MEETING OF THE IRON AND STEEL ASSOCIATION.

SPEECH OF HORACE GREELEY. WARMINGTON, Jan. 16,-The American Iron and Steel Association, commenced its annual meeting in this city, this morning. But little business, excepting the appointment of committees, was transacted at the morning session. The meeting this evening was very large and earnest, and many members of Congress and other prominent persons interested in the protection of native industry and manufactures, were present and participated.

The Convention was called to order at, eight o'clock, by the Vice President, Samuel J.

The Chairman called for the reports from the various committees appointed at the morning session. Mr. Scranton, Chairman of the Committee on the Tariff, stated that that Committee had a meeting, but nothing definite had been arrived at, and asked to have further time allowed in which to present a report. Further time was granted.

The following is an abstract of the resolutions adopted:-

Revolved, That while an increase of duties on ron and steel beyond those now existing may ron and steel beyond those now existing may cause a temporary increase in prices, the effect of protective duties which establish industries to the point of competition with rival imports is ultimately to reduce prices to consumers. It is beyond dispute that the duty imposed by the Morrill tariff on cast steel, amounting to 100 per cent, increase on previous rates, under which duty the production of American steel was greatly extended, brught down the price of the imported article from 165 cents a pound to 13 cents, and that when from 16) cents a pound to 13 cents, and that when gold was at $2.80, and the best English cast steel consequently had to be sold at 43 cents; American steel of equally good quality never sold for more than 32 cents, and it is also time that previous to the present extensive preparations in thiscountry to make Bessemer rails, the English agents charged for them $150 in gold, but dropped the price to $110 upon learning that we were going largely into the business under the expectation of an increase of the tariff.

Resolved, That the facts reported by the Special

Commissioner of the Revenue for use in the revision of the tariff, that "the wheat and corn crops of the United States, for 1865, amounted vision of the tariff, that "the wheat and corn crops of the United States, for 1865, amounted to $2,950,580 bushels; that of this quantity there were exported to Great Britain 2,208,552 bushels, as compared with 37,156,842 bushels imported into Great Britain from all other countries; that of the 4,832,988 hundred weight of wheat flour imported into Great Britain only 262,876 hundred weight were received from the United States, while on the other hand New England and the State of New York alone, in 1860, required 26,000,000 of bushels of wheat in addition to their own productions to make up their consumption, While of the walue of the whole agriculcultural products of the country for the same year, including hay, butter, wine potatoes, hemp and wool, as well as grain, but including cetten, rye and sugar only 2½ per cent, was estimated to have been exported, leaving 97½ per cent, for the home market consumption. These facts conclusively show the worthlessness of the foreign market to the farmers of this country, and demonstrate that the interest of the agriculturates in the United States likes the bush bushels. and demonstrate that the interest of the agri-culturists in the United States lies in building up home manufactures under the protection of tariffs, so as to increase the number of con-sumers of their products, to diminish the cost of their transportation, and to secure to them steady, sure and remunerative markets. Resolved. That half a century's experience proves that there can be no practical protection proves that there can be no practical protection to American farmers, except what they receive from the existence and extension of American manufactures; that every pound of imported iron, steel and copper, every yard of imported cloth, every pane of imported glass, every article imported, the elements of whose production we possess, are importations in manufactured form of farm products and labor which come in direct and injurious competition with the products of the farms and labor of the United States and the interests of labor of the United States and the interests of American farmers, mechanical laborers and manufacturers, are one and indivisible, and require that they should act together to secure the undisturbed possession of their own

Resolved. That we rejoice at the increase of protection given by the Finance Committee of the Senate to the wool growers of the United States, and would invite their co-operation to extend our country's mecanical industry so as to secure for themselves a permanent and ever improving market for their fleeces, in the suceful establishment of the American broadcloth and worsted manufacture, and in the ability of well-paid laborers and a busy people to buy and to consume.

The resolutions were unanimously adopted. The Chairman having extended an invitation to any gentleman present who felt interested in the objects of the Association to submit their views, loud calls were made for Hon. Horace Greeley, who came forward and made some very interesting remarks, which were loudly applauded. He said he thought he might fairly begin by congratulating the Association on a very decided improvement in the sentiment of Congress toward the protection of the imperilled branches of the national industry. (Applause.)

He had been here but a day, and yet in that day he had talked with quitea number of members of Congress, who did not stand by them as he thought they should have done in the action taken on the bill of the last session. He hailed this improvement with joy, the more because he considered it a result of a consultation with their constituents. It was a healthy uprising of public sentiment making itself manifest through the representatives of the people in Congress.

He would assure them that there were a half dozen Senators who voted to lay their bill on the table at the last session, or who did not vote at all, who are now prepared to sustain a measure at least as effective and protective in its character as that bill was. (Applause). They thought there was reason for deferring or postponing the bill of the last session. He regretted that they thought so, because while he admitted that that measure embodied some imperfections, as the most perfect bill that can be drawn will embody, still he would call the business men of this country to witness, that had that blil passed six months ago the amount of our indebtedness to Europe would have been seven hundred million dollars less than it is to-day. (Applause).

We should have called into or kept in our workshops a very large body of citizens who have been wandering about the country seeking subsistence or vainly staying at home walting for employment to some to them. In the city of New York there were over 500,000 ablebodied men and women vainly seeking for work. They wished to be useful, but no employment was furnished them, and in that state of affairs there were statesmen, so called, who coolly say shut up your manufactories, put out your forge fires.

What matters it whether these people be employed or not, if they are not employed in your shops they will find work somewhere else. He would say it was not time that they would find emplyment elsewhere. If they loose it there and the present condition of the country was a witness of that fact, it was true, as stated in the last of the resolutions, that an indispensable condition of the resumption of specie payment is a diminution of the flood of foreign products which are unpaid for, or paid for only with national promises, and sold at three-quarters of

There was no mystery about specie payment; neither those assembled nor any of the business men of the country will run to the Treasury of the United States for its gold, if it should proclaim to-morrow that it had resumed specie payment. He ventured to say, that the internal industry of the country would not call upon it for one hundred million dollars. He, himself, was connected with a business (the newspaper business) of something like a million of dollars,

, and be would not ask the Treasury for a thousand dollars of its gold, for paper money served

It might be very sound, it might be very sure, but he wanted something that could be inclosed in an envelope without letting folks know what it was, and this purpose was answered by the use of paper money. It we flood the country with goods in excess of the amount of our exports of produce, we must pay for it in one of two things—either in gold or these national promises to pay, and which are sold for three-fourths of their face value, although drawing larger interest than the bonds of the bankrupt Governments of Europe, which sell at par. It was indispensable to the honor and to the prosperity of this country that we should promptly at least return to solvency in the curhlm better. promptly at least return to solvency in the cur-

The importations and the importers stand in the way, for every man who imported $5,000,000 worth of goods called upon us for $5,000,000 of specie to pay for them, except so far as somebody else sends products to pay for them.

We had been importing as large a value in solid gold as we had exported of value in greenbacks, if not larger, and the consequence was seen in an immense exportation of our specte, and still more unfortunate exportation of our bonds.

The specie we had, but the bonds we had not earned, but simply promised, calling upon ourscives and our children to fulfill that promsse, it was a most fatal policy, and the grossest improvidence to see this country exporting our improvidence to see this country exporting our national promises to pay, with six per cent, interest in gold, and selling them for seventy-five cents on the dollar, to pay for British iron and British manufactures.

It was always pleasant to run in debt, but very painful to discharge that debt, and yet notwithstanding this fact, we continued flooding the country with these our promises to pay. We are not making money in this way, but losing it, and if we continue thus, the day is not very far distant when we will become bankvery far distant when we will become bank rupt. We were no longer engaged in war, and why then should we not undertake to pay as we go. We are able to produce through the unem-ployed men and women who throng our streets. all those articles for which we were now run-ning in debt. (Applause.) Which would be best, to employ our labor and produce in ob-taining for us what we need, or let them roam about the streets and run in debt to Europe for

After Mr. Greeley had concluded, Commissioner Wells arose and with great feeling denied the charge that he was a free trader.

Judge Kelley followed with a speech on the efforts which the British Free Trade League was making to disseminate free trade ideas, and to destroy protection, and held up a copy of a paper received to-day by every member of Congress, called The Free Trader. It was made up almost wholly of extracts from Commissioner Wells report, advance copies of which were sent to all the tree trade nursers of the country before to all the free trade papers of the country before it was sent to Congress.

THE DEAF AND DUMB INSTITUTION .- Yesterday afternoon the contributors and managers of the Deaf and Dumb Asylum held their annual meeting, at which Judge Sharswood presided, and J. J. Barciay acted as Secretary. The President read the annual report, as follows:-

President read the annual report, as follows:—
The number of pupils in the institution on the 1st of January last, was one hundred and seventy-five, viz:—Ninety-four boys and eighty-one girls. Since then there were received fifty-two mutes, twenty-five boys and twenty-seven girls. There are, therefore, now remaining one hundred and eighty-eight; ninety-nine boys and eighty-nine girls. During the year Amasa Pratt and Arthur H. Whitmore retired from the institution. Some inconvenience has resulted from the change of teachers, and an unusual degree of labor thrown on the Principal. Jacob D. Kirkhuff and Henry S. Pratt were appointed to fill vacancies.

Great care is given to the physical training, moral and intellectual culture of the pupils. They are provided with suitable diet and clothing, and enjoy regular exercise in the play-grounds. Their apartments are spacious and well ventilated. Every pupil, on admission, is examined medically and vaccinated. The health of the family has been excellent, and no deaths occurred during the year. Great harmony has pervaded the household, The usual studies have been pursued, and the conduct and improvement of the scholars has been satisfactory. A few cases have occurred duct and improvement of the scholars has been satisfactory. A few cases have occurred where pupils recommended have been found recommending are requested by the Board to acquaint themselves with the physical as well as mental capacity of the mutes. When the pupils are apt at articulations, instruction in them is given, but the directors and teachers are confirmed, by long experience, in the opinion, that it is injudicious to teach all to speak. The time thus wasted can be better employed in developing the mind and furnishing ployed in developing the mind, and furnishing to the pupils useful and general information. The Board had not deemed it advisable to pur-chase a site for a new building. When such a measure can be advantageously taken it will be attended to. The expenditures have been necessarily large, notwithstanding the economy pursued by the Board. The cost of each pupil exceeds the payments by about twenty dollars. During the year the Board lost by death two of its most valuable members, John P. Crozier and Jeremiah Hacker. The institution was one of the objects of Mr. Crozier's beneficence. To him it is indebted for two scholarships and a donation of fourteen thousand dollars, the foun-

ation of the building fund. The Roard has under consideration the subject of applying to the Legislature for means to ex-tend the term of the institution to pupils who would be benefited by longer continuance.

The Board recommended the formation of scholarships, and acknowledged the receipt of books from Charles H. Hutchinson, Louis A. Godey, T. S. Arthur and T. B. Peterson.

The report was accepted, and directed to be receipted to be accepted.

FRANKLIN INSTITUTE .- At the meeting last evening, after the usual business, the paper on steam botlers, by Mr. Joseph Harrison, which had been announced for the evening, was read. In this the importance of safety in steam generators was first explained by reference to the great loss of life and property constantly occurring. The difficulty, nay, impossibility, of securing this with the ordinary forms of boilers, now in use, was then shown by reference to the injurious effects of all the methods now employed for shaping and connecting wrought iron sheets.

The relative advantages of wrought and cast iron were then discussed in this view, and finally the structure and arrangement of the Harrison boiler was finally described by aid of diagrams projected on the screen and ensities.

Harrison boiler was finally described by aid of diagrams projected on the screen and castings placed on the table.

A full discussion then followed of the various relations of this boiler as regards economy, freedom from scale, ease of erection, reconstruction, enlargement, &c., many questions being proposed by members present, and answered by Mr, Harrison. Mr. Coleman Sellers related in brief the experiments lately made by the Committee of the Institute.

The tellers then reported elections as follows:—
