SWINBURNE'S NEW POEM.

Mr. Swinburne's "Song of Italy," which has just appeared in England, is an enthusiastic laudation of Mazzini and the revolutionary heroes. In one fine passage the poet sees Freedom and Italy in a vision, and Italy is thus addressed by Freedom:—

"Because the years were heavy on thy head;
Because dead things are dead;
Because thy chosen on hill-side, city, and plain
Are shed as drops of rain;
Because all earth was black, all heaven was blind,
And we cast out of mind;
Because men wept, saying, Freedom, knowing of thee,
Child, that thou was not free;
Because wherever blood was not shame was
Where thy pure foot did pass;
Because on Promethean rocks distent
Thee fouler eagles rent;
Because a serpent stains with slime and foam
This that is not thy Rome;
Child of my womb, whose limbs were made in me,
Have I forgotten thee?
In all thy dreams, through all these years on wing,
Hast thou dreamed such a thing?
The mortal mother bird outsoars her nest,
The child outgrows the breast;
But suns as stars shall fall from heaven and cease,
Ere we twain be as these;
Yea, utmost skies forget their utmost sun,
Ere we twain be not one.
My lesser jewels sewn on skirt and hem,
I have no need of them,
Obscured and flawed by sloth of craft or power;
But thou, that wast my flower,
The blossom bound between my brows and worn
In sight of even and morn,
From the last ember of the flameless west
To the dawn's baring breast—
I were not Freedom if thou wert not free,
Nor thou wert Italy.
O mystic rose ingrained with blood, impearled
With tears of all the world!
The torpor of their blind brute-ridden trance
Kills England and chills France;
And Spain sobs hard through strangling blood; and snows
Hide the huge Eastern woes.
But thou, twin-born with morning, nursed of noon,
And blessed of star and moon,
What shall avail to assail thee any more,
From sacred shore to shore?
Have Time and Love not knelt down at thy feet,
Thy sore, thy soiled, thy sweet,
Fresh from the flints and mire of murderous ways,
And dust of travelling days?
Hath Time not kissed them, Love not washed them fair,
And wiped with tears and hair?
Though God forget thee, I will not forget;
Though heaven and earth be set
Against thee, O unconquerable child,
Abused, abased, reviled,
Lift thou not less from no funeral bed
Thine undishonored head;
Love thou not less, by lips of thine once prest,
This my now barren breast;
Seek thou not less, being well assured thereof,
O child, my latest love.
For now the barren bosom shall bear fruit,
Songs leap from lips long mute,
And with my milk the mouths of nations fed,
Again be glad and red
That were worn white with hunger and sorrow and thirst
And thou most fair and first,
Thou whose warm hands and sweet live lips I feel
Upon me for a seal;
Thou whose least looks, whose smiles and little sighs,
Whose passionate pure eyes,
Whose dear fair limbs that neither bonds could bruise
Nor hate of men misuse,
Whose flower-like breath and bosom, Oh! my child,
Oh! mine and undefiled,
Fill with such tears as burn like bitter wine
These mother's eyes of mine,
Thrill with huge passions and primeval pains
The fulness of my veins.
Oh! sweetest head seen higher than any stands,
I touch thee with mine hands,
I lay my lips upon thee, Oh! thou most sweet,
To lift thee on thy feet,
And with the fire of mine to fill thine eyes,
I say unto thee, Arise.

A Dinner of Horse-Meat.

The following note, from an American gentleman travelling in Europe, gives some account of a dinner at which he ate horse-meat, not so greatly to his own disgust as might be supposed:—

"STUTTGARD, March 26, 1867.—I dined yesterday with the 'Society for the Protection of Animals,' on the occasion of their animal banquet. The society availed themselves of this occasion to prove to the public that horseflesh is a desirable addition to the meats now in use, and is so cheap and nourishing that efforts should be made to bring it into use. We had it served and cooked in different ways, and having eaten it in each shape (in fact, I dined altogether from it), I can speak knowingly of its merits.

"We first had filet de cheval.

"This was well cooked, and was tender and juicy, and I do not think that, if it were placed side by side with filet de bœuf, one person in a dozen could tell the difference.

"The next dish was tongue of horse. This was dry, not fat; hard, and had a disagreeable flavor, something resembling the smell of hartshorne. Its hardness may have been the fault of the cook, but it was entirely wanting in the melting tenderness that is the excellence of beef tongue.

"Next came a roast horse; this was again very good, well-flavored and juicy. The animal was a seven-year old horse, not fattened or prepared in any way. In fact, beef or mutton as lean as this horseflesh was, would, I think, have been too dry to be eatable. If the prejudice could be overcome, our fat 'Tom' or 'Charley'* would furnish food for the summer. W. C. P."

* "Charley" now draws a coach, at the age of twenty-two. His companion, "Tom," died this spring, and was eaten by dogs.

Ugly Club of the University of Virginia.

The Charlottesville Chronicle says:—

This now famous association held an election on Saturday afternoon, to decide who should be the recipients of the honors annually awarded by the Society. The election resulted as follows:—

1. Mr. H. Harvey Chambers, of Mecklenburg, President of the Club.

2. Mr. William Wallace Scott, of Orange county, was the Ugliest Man, and will receive the Boots at the end of the session.

3. Mr. Fay Hempstead, of Little Rock, Arkansas, was declared the Handsomest Man, and will receive the Hat.

4. Mr. G. W. A. Brantley, of Georgia, was declared the most Conceited Man, and will receive the Slippers. He was run pretty close by Mr. Turnbull, of Baltimore.

5. Mr. Frank C. Wilson, of Augusta county, was elected the Smallest Man, and will receive the Pyramid of Candy.

The Club intend to have a very imposing celebration at the close of the session.

The Latest Thing in Hats.

The Indian Daily News, an East India journal, says:—"We have been requested to draw attention to a monster solar hat, patented recently. The hat measures twenty-seven inches in length, twenty-two inches in breadth, and is twelve inches deep: not only large enough to protect the head against sunstroke—its avowed purpose—but sufficiently large and buoyant, we should imagine, to serve as a canoe on occasions of emergency. We commend it to the consideration of all in want of a really serviceable article. In our travels in South Africa we have seen Kaffir huts not very much larger."

—What wonder the French "Exposition de l'Industrie" is so behindhand, when its conductor is Monsieur le Play?
