THE SIXTH LECTURE.

CAUDLE HAS LENT AN ACQUAINTANCE THE PANILY UMBRELLA.

"That's the third umbrella gone since Christmas. What were you to do? Why, let stomach of a lord, you have. No, sir; I didn't him go home in the rain, to be sure. I'm choose to hash the mutton. It's very easy for very certain there was nothing about him that could spoil. Take cold, indeed! He doesn't look like one of the sort to take cold. Besides, he'd have better taken cold than take our only umbrella. Do you hear the rain, Mr. Caudle? I say, do you hear the rain? And as I'm alive, if it isn't St. Swithin's Day! Do you hear it against the windows? Nonsense; you don't impose upon me. You can't be asseep with such a shower as that Do you hear it, I say? Oh, you do hear it! Well, that's a pretty flood, I think, to last for six weeks; and no stirring all the time out of the house Pooh! don't think me a fool, Mr. Caudie. Don't insult me. He return the umbrella! Any body would think you were born yesterday. As if anybody ever did return an umbrella! There—do you hear it! Worse and worse! Cats and dogs, and for six weeks-always six weeks. And no um-

"I should like to know how the children are o go to school to-morrow? They shan't go hrough such weather, I'm determined. No: they shall stop at home, and never learn anything—the blessed creatures !-sooner than go and get wet. And when they grow up I wonder who they'll have to thank for knowing nothing-who, indeed, but their father? People who can't feel for their own children ought never to be fathers. But I know why you lent the umbrella.

Oh, yes; I know very well. I was going out to tea at dear mother's to-morrow-you knew that; and you did it on purpose. Don't tell me; you hate me to go there, and take every mean advantage to hinder me. But don't you think it, Mr. Caudle. No, sir; if it tomes down in buckets-full, I'll go all the more. No: and I won't have a cab. Where do you think the money's to come from ? You've got cab, indeed! Cost me sixteen-pence at leastsixteen-pence! two-and-eightence, for there's back again. Cabs, indeed! I should like to know who s to pay for 'em; I can't pay for 'em, and I'm sure you can't, if you go on as you do; throwing away your property, and beggaring your children—buying umbrellas!

"Do you hear the rain, Mr. Caudle? I say, do you hear it? But I don't care—I'll go to mother's to-morrow, I will; and what's more, I'll walk every step of the way-and you know that will give me my death. Don't call me a foolish woman; it's you that's the foolish man. You know I can't wear clogs; and, with no umbrella, the wet's sure to give me a cold-it always does. But what do you care for that? Nothing at all. I may be laid up for what you care, as I dare say I shalland a pretty doctor's bill there'll be. I hope there will! It will teach you to lend your saught my death; yes: and that's what you lent the umbrella for. Of course !

"Nice clothes I shall get too, trapseing through weather like this. My gown and bonnet will be spoilt quite. Needn't I wear em then? Indeed, Mr. Caudle, I shall wear 'em. No, sir, I'm not going out a dowdy to please you or anybody else. Gracious knows! it isn't often that I step over the threshold; indeed, I might as well be a slave at once better, I should say. But when I do go out, Mr. Caudle, I choose to go like a lady. Oh! that rain-if it isn't enough to break in the

"Ugh! I do look forward with dread for to-morrow! How I am to go to mother's I'm sure I can't tell. But if I die, I'll do it. No, sir: I won't borrow an umbrella. No: and you sha'n't buy one. Now, Mr. Caudle, only listen to this: if you bring home another umbrella, I'll throw it in the street. I'll have my own umbrella, or none at all.

'Ha! and it was only last week I had a new nezzle put to that umbrella. I'm sure, if I'd have known as much as I do now, it might have gone without one for me. Paying for new nozzles, for other people to laugh at you. Oh, it's all very well for you-you can go to sleep. You've no thought of your poor patient wife, and your own dear children. You think of nothing but lending umbrellas! "Men, indeed!—call themselves lords of the creation !- pretty lords, when they can't even take care of an umbrella! "I know that walk to-morrow will be the death of me. But that's what you want-then you may go to your club, and do as you like and then, nicely my poor dear children will be used-but then, sir, then you'll be happy. Oh, don't tell me! I know you will, Else you'd never have lent the umbrella!

'You have to go on Thursday about that summons; and, of course, you can't go. No, indeed, you don't go without the umbrella. You may lose the debt for what I care-it won't be so much as spoiling your clothesbetter lose it : people deserve to lose debts who lend umbrelias!

"And I should like to know how I'm to go to mother's without the umbrella? Oh, don't tell me that I said I would go-that's nothing to do with it; nothing at all. She'll think I'm neglecting her, and the little money we were to have we sha'n't have at all-because we've

"The children, too! Dear things! They'll be sopping wet: for they sha'n't stop at home -they sha'n't lose their learning; it's all their father will leave 'em, I'm sure. But they shall go to school. Don't tell me I said they shouldn't: you are so aggravating, Caudle: you'd spoil the temper of an angel They shall go to school; mark that. And is they get their deaths of cold, it's not my fault-I didn't lend the umbrella.

"At length," writes Caudle, "I fell asleep ; and dreamt that the sky was turned into green calico, with whalebone ribs; that, in fact, the whole world turned round under a tremendous um brella!"

THE SEVENTH LECTURE.

MR. CAUDLE HAS VENTURED A REMONSTRANCE ON HIS DAY'S DINNER; COLD MUTTON, AND NO PUDDING .- MRS CAUDLE DEFENDS THE COLD SHOULDER.

"I'm sure! Well! I wonder what it will be next? There's nothing proper now—nothing at all. Better get somebody else to keep the house, I think. I can't do it now, it seems; I'm only in the way here: I'd better take the children, and go.

"What am I grumbling about now? It's very well for you to ask that! I'm sure I'd better be out of the world than-there now, Mr. Caudle; there you are again! I shall speak, sir. It isn't often I open my mouth, Heaven knows! But you like to hear nobedy talk but yourself. You ought to have mar-

MRS. CAUDLE'S CURTAIN LECTURES. A children, you do; complaining, and turning your nose up at a sweet piece of cold mutton, because there's no pudding! You go a nice way to make 'em extravagant-teach em' nice essons to begin the world with. Do you know what puddings cost; or do you think they fly in at the window?

"You hate cold mutton. The more shame for you, Mr. Caudle. I'm sure you've the you to say hash it; but I know what a joint loses in hashing; it's a day's dinner the less, if it's a bit. Yes, I dare say; other people may have puddings with cold mutton. No doubt of it; and other people become bankrupts. But if ever you get into the 'Gazette,' it sha'n't be my fault-no; I'll do my duty as a wife to you, Mr. Caudle: you shall never have it to say that it was my housekeeping that brought you to beggary. No; you may sulk at the cold meat—ha! I hope you'll never live to want such a piece of cold mutton as we had to-day! and you may threaten to go to a tavern to dine; but, with our present means, not a crumb of pudding do you get from me. You shall have nothing but the cold joint—nothing, as I'm a Christian sinner.

"Yes; there you are, throwing those fowls in my face again! I know you once brought home a pair of fowls; I know it: and wer'n't you mean enough to want to stop 'em out of ny week's money? Oh, the selfishness-the habbiness of men! They can go out and throw away pounds upon pounds with a pack f people who laugh at 'em afterwards; but if 's anything wanted for their own homes, their poor wives may hunt for it. I wonder you don't blush to name those fowls again! would't be so little for the world, Mr.

"What are you going to do? Going to get op? Don't make yourself ridiculous, Mr. Candle; I can't say a word to you like any other wife, but you must threaten to get up. Do be ashamed of yourself.

"Puddings, indeed! Do you think I'm made of puddings? Didn't you have some boiled rice three weeks ago? Besides, is this the time of the year for puddings? It's all very well if I had money enough allowed me like any other wife to keep the house with: then, nice high notions at that club of yours. A | indeed, I might have preserves like any other woman; now it's impossible; and it's cruelyes, Mr. Caudle, cruel-of you to expect it.

"Apples a'r'nt so dear, are they? I know what apples are, Mr. Caudle, without your telling me. But I suppose you want something more than apples for dumplings? I suppose sugar costs something, doesn't it? And that's how it is. That's how one expense brings on another, and that's how people go to rain. "Pancakes? What the use of your lying muttering there about pancakes ? Don't you always have 'em once a year-every Shrove Tuesday? And what would any moderate, decent man, want more

"Pancakes, indeed! Pray, Mr. Caudle-no, it's no use your saying fine words to me to let you go to sleep; I sha'n't!-pray do you know the price of eggs just now? There's not an egg you can trust to under seven and eight a shilling; well, you've only just to reckon up ambrellas again. I shouldn't wonder if I how many eggs-don't lie swearing there at the eggs, in that manner, Mr. Caudle; unless you expect the bed to let you fall through. You call yourself a respectable tradesman, I suppose! Ha! I only wish people knew you as well as I do! Swearing at eggs, indeed! But I'm tired of this usage, Mr. Caudle; quite tired of it; and I don't care how soon it is ended t "I'm sure I do nothing but work and labor, and think how to make the most of everything: and this is how I'm rewarded. I should like to see any body whose joints go further than mine. But if I was to throw away your money in the street, or lay it out in fine feathers on myself, I should be better thought of. The woman who studies her husband and her family is always made a drudge of. It's your fine fal-lal wives who've the be at time of it

"What's the use of your lying groaning there in that manner? That won't make me hold my tongue, I can tell you. You think to have it all your own way-but you won't, Mr. Caudle! You can insult my dinner; look like a demon, I may say, at a wholesome piece of cold mutton-ah! the thousands of far better creatures than you are who'd be thankful for that mutton !- and I'm never to speak ! But you're mistaken-I will! Your usage of me, Mr. Caudle, is infamous-unworthy of a man. I only wish people knew you for what you are; but I've told you again and again they shall

"Puddings! And now I suppose I shall hear of nothing but puddings! Yes, and I know what it would end in. First, you'd have a pudding every day;-oh, I know your extravagance—then you'd go for fish—then I shouldn't wonder if you'd have soup; turtle, no doubt: then you'd go for a dessert; andoh! I see it all as plain as the quilt before me —but no, not while I'm alive! What your second wife may do, I don't know; perhaps she'll be a fine lady; but you sha'n't be ruined by me, Mr. Caudle; that I'm determined. Puddings, indeed! Pu-dding-s! Pudd"-
