THE PARTY EVENING THE PRINCE PRODUCT FROM FROM THE PARTY OF THE

AMUSEMENTS.

ENGLISH OPERA.-The Enchantress notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather attracted a good house last evening, but the performance had the usual drawbacks incident to the "first night" of a show-piece, The scenery and appointments were very good, the dresses handsome, and the number of persons ouraged samples but the In its representation quite respection extreme length of many of the scenes made the performance drag considerably. The opera, could be curtailed with great advantage; and, for the matter of that, the "ballet" might be omitted altogether, and the public not lose anything by the omission. This department last evening was anything but "artistic," and instead of adding to the successful rendition of the pieces turned many of the scenes into positive burlesque. The music of the Enchantress, though light and generally agreeable, is so much of the "I'd be a Butterfly" school, as to create but little interest in the listener. The best music in it is that composed by Dr. W. P. Cunnington, of this city, under whose direction it was first produced, some years ago, at the Walnut Street Theatre. The whole of the prologue, containing a very fine chorus and other grand music; the "Boiero," sung by Miss Richings, at the end of the first act, and afterwards repeated by her at the close of the lopera, the fine chorus, "Down in the Mantling Glass" - which, by-the-way, was strangely omitted last evening-and other fine bits, are all the Doctor's brain work; and to tell the truth, and with all due deference to Balfo, we prefer the work of C. to that of D. decidedly. Much of the music of the latter is insipld and tiresome, although some of the solos are conceived in his best vein, and save the opera from positive failure. In this category may be classed Mr. Seguin's fine solo in the first act, "She is seen where the Vapors of Morn Arise;"Ithat for Mr. Camppell in the second act, a noble composition, grandly executed by Mr. C., and the grand arias for the tenor and seprano in the second and third acts. Among Balfe's choruses, "The Pirate's Seremade" is about the only one that will survive him. The others are generally lacking in spirit, and some of them are abundantly endowed with the somnolent qualities necessary to put an audience to sleep in the shortest space of time. It is a pity that the large amount of money which has unquestionably been expended in the production of the Enchantress, had not been devoted to the getting up of something more likely to take with the public. As it is, the piece, we think, is destined to have a very short run-when it would probably take several weeks' successful performance of it to remunerate the management for

The role of Stella, the "Enchantress," was beautifully sung and acted by Miss Richings, who, indeed; throughout the whole opera displayed her great abilitles as a histrion and voealist to perfection. She also looked the character as well as acted it, and seemed enchanting enough to have turned the heads of others than the fortunate "Bon Sylvos."

Mr. Castle performed the latter character admirably, and sang the music of his part with the utmost grace and fervor. Mr. Campbell, as the "Regent," had but little to do, but that little made the audience regret that Balfe had not taken more care of his baritone. His only solo was superbly sung and deservedly encored. The acting of Mr. Seguin, as the "Pirate Chief," was excellent, as was also that of Mr. Peter Richings as "Doctor Mathanasius." Mr. Richings was very warmly received-in fact, something skin to an ocation was accorded him on his first appearing on the stage. The characters of "Forte Bracchio," by Mr. Peakes: "Nuguez," by Mr. Wylie; and "Galeas," by Mr. Arnold, were all well rendered. The chorus, for a first night, was very acceptable, and the orchestra unobjectionable, Mr. Dietrich, the talented leader, performing his arduous duties capitally.

The Enchantress will be repeated this evening for the benefit of Miss Richings, when, doubtless, its rendition will be much more successfully accomplished than last evening. The energy, talent, and industry of the accomplished beneficiare are deserving of a substantial recognition at our hands, and if we do not find a full and fashionable audience at the Academy of Music this evening, we shall be wofully disappointed.

BENEFITS TO-NIGHT.—At the Chesnut, for the benefit of Miss Helen Western, that lady will appear as "Thisbe" in the Actress of Padaa, and as "Paul" in the Pet of the Peticoats.

At the Walnut, Mrs. Bowers plays for her farewell benefit "Jane Shore." and "Adrienne de Beaupre" in the new drama called the Duel in the Mist, supported by Messrs. J. C. McCollom, J. B. Roberts, Maurice Neville, and the whole company.

At the Arch, for Mr. G. L. Fox's farewell benefit, Zillah, Jack and Gill, and the burlesque Collean Baun will be played. Miss Fanny Herring will appear, in conjunction with the two Foxes, for this occasion only.

THE GERMANIA.—The following is the programme for the Concert to-morrow afternoon, at Musical Fund Hall:—

1. Overfure—"The Flight into the Moun-

2. Wanderlied H. Froch
3. Nightshade Waltz C. Huenn
4. Andante, from Third Sinfonie Mozart

E. L. DAYENPOET.—Mr. Davenport began his professional career in what is termed "the palmy days of the drama," when it was centred mostly in the Lastern cities, and not so widely distributed over the Union as at present. He made his debat at an early age, in Boston, as "Wellborn," in A New Way to Pay Old Debla, the "Sir Giles" of the evening being the great Junius Brutus Booth. His success was decided, and he soon became a prominent actor in Boston. Junius Brutus Booth. His success was decided, and he soon became a prominent actor in Boston, New York, and Philadelphia. About 18th he visited Europe, and made his first appearance in London at the Princess Theatre, in the character of "Sir Thomas Clifford," in The Humchback. He subsequently acted the standard Shakesperian characters with success in England for six years, when he returned to America, and made his remirce in New York in the character of "Othello," the acknowledged "best American actor who had visited Great Britain." His successful achievements sluce in his native country are well known. He has Britain." His successful achievements sluce in his native country are well known. He has always been an especial favorite in Philadelphia, and will be gladly welcomed on Monday next, when he will appear in his favorite role of "Hamlet," of which the New York Spirit of the Times 8ays:—"Mr. Davenport is, beyond a doubt, the best 'Hamlet' on the American stage. His acting of the part displays true artistic finish and earnest study. An admirable performance, and one which will benefit every student of Shakespeare to witness." In the production of the tragedy at the Walnut Street Theatre, Mr. Davenport's picture of "Hamlet" will receive a frame worthy of such an elaborate work of art.

THE PRINCESS ALEXANDRA. - Wednesday afternoon a cable despatch, costing $30 at least, announced that the Princess Alexandra had an attack of rheumatism. A later despatch showed that the telegraphic diagnosis was incorrect, and at the cost of about the same amount we are informed that the royal line of England has received a further extension. The phrase "cable rheumatics," as a new term in medical science, may soon become -The death is announced at Paris, at the age of eighty, of Viscount de Naylies, formerly Garde du Corps of Louis XVIII and Charles X; also of the Countess de Cossart d'Espies, aged 66.

MUCH DINING .- The receptions and entertainments at the Tuileries, says the Sport, are numerous. Each Sunday during the season is devoted to the colonel's dinner, as it is termed, the commanders of the different corps quartered in Paris being invited in turn. On Mondays there is a family dinner, which will shortly be followed by soirces in the private apartments of the ampress. There are to cour grand official banquets, the first of which took place on the 9th; the others are fixed for the 23d instant, and the 8 n and 26th of February.
