TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 6, 1866.

To-Day.

October heard the expression of popular opinion of seven of the Commonwealths of the American Union on the great issues of the day. It requires no arguer to translate the meaning of the verdict rendered by the States at the polls. Their expression of opinion was a decided one, and by their action they declared in favor of the reconstruction plan of Congress and in opposition to the Executive policy. At that election sixty members of Congress were chosen, of which number the Republicans secured forty-eight, and the Democracy the remaining twelve.

To-day twelve more States are called upon for their decision, and their utterances settle forever the present issues of the day. New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Delaware, Maryland, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Missouri, Minnesota, Kansas, and Nebraska speak to-day between the rising and the setting sun; and what will be their decision? To calculate with anything like certainty is, of course, impossible; but from contact with the leading Republicans of most of the States; we are enabled to know what they hope and what they expect to do. In order that our readers can compare their expectations with what they really accomplish, we will give an estimate of the greatest success it is safe to anticipate for the Republican party. It may be that we will go above what to-day will develop, but it is hardly probable that events will show that we have been too modest in estimating our strength.

Massachusetts elects a Governor and State ticket, and ten Congressmen. We can hardly hope to do better than our majority in 1865, when we had 48,055, and all the delegation. In fact, a slight loss must be anticipated, as the offices so lavishly distributed ought to have an effect in decreasing our party strength. If we get forty thousand majority, we will be well satisfied.

New York is the great field of contest, and on her depends more than on any other State, the moral effect of the contest. We anticipate the re-election of Governor Fenton by not more than ten thousand majority. If we have five thousand we will be doing very well. In 1864 we carried the State by but eight thousand, though last year we had twenty-seven thousand, due to the inactivity of our opponents. The result can be told almost as soon as we hear from New York city. If she does not give more than thirty-five thousand majority for Hoffman, Fenton is elected. It gives us as much as forty thousand, the result is doubtful. Such are the statements given us by the Tribune. We look most anxiously, therefore, for the vote in the Empire City. The Congressional delegation in that State stands twenty-one Republicans to ten Democrats. We hope to gain one member, but the more cautious of our party will be well satisfied if we hold our own.

In New Jersey the only officers voted for are Congressional and Legislative. The present Congressional delegation stands two Republicans to three Democrats. The Republicans are confident of gaining one more district, the Fifth, and electing G. A. Halsey, and also hope to win in "Jack" Rogers' district, and elect a fourth Republican Congressman. If they do this, it will indeed be a glorious victory in Jersey. The fight over the Legislature is rendered interesting by the death of Senator Wright. The members elected will have the choice of his successor. At present the Republicans have a majority of one in the Senate, and eight in the House. A slight loss will therefore change the complexion of the body. Whatever may be the result, no credit is due to the State Central Committee of our party for any victory which may be achieved.

In Delaware, a Governor and Congressmen are voted for. The Republican canvass has been exciting, and every possible step taken to secure us victory. We entertain great hopes of success. Should we triumph, the majority cannot exceed two hundred. In any case, the decision will not be more than that either way. The majority against us in 1864 was 672.

The news from Maryland renders the election of three Republicans to Congress certain. That is the same result as in 1864, but by the desertion of one of our representatives, it really gives us an additional vote in the House.

Michigan elects a Governor and Congressmen, and in this State we anticipate a Republican gain. In 1864 we had 16,000 majority, and it would cause no surprise if the victory this year runs it up as high as 20,000. The delegation is solid Republican, and will stand like the Macedonian phalanx, unbroken, in the Fortieth Congress.

We expect such great things from Illinois, that we will not venture to speak of Logan's majority. Two years ago Mr. Lincoln had 30,000 in the State. The delegation stands eleven Republican to three Democratic. There can be hardly any gain as to the numerical strength, but in the total vote we think that the Prairie State will astonish even those who anticipate such a victory as we do.

Wisconsin last year gave us 10,081 majority and 6 Republicans to 1 Democrat. We think that she will do better in the total vote than last year, but fear that her delegation will not be made a unit in the cause of liberty. In our estimate of all the extreme Western States, we have only to be guided by what the speakers and journals say, and we may be anticipating too much.

Reports from Missouri are so extremely conflicting, and such an extraordinary system, or rather the absence of all system, rules there in regard to Congressional districts, that we dare not hazard an opinion. We had a majority in 1864 of some 40,000, and the present delegation stands eight to one in favor of the radicals. If she does anything like as well this year, the country will be satisfied.

In Minnesota the chief interest centres in the Congressional delegation. At present the two members are Republicans. Fears are entertained lest we lose one of them, but we cannot see how they are well founded. We only secured, however, a majority of 3500 on the Governor's vote last year.

Kansas will, of course, go Republican by an immense majority. As two Senators are to be elected by the Legislature, in the place of Messrs. Lane, deceased, and Pomeroy, term expired, the interest centres there rather than in Congress.

Such is an estimate of what the Republicans in the various States tell us they are going to do. By to-morrow we will see how many of them have fulfilled their expectations.

We Have Won!

DESPITE the machinations of most unscrupulous leaders, and the desperate designs of unrepentant and furious Rebels, the Union men of Baltimore have won. For ten days the contest has been most bitter. The Governor of the State, casting aside the mask of impartiality, or even the semblance of judicial fairness, became at once the partisan accuser and the judge of the Police Commissioners. The result was as we had all along anticipated. With a bitter charge as a decision, he declared the old Commissioners removed, and appointed bogus officers, who were tools of his own, to conduct an election at which only loyal men should be allowed by law to vote. Hoping to be backed by armed troops of the United States, and ready at any time to shed blood in order that his desperate design could be consummated, Swann took steps towards usurpation unheard of in our land. He even went so far as to secrete arms in the city, and employ a band of desperadoes to use them. But the undaunted front shown by the Unionists is having its effect. They found that the United States Government, whatever might be its sympathy, dared not interfere. The bold loyal Police Commissioners are conducting the election to day in Baltimore. The Rebels are being refused the right of suffrage, and their ballots rejected. The Attorney-General of the State has declared that the law is on our side, and despite all traitorous combinations, we will gain all we desired—elect our radical representatives, and send a good Union man to fill the seat of Hon. J. A. J. Creswell in the Senate.

BRITAIN, TREMBLE!—We published yesterday a despatch which requested the British Government to tremble, as the Fenians had held a meeting somewhere, and declared that they would never cease to attack the usurper, and seek to free their country and secure revenge. We are not certain whether perfidious Albion will consent to tremble or not, but we are at a loss to see, first, why she should comply, and secondly, what good the Fenians would gain by her having a fit of ague. If it is merely for the morbid satisfaction of seeing the throne of England act as though it were suffering from the Mississippi chills, we think that the minds of the sons of Erin must tend rather to the examination of disease, than seek the political freedom of their native land.

Poor Britain! we pity her. "But yesterday she might have stood against the world." And now, with this dreadful threat ringing in her ears, she must be shivering with terror. Of course, she will be so overcome with dread as not to dare to hang Lynch and McMahon. That is evidently what the declarers of this dreadful insinuation of eternal vengeance feel convinced of. It is a master stroke of policy to seek to secure the release of the prisoners; and if the Brotherhood wish to culminate their policy, let them organize another invasion, and start from some hamlet on Lake Superior. If that don't "strike more terror to the soul of Richard," and cause the release of Lynch, it will be because Great Britain is determined to decline to tremble, and is rashly daring the Fenians to do their worst. Would that, for her own good, she only knew what terrible fellows they are!

FROM MEXICO.

Resignation of Maximilian—His Departure from the City of Mexico—General Bazaine in Charge of the Government.

WASHINGTON, November 5.—Minister Romero to-day received the following letter by way of New Orleans, dated Vera Cruz, October 26, 1866:—"Maximilian left the city of Mexico on the 22d inst., resigning verbally in favor of General Bazaine. General Bazaine endeavored to persuade him to delay his departure until General Castellan's arrival, two days later; but he declined, and, escorted by 800 Austrians, proceeded to Orizaba by crossroads to avoid meeting with General Castellan. He reached Orizaba yesterday, and is expected here to-morrow. The captain of the Austrian frigate Donatista sister that as soon as Maximilian arrives he will at once leave for Europe. It is said that Maximilian will publish to-day a manifesto at Orizaba. General Castellan reached the City of Mexico soon after Maximilian left, and took possession of the Palace and assumed the "name of government. The French soldiers who had entered under Maximilian's colors will be returned to France under General Castellan's influence. General Porfirio Diaz has captured the city of Oaxaca, taking all the artillery, ammunition, men, and supplies.

—Why are Swann's Police Commissioners like the "Boys in Blue"? Because they are Young and Valiant.
