to be taxed no more!"

We have not quite reached that pass yet, but the adoption of an enlightened foreign policy would undoubtedly lead to that roult, Already we are feeling the effects of a vast revenue system. The same author, fortysix years ago, prophesied the effect, and we are suffering from it to-day. He said: -"In addition to all this, the habit of dealing with large sums will make the Government avaricious and profuse; and the system itself will infallibly generate the base vermin of spies and informers, and a still more pestilent race of political tools and retainers of the meanest and most odious description; while the prodigious patronage which the collecting of this splendid revenue will throw into the hands of the Government, will invest it with so vast an influence, and hold out such means and temptations to corruption, as all the virtue and public spirit, even of republicans, will be unable to

The dire effects predicted are already felt, but in a less degree than would follow the change prophesied. Let those who favor the proposed alteration in our treatment of foreign powers think well before they act. We are endangering our safety, exposing thousands of our citizens to death, and securing almost gertain bankruptcy. And all in order that the domestic entanglements of the Administration may be solved, and some of our citizens secure the immediate payment of certain claims, which may be recovered without detriment a decade hence! We are, therefore, unalterably opposed to the promised "enlightened" foreign policy.

The Continued Hostility of the Rebel Leaders.

ALL thoughtful persons foresaw, long ago, that the greatest dangers consequent upon the Rebellion would have to be met after the war was over, and in connection with the question of reconstruction. So long as the spirit of disloyaity manifested itself in physical warfare, the conflict of armed hosts, there was really but little danger to be apprehended from it. The very boldness of its display disarmed it, by showing the nation its true character. But when the Rebellion had been crushed, as to its open and outward manifestations, and the spirit of treason concealed itself under the guise of a claim for constitutional rights, and thought to gain by political chicanery, and through the established forms of the Government, those ends which it had failed to achieve by armed rebellion, then our really greatest danger began to manifest itself. The peril now is in putting political power into the hands of men who are at heart just as hostile to our Government, and just as truly bent upon its over throw, as they were when they had arms in their hands, and stood in battle array against the forces of the Union. This danger is all the more serious because it is less obvious Through it disloyalty does not go directly and openly to its end, as it did in rabellion but approaches it circuitously and by indirection.

The real point is just here - that the masses of the Southern whites are as truly the enemies of our Government now as they ever were! Does anybody suppose that they have changed their sentiments, and that they now love the Government they so recently hated? Does Southern independence look any the less attractive to them, now that it is surrounded with the halo of the "lost

Now, in one sense, we do not find fault with these people for their sentiments of devotion to the cause of Southern independence. It is quite natural that they should continue to love and hallow a cause in whose defense they risked and suffered so much. It would be very unnatural should they suddenly become the enthusiastic friends of that Union which they recently hated so bitterly.

In this view of the case, we see nothing unnatural in the public adornment of Rebel graves, or in the cherishing of the memory of Rebel heroes, or in the selection of prominent Rebels for all important offices at the South. It is just what we might expect. But we do insist that it is the height of folly and presumption on the part of the people who do love the Union, and who mean to maintain it, to put power into the hands of those so inimical to us. It is voluntarily incurring a risk such as no other nation on earth would think of incurring. It is putting power into the hands of those who beforehand declare their enmity towards us, and their desire for the overthrow of all that we hold most dear. We make it possible for these men to inflict upon us the very calamity which we have just expended 300,000 lives and $3,000,000,000 to avoid. How often during the war, had the Rebels had a representation in Congress-as the Democrats now maintain that they were entitled to have-could they, by a union with the Copperhead element of the North, have controlled the legislation of the country, cut off supplies from the army, and secured the success of the Rebellion!

It is against the leaders in the Rebellion, the perjured leaders, that the particular clause of the Constitutional amendment so obnoxious to the South is aimed. These men, by every consideration of justice and prudence, are not entitled to be intrusted with power. On every possible occasion they insist upon culogizing the "lost cause" of the Rebellion-holding it up to the sympathy and admiration of the world as a just and rightful struggle, and installing into the minds of the rising generation of the South a flerce and vindictive hatred of the Government of the United States. To entrust such men with political power is the height of imprudence. They have already abused the confidence and generosity of the nation, which might most justly have inflicted upon them the severest punishment. They are contemptuously spurning the offers of reconciliation that we are holding out to them. They are every day showing more and more clearly that they are unfit to take part in the government of the

In the Third District, John Davidson is making a splendid canvass, but has a pretty heavy majority to overcome. In the Fourth, John Hill is pretty nearly sure to be chosen. opponent is Jack Rogers-a notorious and offensive Copperhead-who has been a standing object of ridicule in Congress ever since he has been there, and who is so distasteful to the better part of the Democratic party in his district that they have nominated an independent candidate ageinst him. It looks, therefore, as though Jack's career was about ended. We believe Hill would beat him in a straight-out fight, but with a division in the Democratic ranks Hill's election is certain. In the Fifth District, G. A. Halsey is making a gallant fight against the renegade Gilchrist, and bids fair to beat him handsomely.

As things stand, therefore, we are reasonably sure of holding our own on Congress, and have good prospects of gaining two members. The Republicans are active and earnest, while the opposition are sluggish and dispirited. They still harp away dolefully on the negro issue, but it has become so thoroughly stale and worn-out that nobody minds it any more. If our Republican friends do their duty, and get out the full vote, New Jersey will give a good account of herself new Tuesday.

OBITUARY.

Miss Frances A. Seward. With sincere regret we announce the death this morning, at half-past 6 o'clock, of Miss Frances A. Seward, only daughter of Hon. William H. Seward, Secretary of State. She was an amiable and accomplished young lady, and devotedly attached to her father, who reciprocated her affection with the most tender and considerate love. His beceavement is indeed

Miss Seward, while an invalid at Auburn, where she was suffering from an affection of the lungs, which did not prevent her from visiting her mother's grave daily, received a despatch conveying the tidings of her rather's serious illhis return from his western four with the President. She bastened from the grave of her mother to her suffering father, joined him at Harrisburg, and accompanied him to this city, where she remained until her death. Her tender care aided in restoring her father, and seemed to have given her renewed vigor, as her health steadily improved, and she rode out on several occasions with the family. About ten days since, however, she had a bilious attack of extraordinary severity, and for a few days past laid in a comatose state, not recognizing any one. Yesterday, however, seemed to rally, and was conscious of her father's attendance on her. The improvement was but temporary, as she had a profuse perspiration during the night, and died this morning, as we have stated. Miss Seward was in her 22d year. The funeral service will take place at St John's Church, at 31 o'clock, on Wednesday afternoon. The remains will be removed to Auburn, N. Y., but it has not jet been determined at what time, - Washington Star, 29th.

-L'Elendard relates the following ludicrous incident which lately occurred during a marriage ceremonyin a commune in the Department de la Somme:—"The Mayor having asked the bridegroom's father whether he consented to his son's marriage, the lather replied:—Well, yes, I consent; but I tell you, Mr. Mayor, that my son has the handle of a whip which I very much desire to possess; I have often asked him to give it to me, but he has always refused; now, I should like him to promise it to me here, in your presence, and then I shall consent to his marriage heartity.' The young bridegroom at once declared his willingness not only to give his father the handle of the whip, but the whip itself. Upon hearing this, the father gave him a hearty shake of the hand, and the marriage ceremony was continued."

Amason, a native of Pavis, who, while living, some time back, at Vi'erbo, generously devoted himself to the care of the cholera patients, received a visit, after his return to his humble room in the Rue Cousin, Paris, from Monsignor de Mycode, who presented to him, in the name of the Pope, the patent and cross, in gold, of Knight of the first class of the Pontifical Order of St. Sylvestre. The patent bears the autograph signature of Pius IX. signature of Pius IX.

-The renowned well of St. Keyne, in Ireland, famous for its alleged power, is in a state of neglect; the channel which supplied the marvellous waters is stopped, the bed of the fountain filled with dry stones. The sacred water is still procurable at a neighboring cottage, from the original spring.

-It appears by official statistics that the number of marriages in Obio for the year ending July 1, 1866, is full twenty per cent, above that in any one year, either before or luring the war. Probably there has been a similar increase in other States, and it so, the waste of life by the war is likely to be made up.

-The Petersburg (Va.) Express says partridges are more abundant than for many years; hares jump from behind every bush; infest every cornfield; opossums despoil every persimmon tree; squirrels fill the forest; foxes bark around every henery; and the music of the hounds resounds on every breeze.

-The Cronique Suisse states that a Protestant minister named Mathys, who died recently at Stanz (Unterwalden), has left an autobiography written in twenty-seven languages.

-A surgical journal speaks of a man who lived five years with a ball in his head. Job Squires says he has known ladies to live twice as long with nothing but balls in their heads.
