The Election in Missouri.

In regard to no State does the Republican triumph achieved on last Tuesday afford us more sincere satisfaction than in regard to Missouri. Imperial in her domain, exhausted in her resources, and standing in the very gateway of that mighty commerce with the plains, the mountains, and the Pacific coast, which bids fair soon to revolutionize the course of trade throughout the world, it was of the last importance that Missouri should be held firm to the cause of loyalty, liberty, and human progress.

THE NEW YORK MAJORITY.—The Republican majority, as fuller returns come in from the rural districts, already exceeds fourteen thousand, and will probably reach to over fifteen thousand. Leaving the city out of the account, the Republicans carry the State by over sixty thousand majority!

“We wonder what Seward thinks now about a party without a leader?” And where is the forty thousand conservative majority he prophesied? He has come no nearer the mark than he did in his celebrated “ninety days” prophecy at the beginning of the war.

THE KING OF ITALY IN VENICE.—King Victor Emmanuel entered Venice in triumph on Wednesday. He had the grandest reception from the people, the enthusiasm being unbounded. Italy's dream is at last realized, and the fruition of centuries of hope is finally hers.

KANSAS.—We think Sidney Clark, of Kansas, will probably be able to boast of the largest majority given to any member of Congress. His is said to be about 13,500. The soul of old John Brown still “marches on” in Kansas without much opposition.

OUR PARIS LETTER.

[EVENING TELEGRAPH SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.] PARIS, October 28.

The Health of the Emperor Napoleon.—The various reports which have, for the last three months, been in circulation relative to the Emperor's health, have kept the Europeans in a constant state of quo vivo. However, we may now look forward to a little less anxiety on this head, as His Majesty returned to St. Cloud a few days ago, in excellent health, from Biarritz, having derived great benefit from his holiday in the south of France.

The Universal Exhibition.—Our attention in Paris is now concentrated on the approaching World's Fair. Of the questions now is—How, and by what means, a hundred thousand persons are to get every day, whether on foot or by conveyance, to the Exhibition? It must not be lost sight of that it will be situated at one of the extremities of Paris, and that starting simply from the centre of the city, the distance to the Exhibition and back, together with the ground to be gone over in the building itself, will make a journey of not less than several hours to the majority of the visitors.

The number of these vehicles arriving every day at the Exhibition is estimated at 20,000, the half of which will want to take back their fares. Thus, the arrival of 20,000 carriages, and standing room in the neighborhood of 10,000, is what may be anticipated, and ought to be provided for. The first question is, Where are the open approaches for such a concourse? and the second, Where is the space reserved for standing room? Let us consider the latter. For an ordinary carriage drawn by one or two horses, at least fifteen square metres of space is requisite, not only for standing room, but to be enabled to turn round when called for.

As to the approaches for carriages arriving at the Exhibition, it will be found that, adding together the width of the streets and avenues leading to it from the Paris side, whence nine-tenths of the visitors will come, there will be a total breadth of way of 167 metres, furnished by the Pont de Jena, the Quai d'Orsay, and the Quai de Belfort. Is that sufficient? We may judge by comparing it with the provision made for this purpose at the Grand Opera, where we find an outlet of 230 metres, supplied by the Rue Lafayette, the Rue de Valenciennes, and the Rue de Valenciennes.

The Correctional Tribunal of the Seine, a few days ago, heard the case brought before the Court by the law officers of the Crown, against M. Dumoulin, aged thirty; De Fonville, aged twenty-eight; Alexandre de Girardin, aged twenty-seven—all three attached to the staff of the Liberte-Chonchette, aged forty-four, a writer and librarian to the Senate; and St. Valery, editor of the Le Pays, for having been concerned in the duel which took place on the 2d instant, in the woods of Vincennes, between M. Sarcey, theatrical critic of the Opinion Nationale, and M. Dumoulin, editor of the La Liberté.

The fatal case of the late Senator Wright, who died in Maryland, to succeed Senator Creswell. We secure two from Kansas of the right sort—a gain of one, as the late Senator Lane had proved unreliable. We hold our own in Missouri, Wisconsin, Illinois, New York, and Nevada, each of which elects a Senator the coming winter. We thus add one to our previous gains of four in the September and October elections.

The Fourth New Jersey District.—HILL, the Republican candidate in the Fourth New Jersey District, beats Jack Rogers and Huyler combined. We don't know what the Democrats will do for a “leader” in the next House of Representatives, now that poor Jack is laid on the shelf.

THE FATE OF THE CANADIAN PRISONERS.—The Canadian Government. It is said, has concluded to remit the death penalty in the cases of the condemned Fenian prisoners, substituting therefor imprisonment for a term of years. It would be better for Canada, and for all concerned, to let them go free.

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION IN NEW YORK.—In New York a vote was taken at the late election on the question of calling a Constitutional Convention for the revision of the Constitution of the State, resulting largely in its favor. A convention will therefore be held, and extensive modifications of the Constitution will doubtless be made.

Benedetti, by which the last named, announced the sending, by order of the French Minister of Foreign Affairs, a present, consisting of a large chalice, with cover and saucer, two cruets, and a bell, all in massive silver, richly gilt, and contained in an elegant coffer, ornamented with figures of precious stones inlaid, and the letter N surmounted by a crown.

THE FASHIONS.

Winter Styles of Cloaks and Furs.—The cold weather of November will soon dispel the fads, basques, and bouffants, made of silk and light materials which have been so much worn during the past two months. For this change the importers and manufacturers have already made their preparations, and at all the leading establishments in the city the fashions of winter cloaks are rich and varied. These cloaks are more elaborately trimmed than formerly, the heavier fabrics with jet fringe and jet embroidery, while false silk is much used for trimming velvet.

The basquine, which was the prevailing style last year, will be worn by those who prefer it. A loose peplum, with a collar in the style of a general favorite. Short, round necks, made up of heavy material, for comfort and sedate attire will be the fashionable style; some will be vandyked around the bottom, or scooped and trimmed or side perfectly plain, except that there will be ornaments on the shoulders. For suit the taste and means of the wearer. Circulars are also quite in favor, particularly those made with a military cape, when rounds in front and back, and the shoulders are straight. The peplum basque made either loose or close fitting, to suit, has many admirers, but is better accepted for fall wear than for severe cold weather.

The new designs for cloaks.—The tailors, which was the prevailing style last year, will be worn by those who prefer it. A loose peplum, with a collar in the style of a general favorite. Short, round necks, made up of heavy material, for comfort and sedate attire will be the fashionable style; some will be vandyked around the bottom, or scooped and trimmed or side perfectly plain, except that there will be ornaments on the shoulders.

—The Monsieur de Alger refuses the following extraordinary crime at El Afroun. After the completion of the sentence of a group of convicts, a Zouave, and the clerk of the prison contractor were drinking in a wine shop. After some conversation as regards wine, the overseer suddenly said to the Zouave, “I'll bet you five francs I will kill you at the first shot.”

—One of the “drugs” employed to cleanse the river Seine brought to the surface, a short time since, a large number of bronze tokens, bearing the date of 1710. These tokens bear on one side the figure of the Blessed Virgin, holding the infant Jesus in her arms, with the letters N. P. on the other side of the figure; on the reverse are marked in Roman capitals the number of sous which the Chapter of Notre Dame intended giving to the holder of the token. Above the number are carved a bunch of grapes, an acorn, and an ear of wheat. It will be remembered that the year 1710 was the one that followed the celebrated winter which was so severe that the greatest misery prevailed in Paris for several years afterwards.
