General Grant's Position.

It is amusing to note with what pertinacity the attempt is made again and again to assoclate the name of General Grant with the obnoxious acts of the President. We all remember how the presence of the General with the President during the "swinging around the circle" excursion of last summer was sought to be turned to political effect, until the General, in absolute self-defense, was obliged to declare that his presence with the party was purely official, and had no political significancy whatever. Now, again we are informed that the General was present in the Cabinet when the President's message vetoing the District of Columbia Franchise bill was read, and some of the reporters assume to say that he endorsed the sentiments of that document. Evidently the supposed popularity of General Grant is to be lugged in to support this last exercise of the veto power.

Now the probabilities are that the presence of the General on this last occasion had no political significancy; but it may be as well to say, in response to these persistent attempts to bolster up the fatal policy of the Executive, that the American people are not indebted to General Grant, or to anybody else, for their political opinions. General Grant has had great popularity; but why? Simply because he had shown himself a capable military leader, and was supposed to be in sympathy with the loyal masses of the people. As to the reputation of a statesman, he never has had it. The people have loved him for his loyalty and devotion to the cause of the Union in connection with the suppression of the Rebellion. Now it anything has been shown with more clearness than another throughout this whole great struggle, it is that no man's military reputation is sufficient to secure his endorsement by the people, if he be unsound upon the great principles of liberty and justice which underlie and give character to this mighty contest. It has been tried over and over again. McClellan tried it in 1864, and although no man was personally more popular with the army, he made a miserable failure before the people. General Slocum tried it in New York, and was beaten; General Morgan tried it in Ohio, and was beaten; Colonel Davis tried it in this State, and was beaten; and in not a single instance that we now call to mind, has a military chieftain succeeded before the people upon the conservative platform. No matter what his services, no matter what his distinction, the people will repudiate him as the representative of obnoxious political sentiments. General Grant has still great popularity with the people; but we advise him not to trifle with it. If he supposes that there is any magic charm about his name which can change the sentiments and purposes of this great nation in regard to the triumph of republican principles, he is fatally mistaken. These are times when public men must act with the great moral forces inspiring the nation, or be overwhelmed by them. Whosoever falls upon this stone shall be broken, but upon whomsoever it shall fall, it will grind bim to powder. We do not assume, in these remarks, that General Grant has abandoned the great Union organization and gone over to the enemy; but his position is equivocal, and that equivocal position is daily alienating from him the hearts of the people. He owes it to himself and to the splendid possibilities of his future, to throw off the toils which his own enemies and those of his country are apparently weaving about him.

The United States Senator from Pennsylvania. THE contest for the Republican nomination for United States Senator for the Keystone State, since the decision of the people in October showed that whoever the caucus selected would be the occupant of Edgar Cowan's seat, has been the most bitter of any which have occurred in our Commonwealth for many years. It is a well-known fact that the contest in our State for some time has been between General Cameron and Governor Curtin. The Guelph and Ghibelline feuds in Northern Italy are excellent types of the bitterness evinced by each party. As the day for the choice drew near, the excitement in the ranks of the Republican party grew more intense, and culminated yesterday in certain threats on the part of the opponents of General Cameron to bolt the nomination should the choice fall upon that gentleman. Last night the long-expected event came off, and none of our readers felt any surprise at the news that Simon Cameron was the successful competitor for the prize. The vote in the caucus stood :-Cameron.....

Grow ..... Absent The triends of Messrs, Curtin, Stevens, and Grow, had there been any chance of defeating General Cameron, would have united on a candidate. We may therefore consider the opposition to number 37, while Cameron had 46, or a majority of nine. Five votes would, therefore, have changed the result. The responsibility of the selection rests on five men, and to Philadelphia belongs the credit or discredit of making Cameron Senator. The representatives from our city who voted for that | in favor of Mr. Frelinghuysen, the present gentleman were Messrs, Connell and Ridg- | incumbent of the seat made vacant by the way, in the Senate, and DeHaven, Donohugh, Freeborn, Ghegan, Kerns, Marks, Subers, and Worrell, in the House. The rest of our delegates supported Curtin. While the result will not cause surprise, the details of the vote will astonish many. Having heard so much of Mr. Stevens' chances, the people had grown to believe (that he possessed considerable strength; and the fact that Mr. Grow and he had almost an equal number, is an unexpected revelation to those who do not know the hollowness of an assumed legislative strength-

However, after a flerce fight, Mr. Cameron bas received the Republican nomination. Mr. Edgar Cowan has been honored with that of the Democracy. The contest is not now between Curtin and Cameron, or Stevens and Cameron, but between Cameron and Cowan. If Cameron is defeated, Cowan will be elected. Under such circumstances, the duty of every lover of his country is plain. Whatever may have been his opposition to General Cameron, and however much he may have deemed that gentlemen unfitted for the honor offered him, he is now the standardbearer of the Republican party, and there can be no ground for a moment's hesitation between Simon Cameron and Edgar Cowan. Every member who opposed the nominee in caucus exercised an undoubted right, but by going into that body he tacitly agreed to abide by its decision. The decision is made, and it is the duty of every Republican member of the Legislature to stand by the choice of the party when the Houses go into an election.

General Cameron may be objectionable on personal grounds to certain portions of the party, but on all questions of principle he is as true as any of his competitors, while Edgar Cowan is both objectionable on personal and political grounds. He has violated his professions, he has abandoned his party, he has proved a traitor to principle; and were the issue but between him and the bitterest secessionist, or the most corrupt demagogue, we would hail the election of any opponent as an improvement on the Senator who now occupies the seat of Pennsylvania. Such being our view, we hold the duty of every member to be clear. He has shifted the responsibility of the selection to the shoulders of those who secured General Cameron's nomination in the caucus. When the Convention of the House meets, the only blame that can be laid upon any one is that of defeating the party candidate. Any blame to be attached to the selection rests on the forty-six gentlemen who made Cameron the Republican nominee. It is clearly the duty of the eighty-three Republicans to stand by the choice of the majority, regardless of all personal antipathies.

The New Senators in the Fortieth Congress.

THE formation of the United States Senate requires the choice of one third of its number by the State Legislatures every two years. Accordingly, with the assemblage of that body on the 5th of March will appear new occupants of seats; and the intellect, if not the politics, of the upper House will be largely affected by the influx. A number of the States have already elected their Senators. Hon. James A. McDougall, Democrat, of California, goes out, and Hon. Cornelius Cole, for several terms member of the lower House, and a consistent radical, takes his place. Hon. L. S. Foster, of Connecticut, President of the Senate, is succeeded by General O. S. Ferry, a firm adherent to Republican principles. He also has had considerable experience as a Representative. Missouri, so ably represented by B. Gratz Brown, withdraws him from his seat, and yesterday elected Hon. C. D. Drake as his successor Hon. Daniel Clark, of New Hampshire, has bis place supplied by Hon. James W. Patterson, who was formerly Representative from the Third District of that State. James W. Nesmith, Democrat, of Oregon, is succeeded by Hon. H. W. Corbett, with whom the people of this section of the land are not familiar. Vermont selects Judge L. P. Poland for the short term, and Hon. Justin S. Morrill, the able Chairman of the Committee of Ways and Means of the House, for the long term. These are the changes already made.

There yet remain, however, a large number of States which will make their choice on Tuesday next. We will mention the names of such gentlemen as are prominent candidates for the positions, and the various Commonwealths. The term of Hon. Lyman Trumbull, Chairman of the Judiciary Committee, is about to expire, and the contest for the succession is animated in Illinois. The present candidates are Judge Trumbull, General John A. Logan, and Governor Oglesby. The chances are slightly in favor of the firstnamed gentleman. The declination of Governor Lane, of Indiana, leaves a vacancy, and Governor O. P. Morton has evidently the inside track. There are a large number of other competitors for the post. Kansas is divided since the death of Lane, and for the seat of Samuel C. Pomeroy we have Senator Pomeroy, ex-Governor Carney, a General Lee, and Sidney Clarke. We cannot guess which will come out victor. Hon. Garrett Davis ceases to bore the Senate with his long harangues, and it is probable that General L. H. Rousseau will be his successor. Both he, Mr. Davis, and Governor Bramlette are desirous of the honor. The combination of Rebels and Government officials having made the Legislature of Maryland conservative, the Hon. J. A. J. Creswell will be succeeded by Governor Thomas Swann. In Nevada General James W. Nye will undoubtedly be re-elected. New Jersey has a pretty lively contest going on between f. T. Freling. huysen and Hon. George T. Cobb, with chances death of Senator Wright. In New York, Hon, Ira Harris desires to be retained, but the Kepublican caucus has seen fit to prefer the Hon. Roscoe Conkling-a gentleman decidedly active, but reputed rather superficial in his attainments. Ohio will in all probability return Hon, John Sherman, the chances of Governor J. D. Cox being very slim. In our own State the fight has been between Cameron, Stevens, and Curtin, but has been ended by the success of General Cameron, A. seat from Wisconsin, at present filled by Hon. T. O. Howe, will also be filled before the assembling of the new Congress. Such are the probable changes which will alter the complexion of the upper House. Taken altogether, we think the body will not degenerate under the additions to be made on the 5th of March.

Impartial Suffrage in the Territories. THE House of Representatives yesterday concurred in the Senate amendments to the bill providing for impartial suffrage in the Territories. As passed, the bill provides that there shall be no denial of the elective franchise in any of the Territories of the United States which are now, or may be hereafter, organized, to any citizen thereof, on account of race, color, and previous condition of servitude; and all acts and parts of acts, either of Congress, or the Legislative Assemblies of said Territories, inconsistent with the provisions of this act, are hereby declared null and

We fear that there is too much real democracy about this bill to secure the President's signature to it. It will pass, however, despite a veto, and the rule of impartial justice throughout the Territories of the United States will thus be established.

An Appeal to Humanity.

THE Macedonian voice comes to us from the South, which should not fall unheeded upon Christian ears. Evidences not to be doubted all unite to convince us that, in this civilized, freedom-loving country, there are thousands ef freedmen who are positively freezing to death for want of clothing. The association composed of ladies wao wish to supply these "wards of the nation," and who are, as their name implies, designed for the "Freedmen's Aid," are appealing to our citizens for such articles of clothing as, while useless to them, would be of inestimable value to the unfortunate negroes. Their appeal, founded on justice and humanity, should not be neglected by those who, being well clothed themselves, are too apt so forget the naked and penniless.

A CARD TO IRISHMEN.-We have received from Nathaniel R. Harris, late member of the Congress of the Fenian Brotherhood, a letter, which we publish elsewhere. In it he reiterates the views so often expressed by us, that Mr. James Stephens is utterly unreliable, and is at heart a traitor to any movement in favor of the freedom of Ireland. The position in the Brotherhood which has been held by Mr. Harris is sufficient to command the ear of the members of the Order.

PUBLIC LAND SETTLEMENTS .- The returns of the General Land Office show an increasing activity in the settlement of the public lands under the Homestead law. Quite a movement towards Florida on the part of the freedmen is taking place; and the old Emigrant Aid Society, which assisted in the early settlement of Kansas, is now taking steps to locate settlers in Florida.

THE NEW YORK SENATOR.-Roscoe Conkling was nominated for the United States Senate by the Republican caucus at Albany yesterday. His chief competitors were Senator Harris and Judge Davis, Mr. Greeley's name being withdrawn before the formal ballot. Mr. Conkling is a member of the present House of Representatives, and is a man of considerable ability.

THE AMENDMENT,-The Constitutional amendment was ratifled yesterday by the New York Assembly, the Senate having previously done so. It was also ratified by the upper House of the Illinois Legislature, and by the lower House of the Kansas Legislature. There is little or no doubt of its ratification by three-fourths of the States.

THE BILL providing for the assembling of the Fortieth, and each succeeding Congress, on the 4th of March of the year on which the Congressional term of office commences, has passed both branches of Congress. It is said that the President will sign this bill.

Adulterations of Food E'c -An attempt has been made, in England, to introduce some features of the French system of police. One, which finds much favor, is to compel a person caught adulterating food or giving false weight o post in a conspicuous place in his shop a notice of the fine inflicted. This principle has been carried to a curious extent in a recent case of libel against the Daily Telegroph. The jury, in returning their verdict, asked the judge to order the Telegraph to publish in its own columns a full report of the trial.
