LETTER FROM MR. BRYANT.

The Sculptor Powers on the Proposed Art Tariff. Correspondence of N. Y. Evening Post.

FLORENCE, February 25 .- The artists here are much alarmed at the prospect of a heavy duty to be laid by Congress on works of art not by American artists, imported into the United States. I enclose a letter from the eminent sculptor Powers, in which he shows the consenuences of such a proceeding on the part of our overnment. That it will provoke retabation there is no doubt entertained here; and the effect will be to embarrass and distress very much the artists who are pursuing tueir studies in this and other foreign countries. Descrimi-nating duties imposed by one Government always occasion discriminating duties by other Governments. An export duty on works of art ent home by American artists will assuredly be laid by the Governments of those countrie where the fine arts are most cultivated, and which will, therefore, be most prejudiced heavy duty on their works of art imported into Another effect of the daty will be to make works of art exorbitantly dear in the United States. Only the very rich will be able to nave pictures on their walls. Your millionaire will not mind the duty; he will have the picture, or the statue, or the bust which pleases als fancy, in spite of the import duty laid by our Government, or the export duty laid on the works of American artists by foreign Governments; the man of moderate means will button up his pockets. The duty will be therefore, a duty laid for the discouragement of art. I hope to at the protest of Mr. Powers against the proposed will receive the attention it deserves. artists who asked for the measure could not certainly have foreseen the consequences which are certain to flow from it.

LETTER PROM MR. POWERS. My Dear Sir:—There is a statement in the New York Evening Post that Congress is about to Jay a very heavy duty on foreign works of art: so high, indeed, as to shut out, for the most part, foreigners from competition with native artists at home. But however this may be, its effect would be disastrous to American artists in Florence, for it is already threatened here to lay an export duty on our works in retallation for the duty already imposed on Italian art. I have talked with one of the representatives in the Italian Parliament on this subject, who says that while mere copies of paintings or sculptures may properly be taxed, he thinks that original works by iting artists ought to go free of duty into America, as they o in France and England; and the Governmen here would not complain of such a law. Of course we American artists here feel much anxiety on this matter. There is no hope for us if Congress increases the duty. We shall all have to leave here; for an export duty would tax our works for America not only, but everywhere else, and we could not live here. It is possible that the Government might be induced to retaliate by an import duty on American produce -petroleum, for instance-which would be more just than an export duty on the works of a few Americans in Florence. There are no other of our artists in Italy, if I except in Rome and not under this Government. Thus you will perceive that an act which may be sport to those artists at home who have petitioned Congres if passed by Congress would prove death to all our hopes here. And surely it is an advantage to art in America that some of us should come abroad and study here. The intention cannot be to provoke hostility towards us on the part of foreign artists and foreign Governments. have no doubt that the Roman Govern-ment will follow suit if the Italian Government sets the example of retaliation. And does our revenue require a high duty on original works of great masters abroad? or is it that the petitioners desire to compel our people that the pelitioners desire to compel our people to buy their pictures, or have no pictures at all? I do not know if we Americans are not also included in the high duty proposed; and if so, then our case will be desperate indeed. We shall have to run the gauntiet, getting out of Shall have to run the gauntlet, getting out of Italy with our works; and also in getting into America with them—paying some fifty per cent. at head and tail of our voyage, It seems to me that the present plan is not a wise one. It is highly calculated to provoke retaliation. We want to sell our produce abroad and a law to sell our produce abroad, and a law might be made here to morrow excluding the vast quantities of petroleum entering the ports of Italy from America. And who shall say this would be unfair? I wish you to publish this if you think it would do any good. With kindest regards. I am sincerely regards, I am sincerely yours, HIRAM POWERS.
