LETTER FROM PARIS.

SPHOIAL PARIS CONTESPONDENCE OF THE EVEN-Parts, January 21. The Cretan Question.

This question is now the great topic of the day, and, in fact, the all-absorbing one. The Carbish Gapersuade the great powers that the Cretan rebellion is on the eve of being entirely crushed.

Turkey and Greece. The nneasy state of the relations between Borkey and Greece appears to be about to arrive at a climax. A telegram from Constanimople announces that the Porte has recalled as representative from Athens. According to she same advices, the insurrection, far from being extinct, is said to have revived with ereased vigor, while a large number of resh volunteers are stated to have landed on the coast of Candia. The counsels which the French Envoy at Constantinople is charge d to give to the Porte apply not only to t' se Cretan insurrection, to the agitatio which prevails in Thessaly, and to the charges brought by Turkey | gainst Greece, but especially and with me se practical utility to the relations, very diffic alt at the present moment, between Servia a ad the Ottoman Government. Although at fir at denied, the fact is now positive that the Go vernment of Roumania, taking advantage of the embarrassments of the Porte has der anded the evacuation of the fortresses situs sed on the Servian territory, still held by Tratkish garrisons, under threats of an invasion of Bosnia; while the Servian people, held in subjection to the Turkish nobility are only too desirous to obtain their independence-As Servia has at her disposal an army of one hundred thousand men, this menace is still more serious to Turkey than the attitude of Greece, who has neither army nor finances; and the importance of the demand is so well understood at Vienna that the Austrian Government, modifying its ancient policy, to the great disappointment of Turkey, has not hesitated to support it. The Eastern question, indeed, as presented in Turkey-and this is not one of its least dangers-is closely allied with that of Hungary. and, consequently, concerns the very existence of the Empire of Austria. Like that country, Hungary is divided into several nationalities, which, although interior in civilization to the Magyars, nevertheless desire to obtain their independence. Among those peoples the Croats and Servians are the most excitable, and the part they played in 1848 has already shown the influence they are capable of exercising on events. In Hungary, even among the Magyars, opinions are divided as to the conduct to be adopted newards them, whilst the advanced liberal party is inclined to accede to their desires. The Deakists, and especially the ultra-Conservatives, take up more willingly towards them, the Germans complant, in the Empire of Austria. The Cabinet of Vienna watches the movement with attention, and encourages it in order to find a counterpoise to the demands of the Diet of Pesth. Thus may be explained the policy at present maintained by Austria at the Courts of Constantinople and Belgrade, and our advices from Vienna go so far as to say that the Austrian Government has made, as a condition of its intervention in favor of Servia, the entire abstent tion of that country in the agitation of which the military frontier, and other territories to the north of the Danube and the Save, subject to Austrian authority, may become the scene.

The Great Painter Ingres. Art in general has sustained a great loss in the person of one of its most illustrious votaries, M. Ingres. He was in very good health but a lew days ago, but caught a cold at night whilst getting up to keep up his fire in his bed-room. Acute bronchitis set in, and carried him offin a few hours. The commencement of his career was very arduous, and years elapsed before his genius was fully appreciated by the public. Of no artist of modern times can it more truly be said, Si quæris monumentum circumspice. He was born at Montauban, and became the pupil of David, the classic genius of whom found in Ingres a magnificent development; but it was chiefly from Raphael he sought to draw inspiration. From that great master he derived his love of accuracy, sobriety of style, and, above all, of idealizing his subjects. In 1801 Ingres carried off the great prize given by the Institute, and went to Rome, where he consinued to reside until the close of his period of study, and where he married. He received the cross of the Legion of Honor in 1824, and was appointed member of the Institute. Irritated by the criticism which continued to be directed against him for years after he exhibited his picture of Saint Symphonin in 1827, he left France in 1832, and returned to Rome. When he came back to Paris he met with a most enthusiastic welcome. At the Exhibition of 1835 the greater number of the pictures painted by Ingres were hung together in a gallery especially allotted to them, so that the public could judge at once, and apart from the ardent sympathies and antipathles excited by each production as it appeared, of the course of the artist's genius during fifty years. At the exhibition he, together with Eugene Delecroix, obtained the grand medal of honor. The elevation of Ingres to the Senate in 1862 crowned a long career devoted to the cultivation of all that is purest and most worthy in art. Paris Italian Opera.

The subscribers of the opera in the Salle de Ventadour, begin to find that it is quite possible to pass a very delightful evening aux Ratiens, even when the little Diea Patti is not on the stage. Madame Lagrua is a charming prima donna, and may be almost said to supply the place of the great Grisi. Coldly received at first, she has now proved to the Parisians that she is a most consummate artiste. Like all our nousical jewels, she is going to try her fortune in America. What we are more badly off for in Paris are tenors, but there are none in the market, though the Impressario is ready to engage them at a very high price. The masked ball experiment on Friday last, at the Salle de Ventadom, was a failure, inasmuch as there were many men, but few of the gentler sex, whose presence is indispensable on such occagions.

AMUSEMENTS.

English Opera.—Fra Diavolo was sung very acceptably by the Richings Troupe last even-ing. The Academy was crowded with a fashnable andience. This evening Maritana will be given, with a great cast.

To-morrow evening, first time for many years,

Don Pasquale. The cast will embrace all of the favorites of the company.

OUR HARRISBURG LETTER.

Legislative Disensions-The Right Colored People to Ride in Car . of Pawisbrokers, Etc. SPECIAL CORRESPOND

SOR BYRSING TRLBGRAPH, In the Senate to tay, a heated discussion took place of the bill to allow colored persons to ride in Parsenger Ra lway cars, A number of colored gentlemen from a yoar city stood in the passage, and took a licely interest in the proceedings. They expressed their unqualified disapprobation of the course pursued towards them by the Demoura; to Senators. HARRIBBURY, Pebruary 5.

Democrat course pursued towards them by the Both F & Senators.

For the senses will adjourn to-morrow evening closs spannose of visiting the public institutions at Pittsburg.

For Adalre has introduced a bill in the House for it, Adalre has introduced a bill in the House of the better regulation of pawnbrokers. Its provisions are very strict. Every pawnbroker in Philadelphia is compelled to pay an annual license of four hundred dollars, and to have only one place of business. No pawnbroker can receive a license who has been convicted of receiving stolen goods. He is to enter security in the sum of one thousand dollars, the bond to be held in trust by the Mayor, for every person who may be aggrieved by any violation of the law. He shall also have an insurance of five thousand dollars on the goods in his establishment, to be held by the Mayor, for the protection of depositors. This bond to be filed before a license can be granted. Any person carrying on the pawnbroking business, without a license, to be fined five hundred dollars. No place to be opened before surise or closed later than 7 o'clock in the evening, except on Saturday evenings, when the closing hour shall be 10 o'clock. The books to be kept open at all times for the inspection of proper officers. The rates of interest, including storage, not to exceed one per cent. per month. Dry goods and clothing are to be kept for four not to exceed one per cent, per month. Dry goods and clothing are to be kept for four months, and all other articles eight months, unless sooner redeemed. The fines and penalties for a violation of any articles of the new law range from fifty to one hundred dollars.

Any pawnbroker receiving stolen goods is liable to a fine of five hundred dollars, This law has been framed in consequence of pawnbrokers, in many instances, charging an interest of seventy-five per cent, per annum, and to prevent them, if possible, from receiving stolen goods.

Mr. Breen, of Schuylkill, has offered a joint resolution, instructing our Senators and requesting our Representatives in Congress, to take measures in favor of a repeal of the Neutrality laws.

False Truffles —For some time past, says Galignani, an inferior kind of truffle has been gathered at Etampes, the only quality of which is its size; it has none of the perfume of the Perigord esculent. To impart this odor the merchants procure from the latter district boxes of the dark odoriferous loam in which this highly prized vegetable is tound, and by means of a brush they introduce the earth into the cracks and cranules of the Etampes truffles, and sell them for the real article.

Novel Style of Skating .- A Glasgow paper says:-"On Wednesday, thousands enjoyed the healthy and exhibarating exercise of skating on Loch Burnie, Among those on the ice young lady skaler attracted great attention. She had with her a large Newfoundland dog, and attached to the collar round the animal's neck was a pair of reins; these she held in her hands, and the dog directing her course on the ice, she in this way skipped along in very switt and graceful style."
