APPEAL TO THE AMERICAN PEOPLE.

BY MRS. F. R. W. HARFER.

When a dark and learful strife Raged around the nation's life, And the traitor plunged his steel Where your quivering hearts could feel, When your cause did need a friend, We were faithful to the end.

When we stool with bated breath, Facing bery storms of death, And the war-cloud, red with wrath, Piercely swept around our path, Did our hearts with terror quail? Or our courage ever fail?

When the captive, wanting bread, Sought our poer and lowly shed, And the bloodhounds missed his way Did we e'er his path betray? Filled we not his heart with trust As we shared with him our cruse With your soldiers side by side Helped we turn the battles' tid-Fill o'er ocean, stream and shore Waved the Rebel flag no more,

Praises rose to Freedom's God. But to-day the traitor stands With the crimson on his hands Scowling 'neath his brow of hate, On our weak and desolate, With the blood-rust on the knife

And above the rescued sod

Aiming at the nation's life. Asking you to weakly yield, All we won upon the field, To ignore on land and flood All the offerings or our blood And to write above our slain They have fought and died in vain.

To your manhood we appeal, Lest the traitors' iron heel Grind and trample in the dust All our new-born hopes and trust, And the name of freedom be Linked with bitter mockery.

Folk Lore.

A book has been published in England entitled "Notes on the Folk Lore of the Northern Counties of England and the Borders," by Wil-ham Henderson, with an appendix on House-hold Stories, by S. Baring-Gould, M. A. We quote an extract from this book, which, as an illustration of the folk fore of baptism and babies, may be of interest to the ladies:In the North, as in the South of England, nurses think it lucky for the child to cry at its baptism; they say that otherwise the baby shows that it is too good to live. Some, however, declare that this cry betokens the pang of the new birth; some, that it is the voice of the evil spirit, as he is driven out by the baptismal

As to the mother's churching, it is very "uncannie" for her to enter any other house before she goes to church, and she carries ill-luck with she goes to church, and she carries indice with her. It is believed also that if she appears out of doors under the circumstances, and receives any insults or blows from her neighbors, she has no remedy at law. I am informed that old Irish custom enjoins Irish women to stay at home till after their churching, as rigidly as their Scotch or English sisters. They have, however, their own way of evading it. They will pull a little thatch from their roof, or take a splinter of siste or tile off it fasten this at a splinter of slate or tile off it, fasten this at the top of their bonnet, and go where they please, stoutly averring afterward to the priest, or any one else, that they have not gone from under their own roof.

A pleasant little custom is mentioned in the Wilkie MS.; the first child baptized by a minister after his appointment to a parish is to receive his Christian name. Through the north of England, if a boy and girl are brought together to the iont, care must be taken that the former be christened first; else he is condemned to bear through life a smooth and beardless face, and, atill worse, the young lady will surely be en-dowed with the ornament he lacks. This belief holds its ground in Durham, and extends as far north as the Orkney Islands. One curious nursery practice exists both in the north and the extreme west of England, that of leaving an infant's right hand unwashed; and the reason alleged is the same, that he may gather riches. The baby's nails must not be cut till he is a year old, for lear he should grow up a thief, or, as they quaintly express it in Cleveland, "light-The mother must bite them of need be; and in the west of Northumberland it is believed that if the first parings are buried under an ash tree, the child will turn out "a top

The mention of the ash is curious, for has it not been from very ancient times a sacred tree, supplying in its sap the first nourishment to the Grecian hero, as now to the Celtic Highlanders?

Nay, according to Hesiod, Zeus made the third or brazen race of hard ashwood—pugnacious and terrible; as Yggdrasil, the cloud-tree of the Norseman, out of which he believed the first man was made, was an ash. When the year of interpolar is part, and banks, rails may be safely infancy is past, and baby's nails may be safely given up to the scissors, care must be taken not to cut them on a Sunday or Friday. Friday, of course, is an unlucky day, and as for Sunday, the old rhyme says:-

"Better a child had ne'er been born Than cut his nails on a Sunday morn!" Another variation of the verse runs thus:-"Friday hair, Sunday horn, Better that child had ne'er been born.

And yet another:-Sunday shaven. Sunday shorn, Better hadst thou ne'er been born! Or, at greater length:-

"Cut them on Monday, cut them for health."
Cut them on Tuesday, cut them for wealth."
Cut them on Tuesday, cut them for news;
Cut them on Thursday, a new pair of shoes
Cut them on Friday, cut them for sorrow;
Cut them on Saturday, a present to-morkow;
But he that on Saturday cuts his horn,
Better that he had never been born!"

Again, the Cleveland nurses say that it is very important for an infant to go up in the world before it goes down. Thus, if a child should be born in the top story of a house, for want of a flight of stairs, one of the gossips will take it in her arms, and mount a table, chair, or chest of drawers, before she carries it down stairs. have heard of a similar belief in the Channel
