ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.—On Thursday evening man was seen to jump from one of the Cooper's Point Ferry bonts, when it was about 150 yards from the shore. The man swam ashore. When interrogated as to his intentions, he stated that he intended to commit suicide; but when he was in the water he thought he would take a swim. He gave the name of Henry Kane, and says he hails from Brooklyn, L. I. Henry was slightly inebriated, and stated that he was robbed of $175. He was taken to the Station House and dried, and this morning

INSPECTION OF STEAM BOILERS .- Last evening

the total meeting of the Sub-Committee on Inspecting Steam Boilers was held in the chamber of Select Council, Mr. R. M. Evans presiding. A petition was presented from practical engineers, recemmending a board of practical en-gineers to examine engineers, and give them a ecrtificate, if capable. Also, surgesting that the views of practical engineers be heard before the committee. Also, a communication from William Fonden, covering thirteen pages, closely written, whic was not read. Several ordinances, framed by different parties, one of whom recommends strict attention to common law in formin statutes.

Colonel Page moved to refer all the comm nications to the committee of the Franklin I stitute, and suggested that all in attendance before that committee to be heard. The now before the Legislature would empower the Councils to create such a board as might necessary, with authority to control tentire subject. A committee of the Frankl Institute has been appointed to digest an ord nance, and these various documents, together with the remarks of all practical men wh would be invited, would greatly facilitate that committee in their labors. Then an ordinance would be reported which it was hoped would protect life and not hamper trade.

Mr. William Willer said the practical mental and had been invited in the Province of the committee of the

had been invited to the Franklin Institute, an had given their views as far as was advisable The Committee appointed, however, was corposed of the members of the Franklin Institut and some of the views of practical men did n seem to meet with their ideas. If that con mittee sat in a different hall from their own the practical men would speak their min more freely. He for one did not attempt make such a flowery speech as a theoretic man could, but he was of the opinion that the important ideas. If he was in charge of steamboat, he rather thought the passenge would sooner entrust their lives to him than a theoretical man.

Mr. Evans said it was not the fault of the Committee that all practical men had not been heard, as they had given every public announce-

Colonel Page said it was not his purpose to deny a hearing to any one, in fact, he had heard practical men speak before the Franklin Institute on this subject, and he regretted they were not members of it, as they would have adorned it. His desire was to bring the practical and theoretical men tegether, and the in-termation derived from each of them would be advantageous and facilitate the creation of a proper ordinance. After that Committee re-ports an ordinance it comes back to this Committee, who never have parted with their au-thority. Then this Committee will hear any one on the subject before reporting the ordinance to Councils. Mr. Willer thought the most important feature was to ascertain the cause of boiler explosions. Theoretical men would give different views on the subject, and, like doctors, they disagreed. He was in favor of commencing at the bottom of the ladder and ascending. A committee might give a competent man a certificate, and yet from some cause the boiler he might have charge of would explode. The engineer might not be killed, but it would be as well if he did, as he would never get another engine to run. Colonel Page said if we were to stop to inquire the causes and effects of things, we would never have an ordinance.

Mr. Evans said all the forms of ordinances were from practical men, and there seemed an abundant sufficiency of them to form one good ordinance.

The motion of Colonel Page was agreed to. It was understood that, at a tuture meeting of the Committee, all who appeared before it should be heard.

COLLEGE OF PHARMACY .- The annual meeting of the Alumni Association of the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy was held yesterday afternoon in the College Hall, and was well attended by the graduates of this time-honored institution. The following gentlemen were elected officers for the ensuing year:—President, Thos. S. Wiegand; Vice-Presidents, C. L. Eberle, Ferri Bringhurst: Recording Secretary, William C. Bakes; Corresponding Secretary, A. W. Miller; Treasurer, S. Mayor McCollin. Various matters of interest were discussed, and it was decided to continue the effort to secure $10,000 towards the endowment of a practical school in connection with the College.

MEDICAL ELECTRICITY. Latest and Most Important Discoveries in the Treatment of Chronic

> Diseases. DR. S. W. BECKWITH'S

ELECTRICAL INSTITUTE, No. 1220 WALNUT ST

During our investigations in the treatment of disease in its various forms by the agency of electricity, we have obtained very many valuable and startling facts, which, added to the previous though limited information, possessed by other and less fortunate operators, place us beyond all previous knowledge of this mysterious agent. During the course of our practice we have treated and cured, through the knowledge thus gained, many thousands, and by means of our new discoveries have established our-serves as the most successful Medical Electricians in this country or Europe.

Electrical investigation has proved that the human body acts on the principle of the galvanic battery. body acts on the principle of the galvanic battery. The brain, flucous and serous memoranes, the sain, tissues, and fluos constitute the negative and positive to ces, and every action, whether mental or physical, is the result of these antagonistic forces. Direction, respiration, circulation, secretion, and exerction are due solely to electrical influence. I here is a polar action established throughout the nervous system which connects with every part of the body, establishing and preserving a proper balance of the electrical element which constitutes health, and a disturbance of which causes disease. There are strictly out two conditions of disease—one of inflammation, or positive; the other weak, one of inflammation, or positive; the other weak, debilitated, negative—and as electricity contains these two conditions in the action of the positive and negative currents, all we have to do is to neutralize the disease and restors proper, healthy action. Among the chronic diseases in which electricity has been, and is only being by our agency of the greatest utility, a cure being rapidly effected atter
