The Republican Party and Our Industrial Interests.

NOTHING has been more prominent in the history of the Republican party than its intelligent and consistent devotion to the industrial interests of the nation. That party was founded as a party of free labor, and its first great battle was fought to secure the supremacy of free labor in all the Territories of the country. It signalized its entrance into power by the overthrow of the system of land monopoly which had before prevailed in regard to the public domain, and by the inauguration of that great measure of practical protection to the labor of the countrythe Homestead law. That law had been vetoed by the last President that the miscalled Democratic party gave to the country, and its prompt passage was one of the first acts of the first Republican administration. By virtue of the policy thus inaugurated, the laboring classes of this country are preserved from the possibility of ever falling into those depths of degradation and distress which are too often the sad lot of their brothers in other and less favored lands. The American laborer can, at any moment, become the proprietor of allarge and fertile homestead, almost literaily without money and without price. For the paltry sum of ten dollars, he becomes invested with one hundred and sixty acres of land by simply living upon and cultivating it during five years. For this princely endowment, American labor is indebted to the Republican party.

Again, we may see the devotion of this party to our industrial interests in the care with which it protects American labor against the unfair competition of foreign labor. The whole question between the protectionist and the tree trader resolves itself finally into a question of the wages and the consequent condition of the laboring classes. Reduce the wages of the American laborer to the standard of the foreign laborer, and we can compete with foreign manufacturers in the production of almost any fabrics. But in reducing the wages of laborers to the foreign standard, we must bring his social condition also down to that of the foreign laborer. We have elevated the laborer in this country to a social and intellectual position such as is held by no other laborer on earth. He has good clothes, good food, a good dwelling; he reads books and newspapers; he sends his children to school, and goes with his family to church; he is endowed with all the rights and privileges enjoyed by any one. This position of the laborer cannot be maintained on such a pittance of wages as is bestowed upon the underfed, illy-elad and housed, illiterate, and disfranchised, laborer of unrepublican countries. The great problem in political economy in this country is how to preserve the laborer in his high position, and yet enable him to compete with the foreigner who is so far below him. The policy of the Republican party is to protect American labor and build up American industry. We see the frults of this policy in the development of manufactures, the opening of mines, the building of railroads and canals, and that general diversification of pursuits which rewards labor and builds up the wealth of the country. That great work, the Pacific Railroad, which is progressing with such rapidity and which promises such grand results, was inaugurated by the Republican party. With a comprehensive prescience which took in the full measure of the vast influence which such a work when completed would have upon the commerce of the world, and with a confidence in the stability of our free Republic which the event has more than justified, the Republican party put that grand enterprise in operation, and carried it forward in the midst of the most gigantic war of modern times. Again, the policy of the Republican party upon the great question of reconstruction is in the most perfect harmony with the true business interests of the country. We are aware that there are those who, through impatience or ignorance or malice, pretend to believe that the policy of the party upon that question is adverse to business interests. The notion is altogether fallacious. The permanent prosperity of our country in every department of its industry, in every branch of its business, demands that the fatal antagonism between aristocratic and republican principles which has agitated our Government from its very foundation, and which culminated in our late fearful war, shall be finally and forever put to rest. That end cannot be achieved by leaving the accessories and adjuncts of the old slave system still dominant in the laws and institutions of the late Rebel States. To do so is only to invite another contest. The prosperity of the South itself, the successful cultivation of its great staples, and the general development of its resources, are simply impossible except upon a basis of radical reconstruction. They who clamor for the recognition of the illegal and revolutionary organizations claiming to be State Governments in those States, clamor for the continuance of a state of society in which life and property are unprotected, in which rides law, and which, if continued, must in evitably result in a war of races, which will BIT sweep the South as with the besom of destruction. No; what we want in the South is permanent peace, order on a sound basis, just law, impartially and vigorously executed, and every man protected in the enjoyment of his rights. Such a condition of things will cause capital to flow to the South as water runs down hill; will fill her up with intelligent emigrants; will develop her slum-bering resources; and will make her add to the power and growth of the nation. It is the comprehension of these great traths that determines the policy of the Republican party, and makes it the true triend of the industrial interests of the country. It is this that attracts to its ranks the farseeing and prudent business men of the country. It is this that makes it great and powerful with the people. Indeed, the Republican party itself is but the organization through which the intelligent masses of the American people act in determining the character and policy of their Government.

Passage of the Military District Bill. THE House of Representatives yesterday, under the lead of Thaddeus Stevens, passed the bill for the more efficient government of the insurrectionary States by a vote of 55 to 109.

Mr. Stevens, in urging the passage of the bill, said it was not intended as a reconstruction bill, but simply as a police bill, to protect the loval men of the South from anarchy and murder and rapine, until Congress took a little more time to establish civil governments there; and if gentlemen choose to introduce to-morrow a joint resolution making the Louisiana bill applicable to all the other Rebel States, it might pass both Houses in two hours. He reminded Congress that the whole country was alive to the necessity of action, while they appeared to sit in supineness and did nothing to meet the great occasion. Several Republicans were against the bill, who will doubtless vote for it should it be necessary to pass it over the President's veto. We append the bill in full as amended and passed. It is by far the most important measure of the session: A bill to provide for the more efficient government of the insurrectionary States.

OUR BUSINESS INTERESTS .- Our Democratic Senators from Pennsylvania are utterly negligent of the business interests of their constituents. Cowan, having nothing more to lose, leaves the interests of the State to protect themselves. Buckalew we never hear from. Yesterday, Senators Cattell and Grimes defended the League Island bill in able and eloquent speeches; but not a word was heard from our own Senators.

MR. ANTHONY'S CIVIL SERVICE BILL .- Mr. Anthony's Civil Service bill was reported upon adversely yesterday in the Senate, and indefinitely postponed. The times are hardly ripe for the reform contemplated by this measure. Yet it is a most important one, and we shall never see the civil service in this country what it ought to be and might be, until the appointment and removal of officers is taken out of the arena of politics.

SERMON OF BISHOP SIMPSON .- We publish on our sixth page to-day an extended report of the funeral sermon delivered by Bishop Simpson, of the M. E. Church, over the remains of Dr. Monroe, of Camden. The address is an elegant tribute to the deceased, and a fine oratorical effort. We regret that the lateness of the hour at which it was delivered yesterday precluded any notice of the ceremony in our various editions.

WE are glad to see that the New Jersey House yesterday refused to pass the bill for the relief of members convicted of bribery, over the Governor's, veto. This is no time to let up on the crime of bribery in any State. On the contrary, the purity of legislation would be vastly increased by more stringent and better executed laws on the subject.

THE Indian Bureau has made a treaty with the Kaw Indians, the Kaws agreeing to remove from Kansas. The lands held by these Indians are very valuable, and their being thrown open to settlement would be a great advantage to the State. The general removal of the Indians from Kansas is very much desired by her labor is oppressed, in which anarchy over- | citizens.
