IMPORTANT FROM MEXICO.

Execution of an American Consul-A Town Shelled by United States Gunboats-The Capture of Ortega.

New Obligans, January 28.—A Vera Cruz cor-respondent, in a letter dated the 24th, says:— A bulletin in the French newspaper offices in the City of Mexico, a few days ago, stated that Mr. Carman, the American Vice-Consul at Magatian, became involved in a difficulty with a Mr. Broman, when the Mexican authorities in-terfered. Mr. Carman shut himself up in the thouse, but was attacked, and during the fight killed two Mexicans. He was then imprisoned and summarily executed.

Norville, commanding the United States gun-oat off the town, demanded the punishment of the Mexican officers who had taken part in the execution of Carman, and on the refusal of the authorities he bombarded the town for eight

In seference to the recent fatal accident rom the choking of a person to whom the aitrous oxide was administered in this city, Dr. Colton has issued the following card:-

How Accidents are Avoided white Inhaling the Nutrous Oxide Gas for the Extraction of Teeth.— For the information of those who have not seen our appliances for administering the nitrous oxide without danger or accident, I would say that, instead of a small cork, we have always used a wooden prop (black walnut or maple), of such a size and shape that there is no possiwillty of its entering the windpipe or of swallow-

Scores of physicians and surgeons who have witnessed operations, or had them performed, at ir office, will verify the statement made above and the fact that more than 33,000 persons have lubaled the gas at our various offices, without an accident of any kind, is the best possible proof of the perfect safety of the operation as performed at our office.

To relieve the fears of the timid, we also at-

TECETHOFF.

The Hero of Lissa is Received with Naval Honors at the Navy Yard. This morning the denizens and frequenters of the Navy Yard were conscious of something about to occur out of the usual order of events,

There was some bustle and considerable confuon, and a squad of men were even observed earing away the snow in front of the headuarters just within the gates. These prelimiaries were had with the view of extending to Admiral Tegethoff, the chief of the Austrian Navy, and hero of the famous battle of Lissa, who is now stopping in this city, a reception in accordance with his rank and fame,

The Admiral is stopping at the Continental, which place he left this morning shortly after 10 o'clock, and at a quarter before 11 his carriage was drawn up in front of the main entrance to the Navy Yard. In the meantime the Commandant of the Yard, surrounded by his principal subordinates, had taken their stations just in front of headquarters, while immediately most faultless exterior and be

The company of officers comprised the following gentlemen: --Commodore Thomas O. Selfridge. Commandant of the Navy Yard; Commodore H. K. Hoff, Chief of the Ordnance De partment: Commodore Glisson, Commandant of the League Island Iron-clad Station; Captain William H. Macoomb, Executive Officer; Chief Engineer Theodore Zeller, Chief of the Department of Steam Engineering; Chief Engineer Charles Stuart, President of the Examining Commander D. Lynch, Naval keeper: Naval Contractor Samuel Pook; Com-mander Shirk, Navigation officer; and Commander Adams, Assistant Executive officer, The gates were then thrown open, and the distinguished stranger was driven some distance into the Yard, where he alighted and was received by Commodore Selfridge. The Marines presented arms, the drums beat, and the bat-tery hred an Admiral's salute. Commodore Selfridge then presented the Admiral to the heads of the different departments, after which they started on the tour of the Yard, previous to visit to League Island, for the purpose of inspecting the iron-clads there stationed.

Admiral Tegethoff is a native of the city of Trieste, and has been in the Austrian naval service for many years, during the greater part of which he has been a great favorite with the ruling powers, and has thus risen to the highest rank without having been engaged in any battle of consequence until his encounter with the Italian fleet off Lissa during the past summer. During the Crimean War he com-manced the Austrian fleet in the Baltic, but found his position very much of a sinecure. Austrian Admiral well merits his high dignities, as he is a great advocate of naval improvements or all kinds, especially those with reference to the construction of iron-clad, and their substitution for the old-fashioned wooden walls. This last is the principal object of the Admiral's visit to the United States.

PROM ANOTHER REPORTER. At 10.45 this morning, Admiral Tegethoff, of the Austrian navy, paid a visit to the Navy Yard. He came in a private carriage, and was received at the entrance by a large company of marines with presented arms, commanded by Captain G. P. Houston, and Lieutenants Miller and Morgan, of the garrison.

At the last roll of the drum, the Howitzer Battery, under the command of Licutenant B. C. Cochrane, belched forth a salute of fitteen guns, which was fired with marvellous accu racy and terrible effect it one might judge by rattle of broken glass from the asighboring windows.

Commodore Selfridge, Commandant of the Yard, and his officers then took charge of the hero of Lissa, and proceeded to inspect the different departments, Receiving Ship, etc. As we left the Yard the party had adjourned to the officers' quarters to partake of the Commandant's hospitality, and the marines were waiting to pay the final compliments. A DISHONEST SERVANT .- James Tucker. a colored employe at the Home Mission, Lancaster avenue and Thirty-fifth streets, has been for some time carrying on a system of petry thefts, which is the aggregate amounted to considerable value. Instead of contributing to the Mission, in turthering its great object of mission work, he has caused a leakage in the runds, etc. Yesterday, on information being given, Sergeant Phy arrested James for a late larceny of $15 in cash and an amount of cloth-He was committed to prison by Alderman

RECEIVING STOLEN GOODS .- A man by the name of Matthew Ross, living at No. 1538 Cabot street, not probably aware of fact that a person knowingly receiving stolen goods is considered in law as accessory to the theft, and believing that by accepting such goods he would increase his yearly income, regoods he would increase his yearly income, re-ceived a coat, known to have been illegally appropriated, of a young man. For this act he was arrested and taken before Aiderman Massey, who held him in $1000 bail to answer

MONTHLY MEETING OF THE YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION. - Last evening, the regular monthly meeting of this Association was held in their rooms, No. 1210 Chesnut street The exercises were opened by the singing of a hymn. A portion of the Scriptures was then read, and a prayer offered by P. B. Simons, Esq. President. After the singing of another hyan, and the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting, which were adopted, Rev. J. B. Dobbins, of Camden, was introduced, and read an essay entitled "Books and Reading," the substance of which was as follows:—

ESSAY BY BEV. J. B. DOBBINS. The influence of books is a remarkable fact in the history of man, and it may be questioned whether any single class of agencies has induenced the destinies of the world to a greater, i to an equal extent. Their career is silent and unostentations, but has everywhere produced the most wonderful results. "The works of Homer," says a standard author, "the 'Iliad' and 'Odyssey, are supposed by some to have done great injury to mankind by inspiring a love of military glory." Alexander was said to sleep with them always on his pillow. Caesar's ambition was greatly stimulated by the "History of Alexander." "When he was reading this his-tory," says Plutarch, "he was so much affected with it that he sat pensive for a long time, and at last burst out with tears." As his friends eason, he said, "Do you not think have sufficient cause for concern, when were Alexander, at my age, reigned over so many conquered countries, and I have not one glorious achievement to boast?" And immediately on his arrival in Spain he applied himself with great diligence to business, and having added ten new raised cohorts to the twenty he received there, he marched against the Callacriaus and Lusitaniaus, defeated them, and penetrated to the ocean, reducing nations by the way, that had not felt the Roman yoke." Voltaire tells us that until near the close of his life Charles XII, of Sweden, had read nothing out "Cesar's Commentaries" and the "History of Alexander," Scott says that Plutarch (whose principal heroes are Alexander, Cesar, and other military chleftains) was Napoleon's ravorite author, upon the study of whom he had so modelled his opinions and habits of thoughts, that Paoli afterward prenounced him a young man of an antique cast, resembling one of the classical heroes. So wedded, indeed, was he to this pook, that he used constantly to carry it with him, richly encased, and was in the habit of placing it, with his sword, under his pillow. It may, indeed, be too much to assume that the examples of those men, as preserved in history, are the sources of the great revolutions of modern Europe, or all the waste of life and treasure resulting from the brilliant but bloody and desolating careers of Charles XII and Napoleon I; but facts would seem to justify the conviction that they had very much to do with these results. Nicholas Lyra-Anglice, Harper-about A. D. 1300 wrote short comments on the whole Bible which are allowed to be very judicious, and in which he reprehends many of the reigning abuses of Popery. It is supposed (says Dr. Adam Clarke) that from these Martin Luther borrowed much of the light which brought about the Reformation. Hence it has been said, "It Lyra had not Harped on profanation, Luther had not planned the Reformation." was the light which streamed forth from the Bible, thus opened to the mind of a German monk, which startled benighted Europe, and broke the chain of that system of degrading superstition by which the people had been enslaved through a long night of unbroken and enfranchised the nations, About two hundred years ago, a plain but carnest minister, in a country town of England, wrote a little book of not more than one hundred pages, and of no literary pretensions. Some three-fourths of a century afterwards this little book kindled the flame of religious zeal in the heart and life of Philip Doddridge, and resulted in the writing of another book on the same general subject, which was the means of the conversion of that embodiment of all that is pure and elevated in our com-man humanity, William Wilbertorce, who in his turn produced a book which was the instru-nto millions of copies, and is printed in many languages, and has been ins rumental in hundreds of conversions; and to-day, not only in the chief countries and languages of Christen-

It is the glory of our age that it inherits the intellectual treasures of all the preceding ages,

The great names of other times have all contributed by their genius to enrich and elevate us. We live, as it were, in the very tocus of the intellectual rays of all the ages of the past. The intellect and industry of those ages have ransacked the creation to lay its treasures at our leet, and the inventive genius and fireless activity of the present age have united the innumerable rays of the iar-streaming glory in the mental soil of this, more fully than that of any other country. The ex-traordinary iscilities for acquiring infor-mation which we enjoy, associate with them everything that can nourish and beautily our spiritual nature is scattered around us in such wonderful profusion, there is much that is not only injurious, but much also which is fatally poisonous. It is of the utmost consequence, therefore, that in making a selection we should take counsel of the wise and experienced. There is a class of writers, the fountain of whose genius seems to have been poisoned; and while the sparkling stream is beautiful and attractive, it also carries with i the fatal virus. To these individuals, the pretty table by which the Ducaess of Orleans

Business in the Committees. The Senate Committee on Foreign Relations had a meeting this morning, but did not take up the question of Mexican affairs. The Senate will not take up the Gold bill, or other important bills now pending, until the Tariff bill is disposed of.

Reconstruction. Very serious remonstances have been addressed to leading Republican members of Congress, by prominent business men of the country, against the dilatory manner in which Congress is dealing with the question of reconstruction, and representing that, unless some definite action is taken this session, a breakdown in business circles is almost inevitable.

The Committee on Reconstruction will enter immediately upon the preparation of a proper bill for reorganizing the Southern States, in view of the rejection of the Constitutional amendment, to report for action at the present until to-morrow, that he might have an opportunity to review the charges of unrepation and vulgarity of language made against the President. He had heard the most disgusting language used in this Senate, couched in Frenchified phrases, and he wished to institute a comparison between them and the President. Mr. Hendricks (Ind.) opposed the passage of the bill. He would like to know why the language of the third section of this bill differed from the lan-, unsect the same section of the Nebraska bill. He aculd like to know why the ratification of the iundamental conductor of negro suffrage was sub-mitted to the State Legislature of Colorado, while in Nebruska it was submitted to the Territorial Logis nature. He denounced the bilt as a wrong to the larger States, and a positical expedient that would ot succeed in the long run. Mr Johnson (Md) was addressing the Senate when the morning hour expired, and the message sent over till to-morrow, and was ordered to be

Mr. Dawes (Masta), from the Committee of Elec-tions, made a report on the resolution offered last week by Mr. Ward (N. Y.), and referred to it in the matter of the late elections in Maryland. The only subject on which the Committee could make an in-vestigation was the conduct of the President in the matter, and as the House had a ready instructed the Judiciary Committee to inquire into the official con-duct of the President of the United States, it would only serve to distract and dissipate the investiga-tion of the matter. He therefore moved that the Committee on Ecctions be discharged from the jurther consideration of the subject, and that it be

THE WAR IN CRETE.

Terms of Peace Scornfully Rejected. London, January 29-Noon. - Despatches have been received which state that the Cretan war has been renewed. The terms of the Sublime Porte for peace were scornfully rejected by the Cretans. A battle has since been fought, but the result is not stated. There is apparently much enthusiasm on each side, and the war had spread to the neighboring islands,

VETO OF THE NEBRASKA BILL. [SPECIAL DESPATCH TO THE EVENING TELEGRAPH.]

WASHINGTON, January 29 .- The President today returned to the Senate, with his objections, the bill for the admission of the State of Nebraska into the Union. He refers to the fundamental condition precedent-suffrage shall be allowed without distinction of race or color. This condition is not mentioned in the original enabling act, was not contemplated at the time of its passage, was not sought by the people themselves, has not heretofore been applied "to the inhabitants of any State asking admission, and is in direct conflict with the Constitution adopted by the people, and declared in the preamble to be republican in its form of Government, for in that instrument the exercise of the elective tranchise, and the right to hold office, are expressly limited to white citizens of the United States. Congress thus undertakes to authoriza and compel the Legislature to change a Constitution which it is decl ared in the preamble has received the sanction of the people, and which by this bill is accepted, ratified, and confirmed by the Congress of the nation.

The President proceeds to show the first and third sections of the bifl exhibit yet further incongruity, "If," ne says, "Congress is satisfied that Nebraska at the present time possesses sufficient population to entitle her to full representation in the councils of the nation, and that her people desire an exchange of a territorial for a State Government, good faith would seem to demand that she should be admitted without further requirements than those expressed in the enabling act, with all of which, it is asserted in the preamble, her citizens pave complied."
