Black on Jury Trials.

WE see that the Hon, Jeremiah S. Black has been making a speech. Place, Washington; date, 8th of January; occasion, Democratic pow-wow; subject, Milligan decision of the Supreme Court. Jeremiah was patriotic, almost as much so as when he gave that opinion, in 1860, that the Government had no right to coerce the secessionists. Jeremiah was jubilant; the occasion of his joy, as stated by himself, being as follows:-

as stated by himself, being as follows:—

"Three private citizens of Indiana, perfectly innocent of any offense—I say perfectly innocent, because, up to this time, no human being has ever legally sworn even to a being of their guilt—these citizens were arrested, kidnapped, and carried before a body of men wholly without power to meddle with them—not authorized even to swear a witness for them or against them—and there, after a proceeding which it would be mockery to call a trial, they were ordered to be killed on a certain fixed day. In this condition of things the judicial authorities intervened, and, with the aid of President Johnson, the victims were rescued." son, the victims were rescued."

This is Jeremiah's poetical statement of the simple facts that, in the fall of 1864, an extensive conspiracy had been formed in Indiana, which contemplated the violent overthrow of the constituted authorities of that State, the liberation of the Rebel prisoners confined within its limits, and the practical commencement of that "fire in the rear" which Mr. Black's friends were so fond of threatening during the war; and that said conspiracy was detected and overthrown by the United States Government, and the three chief movers in it tried by a military commisslon and sentenced to death. These are the three "innocent" men of whom Jeremiah so feelingly speaks. Doubtless, in his eyes, they are greater patriots than any brave Union soldiers who laid down their lives upon the

Mr. Black's allusion to President Johnson, who was present and listened to the speech, is exquisite. How gracefully and delicately the President's agency in saving these three "innocent" men from being "killed" is alluded to! Who would suppose, from reading this speech, that the findings and sentence of the very Commission which tried these three finnocent" men, and condemned them to be "killed," were officially approved and sanctioned by Mr. Johnson himself, a short time after his accession to the Presidency? Jeremiah's fulsome and awkward adulation must have been rather nauseating, under the circumstances, to the "Humble Individual." We can imagine what his sensations must have been as the Hon. Jeremiah next proceeded to deliver himself of the following:-

owners the causelcame to to the Supreme Court could be lawfully deprived of his life without a fair, honest trial, before an impartial jury and a regular court. To this there could be but one answer, and that answer was given un animously, all the Judges yielding their full and noreserved assent to it. They held, in effect, that the pretended trial was a conspiracy, and that the execution, if it had taken place, would have been a mere lawless murder. What else could they do! To hang men without judge or jury is an act so clearly forbidden by the fundamental law that no one can make any mistake about it, if he has sense enough to know his right hand from his left."

Did no vision of Mrs. Surratt and her coconspirators in the assassination of Abraham Lincoln-tried and convicted, without a jury by a military commission, and executed by the order of Andrew Johnson-flash through the President's mind as he sat and listened to this petifogging plea for assassins and conspirators, under the guise of a defense of the trial by jury? The Hon. Jeremiah so states the decision of the Court as to convey a false impression. The Court did not render its decision on the simple ground that a citizen could not lawfully be deprived of his life without a trial by jury. Indeed, there was no question of life or death before the Court, as the prisoners had had their sentences commuted to imprisonment. The majority held that this trial of Milligan by a military commission was unlawful, because there was not at the time such a state of war in Indiana as to obstruct the regular action of the courts. Had there been, the trial would have been legal. The minority held that the trial was unlawful, because by a special act of Congress, passed to meet such cases, the accused was entitled to a trial before a regular court.

The truth is, that our politicians of the Black order rejoice over this decision, not because they have any special love for the trial by jury, or because that decision establishes the rights of the citizen on any firmer foundation, but because it covers the cases of a class of disloyal miscreants who are thereby likely to escape just punishment for their crimes, and can be held up by themselves as a sort of shield to their own unpatriotic and Rebel-sympathizing position during the war. Very little did Black & Company care about the trial by jury when Jeff. Davis and his minions were imprisoning, robbing, and murdering the Union men of the South; very little when they were shooting down our brave boys on the battle-field. It is only when this principle is invoked in such a way as to benefit, not the friends of the country, but its enemies, those who sought to overthrow it, conspirators and assassins, that Black is suddenly charmed with the right of trial by jury.

THE bill regulating the tenure of office was passed in the Senate yesterday by a majority sufficient to overcome the usual veto, which It will doubtless be obliged to incur,

A State History of Our Pennsylvania Regiments.

SOME two years ago the Legislature passed a law providing for the publication of a State history of what our Commonwealth had done in the late civil war. The Governor selected Mr. Samuel P. Bates for the performance of the onerous task of State historian. That gentleman has sent to the Legislature a report of how the work is progressing, and the plan on which it is to be arranged. After examining the field to be occupied, he has decided to divide the work into six parts:-

1. A general history of what the State accomplished during the period of the national troubles, and the material and personal aid rendered to the General Government for the successful prosecution of the war, with some introductory matter illustrative of the militia organization of the State previous to the breaking out of the Rebellion, of its population, its material resources, and the contingencies which forced the General Government to call out the militia of the several

2. A condensed history of each regiment, embracing an account of its origin, organization, instruction, and drill, and its operations

3. A complete roll, com rising the name, age, rank, date of muster into the service, residence, period of enlistment, casualties, and final fate, of every officer and enlisted

4. Biographical sketches of the executive officers of the Government, officers in the field, privates who distinguished themselves, and civilians, both male and female, who rendered signal service to the State.

5. A Roll of Honor, composed of the names of those who died in the service, with the circumstances of their death, and place of

6. An alphabetical index to every name that occurs in the history.

Money expended by a people in preserving the heroic deeds of their fellow-citizens is not wasted. There can be no greater incentive to loyalty, courage, and parriotic devotion than the perusal of the deeds of our ancestors; and when, in the future, our children shall read the long list of those who have died for their country, they will be incited to high deeds, in order that the State pride may not degenerate. We therefore heartily approve of the contemplated work. No other State has as yet taken active steps towards such a compilation. Let the Keystone State be the first to institute the system. Now is the time when facts can be secured; but if the task be postponed for a decade, what is now accessible will be beyond our reach. From the calculations issued by Mr. Bates, the clerical work necessary must be enormous. He stated that it would take one clerk twenty-one years to make out the muster-rolls, to say nothing of the index. We hope the work will be pushed forward with all convenient speed, and that it will soon be laid before the survivors of the dead and the living heroes of our war.

Mr. Randali's Currency Bill.

MR. RANDALL'S Currency bill was reported yesterday in the House, read twice, and recommitted. The provisions of this bill seem to have met with favor, and there is a probability of its passage. Its plan, comprehensively stated, is to retire the National Bank currency, and to issue in its stead three hundred millions of greenbacks, to be invested in bonds or other interest-bearing debt of the Government, as a sinking fund for the payment of the national debt. This plan, if adopted, will give us an exclusive greenback currency, and will pay off the national debt inside of thirty years.

A New Minister to England.

JUDGE FIELD, of California, is one of the Judges of the Supreme Court appointed by President Lincoln, who has gone over to the conservatives. He delivered the late opinion pronouncing the test oath, as applied to lawyers, unconstitutional-a decision which has opened the doors of every court in the land to Rebel lawyers. It is rumored that David Dudley Field, a brother of this Judge Field, is about to be appointed Minister to England.

OUR PASSENGER RAILWAYS .- We publish on the eighth page of THE EVENING TELE-GRAPH an exhaustive article on the subject of the receipts of our city passenger railways, which will be found very interesting in many ways to our readers. The comparative tables of receipts of 1865 and 1866 are full and concise. These figures have all been collected with great labor by our local reporters, assisted by the officials and employes of the various companies, and will be found mainly correct.

THE decision of the Supreme Court against the constitutionality of the test oath in the case of lawyers has been promptly followed by the admission of a Rebel General to the bar of the Supreme Court.

The Murder of Unionists-Condition of the Freedmen. NASHVILLE, January 18.—The sheriff of Obion county, who has just arrived here, condims the nurder of two Deputy Sheriffs of that county, by the ame inhuman flendwho assassinated Senator Case. The murdered men were stanch Unionists, and the murderer a returned guerilla. The awful tragedy was the culmination of a bitter political feud which has existed since the war. There is considerable feeling on the subject, and the Legislature will not be likely to mince matters in the subject.

With all that has been said about the indoare only two freedmen drawing rations in this county. Where one colored person applies to the Bureau or city authorities for relief, there are at least half-a-dozen indigent whites who are to be seen on the same mission. Suits involving the constitutionality of the tranchise law will be argued in the Supreme Court, com-mencing next Wednesday. The decision is looked for with considerable interest.

Drawing of the Chicago Art Association. TUST From the Chicago Journal, 14th.

Requests come to us from all quarters to give the modus operandi of the great drawing which will take place next Monday. We have obtained the following particulars, which will be read with interest:—

Two wheels are to be used. They are octagon in form, revolving upon pivots, and are turned by cranks. The diameter of the large wheel is 404 inches, that of the smaller one 24 inches. The numbers will occupy about one-third of the wheel, and thus leave ample room to silt and mix them at every revolution.

Two hundred and ten thousand numbers (from 1 to 210,000, inclusive), representing the certificates issued, will be placed in the large wheel. These numbers are printed on small white tickets, made of imperial photograph board, and are as hard and smooth as metal.ic checks.

The tickets for the small wheel are prepared by writing on similar cards the names of the premiums, the Opera House on one, and each premiums, the Opera House on one, and each of the remaining three hundred and one premiums on others respectively. These three hundred and two tickets thus written are deposited in the small wheel.

The numbers having been placed in one wheel and the premiums in the other, and the wheels having revolved a sufficient length of time to thoroughly mix them, a number will be drawn from one, and a premium ticket from the other, and the holder of that number will become entitled to the premium written on the ticket. It will, therefore, be seen that the Opera House may be the last premium drawn or the first.

It will be observed that there is a double chance in this method. If your number happens to be one of the three hundred and two drawn from the wheel, you get one of the premiums—whether the Opera House or a painting depends upon the chance of the second wheel which contains the premiums.

Read what the Editor of Forney's Daily Press says of this edition editorially in that paper. That all of the works of Charles Dickens, handsomely printed and bound in cloth, should actually be a as low a price as $20.00, is—we may say it with as low a price as $20.00, is—we may say it without any design to "pufl"—truly remarkable. It cannot be denice that the Messrs Peterson, by this publication, have done themselves gicat honor, as manifesting the extreme degree to which cheapness and real excellence can be carried when properly guided by enterprise; while on the other hand it is not less ratifying to reflect on the benefit which has been conserved on the country at large by the dissemination o, so many thou-ands—in fact of many scores of thousands—of the writings of one whom not to know argues oneself unknown and to have which indicates not only a cultivated mind but the nossession of resources which will express the the possession of resources which will exorcise the bues from the raidest or duliest day. Assuredly, this is a miracle of cheapness. At the price named forty thousand sets of this edition ought to be sold within four-and-twenty hours after its publication.
