THE ITALIAN OPERA.

I Gounod's Faust was well rendered last evening at the Academy. Miss Kellogg sang her role very gracefully, but her voice is hardly dramatic enough to awaken that sympathy on the part of the audience which Frederics invariably did. The latter's "Marguerite" was a model in its way, but Miss Kellogg's is the nearest to it we have yet seen. Mazzoleni was very fine as "Faust," In the first act, particularly, he was far ahead of all others who have essayed the part in Philadelphia. In the latter portion of the opera, however, he seemed at times to lack that fire and energy which the character so imperatively demands, and on this account his impersonation was not as efficient as it otherwise would have been.

The omission by the management of the fine "dancing scene" and its musical adjuncts in the last act lost him a good opportunity for fine passionate acting Himmer in this scene was superb, and we doubt not Mazzolevi would have been equally acceptable. His "Faust," however, is not one of his best roles; it is good, but could be better.

Bellini did not seem to make as much out of the part of "Valentine" as one with his abilities should have done. It is a small part, but the dying scene can be made very impressive; and this Bellini signally failed in. The part in itself may be beneath him, but his indifference in it made it seem almost beyond his capacities.

Antonucci was very good as "Mephistopheles," although inferior to Hermann in the same part. His singing was capital, but his general style was too heavy for so active a 'spirit" as "Mephistopheles." His famous song in the second act, "Dio dell 'or del mondo, signor," and the scena in which it occurs, were very well done, and the song received an enthusiastic encore, Mad'lle Bonheur acquitted herself very creditably as "Siebel," singing her music very gracefully and impressively.

The orchestra was good, but the conductor was inclined too much to have it piano-a complaint in all our experience we have never yet had to make before of an orchestra. Taking the performance of Faust as a whole, it was not quite up to the "standard;" and would lose considerably by comparison with its performsnce by the Germans, with Himmer, Hermann, and Frederici in the principal roles.

This evening the Star of the North will be repeated, and to-morrow evening the grand Huquenots, cast to the full strength of the company, will be given.

EFFECTS OF GOING ON A BENDER .-Joseph Nichols and Thomas Moran, two jolly bricks, went on a batter together last night. As a natural consequence, both of them got loy fully hilarious under the influence of essence of and barley. Joseph embraced Thomas, and rye and barley. Joseph embraced Thomas, and at the same time embraced the opportunity of abstracting Thomas' watch, which was a silver appendage attached to the latter's person, valued at $20. This little episode in the history of their friendship is said to have occurred at Nineteenth and South streets. On discovering that he had lost his time, he accused, not 'Procrastination,' but Joseph Nichols of being the thief of it. The latter personage, therefore, was taken into custody, and escorted to Alderman Lutz's office. After hearing the statements in the case, that gentleman held Nichols in default of $800 bail to answer at Court.

TILL-TAPPING, AND A CHASE. - A recolored individual, who rejoices in the auriteous name of David Gold, undertook to make love to some of his namesake that was con-tained in the till of Officer Clark, who keeps store at Forty-second and Ludlow streets. He lars from the drawer, when he was detected and chase was given. For some five or six squares the chase continued, until Officer Clark collared him, and then Gold was down—in the mouth, and was taken into the presence of Alderman Allen to answer for his little operation. After a hearing, he was held to answer

A FATAL FALL. John Boyle, aged 41 years, who keeps a tavera near Twenty-first and Callowhill streets, made a misstep, and failing down a flight of steps, tractured his skull in a terrible manner. MALICIOUSLY DISPOSED PEOPLE.-A German woman, by the name of Therese Schilling, was arrested on a charge of malicious mis chief yesterday afternoon. It appears that for some reason or other Therese had taken a violent spite against Mr. Beatty, who keeps a marble yard in Girard avenue, above Thir-teenth street. She went to his place, and deliberately smashed up a tombstone that was standing in the yard. She was arrested and taken before Alderman Fitch, who committed her in-default of $800 ball.

Henry Dubbs was also arrested about mid-night last night on the charge of malicious mischief, at the corner of Germantown avenue and Jefferson street. It appears that Henry had been on a bender, and being rather of a sportive disposition, amused himself by breaking things generally in that locality. He was airested, however, while in this jocular mood. and taken before Alderman S hoemaker, who committed him in default of $500 bail to answer.

Assaulting an Officer.-As Officer Houseworth, of the police, was walking along his beat, in the neighborhood of Second and Chatham streets, he noticed a number of young rowdies standing at that corner and blocking up the passage way. He went over to them and requested them to clear the way, in a very civil manner. One of the rowdies, who gave the name of Matthew Love ("What's in a name?"), turned on him, and used the most insulting and abusive language towards him. Officer Houseworth undertook to arrest him, when Love made violent assault upon him, tearing the coat from his back. For a few moments the combat waxed fierce and hot, but the valor and prowess of the officer prevailed, and Love was put hors de combat, and had to surrender at discretion. The victorious officer marched his prisoner of to Alderman Cloud's office. After a hearing, that gentleman held Love in $1000 bail to answer at Court the charge of assault and battery.

A MASTERLY PIECE OF SWINDLING .- An enterprising individual, named Aaron Edwards, was arrested on a charge of obtaining goods under false pretenses. It appears that Edwards represented himself to several ot our wholesale establishments as a man in business, and well-to-do in the world. He represented that he had two torses in overging was doing a good business, and did not owe a man a dollar By such representations, it is alleged that he obtained bills of goods from some ten or twelve different merchants, averaging from $800 or $900 from each. After he had obtained the goods, it is alleged that he got his two stores sold out under a bogus execution from his brother, and pocketed the proceeds. Edwards was arrested for this neat little dodge, and was taken before Alderman Hurley, who held him for a further hearing.

TILL-TAPPING BY PROFESSIONALS.-Two young men, giving the names of Edward Baker and George Lennox, were arrested yesterday, about noon, for going through the till of a confectionery store that is kept by a Mr. William Mann, in Germantown road, above Norris street. They both went into the store, and, watching their opportunity, one of them reached over and took some four or five dollars from the money-drawer. Mr. Mann, however, saw them, and running after the thieves, had them ar-rested. They were taken before Alderman Cloud, and after a hearing in the case, were held in $800 bail each to answer at Court. of them hails from New York, and the other from this city. They are each about twenty years old, and are evidently professionals.

NEARLY A DROWNING CASE,-About eight o'clock last evening, as a gentleman named Edward Griffiths, who resides in Bordentown, New Jersey, was standing on the pier the second wharf above Walnut street, he suddenly fell overboard. As Mr. Griffiths was not a good swimmer, his involuntary bath would have been the last he would ever have taken, if Officer Grimes, of the Harbor Police, had not jumped in after him and got him out. As a matter o course, Mr. Griffiths was very grateful to the man who saved his life, and expressed his most heartfelt thanks for saving him from a watery

A PETTY LARCENY .- A woman, by name White and by color black, was arrested for appropriating to her own use, without asking the consent of the owner, a pair of gaiters Now Margaret White was imprudent enough to let her little theit become known, and she arrested at Ninth and South streets yesterday, whilst airing the stolen gaiters. When taken whilst airing the stolen gaiters. When taker before Alderman Morrow, Margaret was unable to satisfy that gentleman that she had com-into the possession of the coveted gatters in legal manner, and she was in consequence held in $400 bail to answer at Court the charge of larceny.

A SAD CASE OF DROWNING .- On Thursday afternoon last, as a couple of small children were playing at Pine street wharf, one of them, Henry Connor by name, who was but seven years old, fell in the river, and was drowned. Efforts have since been made to recover the body, but without success. In case it is found by any one, he will do a great favor to the mother by sending information of the fact to her residence, at the corner of Pine and Penn

LEGAL INTELLIGENCE.

Court of Oyer and Terminer-Judges Alicson and Ludiow.—The case of James Monaghan, charged with the killing of James T. Moore, con-t nued from yesterday, on account of the list of jurors having been exhausted by challenges, was resumed this morning.

Thomas B. Dwight, Esq., opened the case for the Commonweath, and stated the facts which he expected to prove to the jury.

Dr. Atlee sworn—I attended upon Moore, the deceased; I flist saw him on Thesday. August 15, 1865, at 2 o'clock; he was in the bed-room of his house, in Locust street, between Tenth and Eleventh; I found him in a state of collapse; that is, scarcely any pulse, cold hands, feet, and nose; upon examining his person I tound a wound in front of the abdomen, through which wound the omentum was protruding; there was also another wound over the region of the right kidney; those were the only wounds; he died on the following Saturday morning, August 19, his rear also another wound the same to the collection of the collection. 19; his men at condition remained the same up to the time I saw him; he was able to converse clearly and intelligently; when I first saw him I consider d his condition necessarily fatal; on Thursday, when his concition necessarily fatal; on Thursday, when I found that his urine contained blood, I fet certain that it was fata; I frequently saw him during his illness; the deceased said that he did not expect to get well of the wound; I told him he had better arrange his worldly affairs, and that he should do something for his siste; he said he wished everything to go to his wife.

Upon being questioned as to the conversation which took place between him and the deceased. the wi-ness said be could not recollect any phranes and by the decreased in relation to firing or dving. I advised him to get a clergyman and arrangs his spiritual affairs. I saw the clergyman there several times.

Dr. Shapleigh, the Coroner's physician, was then sworn, and testified as follows—I made a post mor-tem examination of the body of James Moore; there were two wounds; one on the back, beneath the lower rib, two inches and a half to the right of the spine, made by a penetrating instrument. In hin-strument had passed inward and forward between the right kidney and the spinal column. The death of this wound was two inches and a half. I here was a wound in the abdomen, half an inch long on a line with the naval and the htp bone, about half way between them. This would penetrated the wals of the abdomen. The omentum and intestines were cut. The cavity of the abdomen was field with blood. The deceased came to his death from hamourhase, in consequence of the wound in the abdomen I have described. A pocket-knife would have inflicted the wound.

have inflicted the wound. Margaret Lochery sworn—I am sister of the de-orased I saw Dr. Shap eigh at the house II was my brother's body that he made a post-mortem ex-amination on. His name wa-James Thomas Moore. He was twenty-six years o.d.

James McLaughlin sworn—I know deceased; the affair took place in Sansom street, below E eventh, on the south side; I saw the deceased there; he was a delegate to the convention; as I was walking up Sansom street towards Eleventh the word Mona-Sansom street towards Eleventh the word Monaghan was mentioned; I never saw the prisoner, to know him, until I saw him in court; I saw Moore at the convention; I went to the tavern on the corner; Moore was following behind; some one knocked me down into the street; I retreated to vards a lumber pile; I heard some (one say. "Look out—he has a knife;" I fell down on the lumber pile, and was beaten badly; some one cut at me with a knife; while on the lumber pile I heard some one cry out, "Kill him;" I did not see Moore cut, nor did I see him immediately afterwards; I believe the accused was there, but I could not say positively.

Alderman McWulkin sworn—I saw Moore, after the wound was inflicted, in bed, at his residence in Locust sireet; it was on the lith of August, 1335; I saw him after that several times; I visited the house for the purpose of taking his dying declaration: I saw him the night before he died; there was nothing aw him the night before he died; there was nothing said about his dissolution then; he was in a situa-tion that he could not speak to me, rolling around in the bed; that was the first time I thought he was

Jane Figherty sworn—I am the wife of the deceased; I was living with my husband at the time of his death; he had his senses until five minutes before his death; he died on Saturday morning a little after 8; he knew well that he wal dying; so did 1; he said he was dying; the elergyman was there for the last time about half-past 7 on Saturday morning; I was in the room; the cloragement had him good-by when he left; he told him gyman bid him good-by when he left; he told him that he would never see him again to told him that he would never see him again, that he going to die; he said that he knew that; the rites of the church were administered on Friday the clergyman first came on Wednesday, when he was cut, and continued making calls until Saturday.

The Court then adjourned until 3 o'clock.

DIPLOMATIC CORRESPONDENCE.

Opinions of European Courts on American Affairs-France and Mexico-Intercession of the Pope for Jefferson Davis -Instructions of Mr. Seward.

WASHINGTON, October 30 .- Again and again have the Courts of Europe expressed to the authorities at Washington their strong desire for the safety of Jen. Davis. From the large quantities of letters deposited in the archives of the State Department we present the following, showing the desire of European Governments that Mr. Davis' life be spared;—

MR. SIGELOW TO MR. SEWARD.

UNITED STATES LEGATION, PARIS, May 26. 1866.—Sir:—I lear our Government will not succeed in giving entire satisfaction to the ruling classes on this side of the Atlantic, whatever we may do. They seemed very much dis-satisfied, at the commencement of the war, that our armies were not more destructive; when they became more destructive, the same parties censured us for blood-initistiness and insensi-bility to the blessings of peace. Now that peace has come, and we have reason to count upon a general jubiles in Europe, there appears to be more discontent than ever. The great grievances at present are, first, President John-son's proclamation offering a reward for the de-fivery of Davis to the officers of justice; second, the reported emission of the reported emigration of discharge I soldiers to Mexico: third, the trial of Booth's accompliers with closed doors.

The readiness with which all these prestiges are seized to weaken the impression which our unexpected friumph over what were deemed insurmountable entourrassments has a tendency to produce, shows how great is the importance attached to our example.

The proclamation putting a price on Davis head will be generally condemned by the Latin race, who are so accustomed to see a price put upon the heads of their most meritorious citi zens that they feel an instinctive sympathy for any one who wears that flattering penalty. I think nothing that has happened during our war has produced so unpleasant an effect upon our friends here, though their impressions always yield to proper explanations when there is an opportunity of making them. In regard to Mexico, the impression produced by the recent news from the United States has amounted to a panic. Some military successes of the Liberais in Mexico are associated in the public mind with the emigration schemes advertised in the New York and Washington papers, which are supposed to respond to a public sentiment beyond the control of the Government. The absence of the Emperor at the moment aggravates the alarm, and leaves the community a prey to rumors of the most disturbing character.

I dined with M. Fould on Tuesday evening. He sought several opportunities to talk with me of Mexican affairs. I assured him that he had nothing to lear from the United States; that the formidable enemies of the Archduke Maximilian, were those of his own household, the Mexicans. He expressed a doubt whether our Government and its friends would be strong enough to maintain our neutrality. I told him that, so far as I could judge, there were not, nor were there likely to be, two considerable parties on our Mexican policy; that whatever the Government decided to do would be pretty universally accepted by the people, because it would be likely to reflect their deliberate wishes, one of which I felt sure was to preserve friendly relations with France.

He said be thought that the best way to remove all difficulty between the three countries, and to resolve all embarassing questions, wa for us to recognize the new Government. This view he enforced with a few obvious remarks. I heard him through, and then remarked that he had opened a question which would require me, for its discussion, to go further back in the history of our respective countries than was pos sible on such a festive occasion, but I felt pre pered to say to him that but for the unfriendly tone of the official press, and the abounding evidence of a willingness, it not a desire, on the part of influential classes in France to see our republic weakened by a per-marent disunion, the Emperor would probably have experienced no difficulty in coming early to a satisfactory arrangement with one Government about Mexico. Unhappily, the impression had got abroad among our people that the Emperor had undertaken to build up an empire in Mexico upon the ruth; of our republic, and it would take yet some time and some substantial proofs of good seeling on his part to remove this impression. His Excellency grose from his sent at this remark, which I was preparing to elaborate a little, and said that was a subjecthat would take us too far to discuss on that occasion, and after a few more words our inter view ended.

it ended rather abruptly, because M. Fould is entirely of my opinion; he has been opposed from the outset to this expedition. He feels that he is gradually sinking, officially, under the weight of its burdens; and having no response to make to the view I presented, he did not wish to be betrayed into admissions unbecoming his position; at least such was my

He introduced me, in the course of the evening, to Baron Dus-in the elder, who is a very important arm of the Government, though now 85 years of age, and whose sympathies have been rather with the insurgents than with the Gov ernment during the late Rebellion. He also showed great solicitude about Mexico, and scemed greatly relieved by my assurance that, regardless of the example set by other nations, and faithful to all our traditions, we should make our people, if any were otherwise disposed, respect our neutral obligations.

I mention these facts to show that the anxiety which is reflected by the press here and in England is not exaggerated; and as the foundation for a suggestion which I think it my duty to make to you. It is that, as far as possible, we avoid giving any pretext to this Government upon which public opinion can be railled against u. It is in a critical situation, and, I think, on the eve of a very im-portant it not desperate step in reference to Mexico. Something must be done, and speedily. It is important that we neither do not permit anything that will relieve the situation at our expense, for we now need all the good feeling in Europe that we can possibly inspire to re-pair the waste of our war. If we alienate France, or even establish an unfriendly feeling here, it will poison all the official journalism in Europe towards us, notwithstanding the univer-ally acknowledged folly of the Mexican They all have less affection for the Monroe doctrine than they have for France or Mexico I hope, therefore, that our Government will protect itself by all dignified means, from any suspicion of conniving at the military schemes if there are any maturing in the United States against Mexico, and show the old countries of Europe to how much better use we can put them than by tighting them. I would hardly trouble you with a suggestion apparently so superfluous as this, if I did not feel that, where men are in desperate circumstances, they may do desperate things, and severeigns are but men.

MR. KING TO SEWARD.

LEGATION OF THE SIT:—I had the honor yesNovember IS, liferview with the Holy Father, terday, of sh long and interesting conversation and enior about American affairs, as well as the withton of things in Italy and Europe. The rope had many questions to ask about the progress of events in the United States, and expressed great satisfaction at the return of peace and the reconstruction of the Union. He inquired particularly as to the health of the President, whose life, he trusted, would be spared, that he might finish the work he had so well begun. He warmly approved the clemency which that he might lines the work he had so well begun. He warmly approved the clemency which had been shown the Rebelleaders, and hoped, he said, that Jefferson Davis would also receive the Executive pardon. The most difficult problem he thought for the United States to solve was the prepar disposition of the persons of the preparation. the thought for the United States to solve was the proper disposition of the negroes; and he seemed to appreheng that we should find the question a troublesome one. Passing to European affairs, his Holiness re marked that there was great political agitation all over the continent; not in Halv only, but in Germany, Spain, France, and England, there seemed to be trouble brewing. Ireland was restless and discontented, and Fenianism uttered ominous threats. He had no idea, he said, that this movement would affect British rule in Ireland, for the ocean which rolted between the United States and Great British forbade the idea of invasion. But Canada, with its extensive and exposed frontier, offered an easy prize, and thither, he thought, the Fenians might turn their amps. It would be for the advantage of all parties, the Holy Father remarked, that the United States should take Canada and incorporate to into the American Union, rather than allow the Panians to possess the inselves of it. Better that it should be done by a regularly constituted government than by a revolutionary and Bresponsible organization, subject to no ontrol, and liable to every excess. His Holluess spoke, I thought, despondingly of the aspect of affairs in Italy. Within another fortuight, he said, Savony and Bayaria would reorganize the kingdom of Victor Emanuel. The Emperor of France was about to withfraw from Italy and other rows about to withfraw from Italy and other rows about to withfraw from Emperor of France was about to withdraw from Italy, and 'the poor. Pope would be left all alone in his little beat, in the misst of the tempestuous ocean." What would happen God alone knew, and to His will and protection the Holy Father committed himself. I expressed the hope that no serious trouble would occar in Rome, and reminded his Holiness that it was the duty of the diplomatic carry to share his the duty of the diplomatic corps to share his fortunes and remain near his person.

Yes, he said, and during the revolutionary movement of 48, when he had sought refuge in movement of '48, when he had sought refuge in the palace of the Quirinal, the diplomatic corps all hurried thither, and formed, as it were, a cordon around him, so that, in the midst of the tumult and firing, he remained calm and tranquil, this Holiness adverted to the concessions which the different Governments of Europe seemed to be making as to the revolutionary spirit of the sgc. They would not, he said, satisfyl those who were chamoring for change, but only encourage them to make further demands until they would finish by telling the Governments themselves that they could size Governments themselves that they could dis-pense with their further services. Evidently the Holy Father looked upon the condition of affairs in Europe as anything but satisfactory, and it was with deep and manifest emotion that he referred to the Supreme Ruler of the universe as his only guide and refuge in the apprehended troubles.

After taking my leave of his Holiness, I paid the customary visit to the Cardinal Secretary of State, and was received by him with his wonted kindness and courtesy. His eminence, who watches with close attention the progress of events in America, referred with a court attention. events in America, referred with great satisfac-tion to the reported interview of a delegation from South Carolina with the President of the United States, and to the language used and the sentiments avowed by Mr. Johnson on that occasion. His eminence cordially assented to the justice of the President's views, and expressed his warm and carnest approval of the course pursued by the Federal authorities in re-establishing law, order, and civil government among the people of the States so tately in rebellion against the Union. A policy at once wise and so humane deserved, as it could not fail, be thought, to secure complete success.

The cholera still prevails with great severity at Naples, but as yet there has not been a case in Rome, and the authorities here hope to escape the visitation of the pestilence, at least during the present season. Meantime very stringent quarantine regulations continue to be entorced all along the Papal frontiers, and the result is that Rome is comparatively deserted, though at this period of the year it is usually crowded with visitors from all quarters of the

The French troops continue to leave Rome by detachments, and Count Sartiges, the Ambassador of France, remarked to me a few days since that within a year there would not be a single French soldier left in the Papal territory.

I have the honor to be, very respectfully, your obedient servant.

RUFUS KING.

Hon. WILLIAM H. SEWARD, Sec. of State, etc.

The Wills of the Lost-Mrs. Cunningham Burdell.

From the New Orleans Bee. We have already noticed the opening, in the Second District Court, of the successions of two celebrated keepers of fashionable bagnt's in this city, known by the names of Jennie King and Bianca Robbins, said to have been lost on the Evening Star. Both left large property, and, in the case of the latter, it will be remembered that Dr. Follin, as agent, deposited in Court, to the credit of the succession, no less than $7000

Thus it would seem that these women have been wonderfully successful in enriching them-selves from the purses of the profugate, to the ruin of how many dissolute young men and women will probably never be known this side of the bar of future accountability. The succession of another of these lost women,

Miss Flora Burdell, lost, perhaps, in more senses than one, and supposed to have gone down on the ill-fated Frening Star, has just been opened here by James McCrackin, who petitions for the registry and execution of her will, alleging that "deceased left a nuncupative testament, by public act, by which she appointed him her testamentary executor and administrator of her estate." In a codicul to her will, the deceased says:— My name is Flora Burdell. I am a native of New York. I have no heirs except my mother, whose name is Mrs. William Caulfield, now residing at Yorkville, in the State of New York, It is my wish and desire that Miss Hattle Carson should become legatee to all my household furniture, fixtures, and personal property, now contained in my house on Custom House street, in the Second District of this city, on condition that she, the said Hattie Carson, shall pay, or cause to be paid, the balance due to Miss Neily Otis on said furniture and fixtures and after she shall have real said. tures; and after she shall have paid said in-debtedness, now amounting to the sum of debtedness, now amounting to the sum of $24,000, and shall pay, or cause to be paid, the further sum of $12,000 to my mother, that being the amount of cash already paid by me on account of said furniture, fixtures, etc., all more fully detailed in the bill of sale of the same from the said Nelly Otis to me. And I constitute and appoint James McCracken, of this city, my executor of this will or codicil. It is not my lesire to affect or alter my previous will made in relation to property out of this State. And I wish said James McCracken to collect from Miss Hattie Carson the above sum of $12,000 and to remit the same to my said mother when collected.
