The Character of the Revenue Service. SECRETARY MCCULLOCH, in enumerating the causes which are conspiring to produce a reduction of the revenue, omits to mention one which, in our judgment, is a very important one, viz., the demoralization of the revenue service itself. If the taxes which are honestly due to the Government under the existing laws were faithfully collected and paid over, there would be very little falling off in the revenue. But the fact is, that from some of the most important branches of the revenue only a small percentage of the taxes is realized. The enormous, unblushing, and persistent frauds perpetrated in connection with the manufacture and sale of distilled spirits is a matter of common fame, notorious to everybody. Were the taxes on distilled spirits honestly collected, there would be no percaptible falling off in the revenue. This branch of the revenue ought to yield the Government one handred millions per annum. We doubt if for the present fiscal year it reaches thirty millions.

Now, in regard to this matter we are very well aware there are tremendous combinations, political and monetary, embracing prominent men in both parties, and some in official positions, formed for the express purpose of defrauding the Government of its just revenue from distilled spirits. We are aware of the character and extent of the influences wielded by these combinations. It would not be difficult to point out the chief actors in them. But, after all, they could accomplish very little against a pure administration of the revenue service. It is because these corrupt, defrauding combinations sweep into their foul "rings" the officers of the Government itself who become participators in their ill-gotten gains, and grow rich by perjury and plunder, that they gain such overbearing power, and are enabled to rob with impunity and on such a gigantic scale. There are certain revenue districts well known to the people-and they must be known to the Government too-which for months have been a stench in the nostrils of the community on account of the gross abandoned, shameless corruption of the officers of the Government. Those who should guard the public interest have become its enemies-those who are the sworn officers to defend the revenue are themselves the vile harbies who are engaged in plundering it. Now, it cannot be that these things are unknown to the authorities at Washington. On the contrary, they are known there. Why is not the remedy applied ? We say, without fear of contradiction by any person who has investigated the subject, that there is no great trouble in enforcing the revenue law upon the makers and venders of distilled spirits, provided the Government has honest and capable officers, who are properly sustained at Washington. There are no inherent difficulties in the case. Honesty and capacity are all that are required. There are districts in this city now-at least one-where this is exemplified. But the trouble is that during the past year the revenue service has been shaken and demoralized, because made subservient to political ends. When Secretary McCulloch lent himself to the general removal of the revenue officers throughout the country, because of their fidelity to the principles of the Union party, he struck a blow at the interests of the revenue service from which it has not yet recovered. He turned out a class of men who had been long in the service, and were familiar with it-men who had char acters worth preserving, and who, as a class were honest and vigilant. The whole service was temporarily broken up, and the interests of the revenue jeopardized, for a political end. The only wonder is, not that the revenue has fallen off, but that it has kept up as well as it has. And now, worth more than all theorizing about the currency, or the public debt, or the restoration of the South, is the simple prescription of honesty and efficiency in the revenue service. No scale of taxes will suffice to produce a revenue when the officers of the Government itself are in league with the thieves and the plunderers. The difficulty is a radical one. It threatens the stability of the entire revenue system. It is not our purpose to cast universal suspicion on the revenue officers of the Government. Many of them are men whose characters shine the brighter from contrast with the prevailing corruption. But there is not an intelligent man who does not know that the evils to which we have alluded are widespread and most threatening. It is the common topic of conversation among our business men. It is the crying vice of the times, and, unless arrested, will test the stability of the Government itself. If Mr. McCulloch is not already aware of it, he ought to be; and if he is aware of it, he owes it to the public to take some more efficient means for its supreasion than have yet been manifested. A BOTANICAL GARDEN .- The interesting coremonies which opened the new Horticultural Hall last evening, if they did nothing else, certainly impressed on the audience present the need, if not the absolute necessity, of a botanical garden. The idea of securing an endowment from the city to aid private liberality n the erection of such a place of resort and instruction, is not a new one; but the completion of the Hall of the Society devoted to the cultivation of the science of botany, gives a new impetus to the prospect of carrying the idea into practice. We think that such an establishment would do much towards refining the taste and enlarging the knowledge of our citizens, and we hope that free exhibitions, such as that just completed, can be carried into operation. Even a small botanical garden would do for a commencement; for if once the idea be carried into effect, and a nucleus secured, we know that the liberality of our wealthy citizens would soon cause the germ to grow until we had an institution which would be the pride of Philadelphia,

Music at the Park.

THE arrival of warm weather has turned popular attention to the country, and all who can will shortly be leaving for some retreat where, by a popular superstition, it is thought the heat and dust of the dog days cannot come. But the proportion of those who go to those who stay is very small, and anything that can beguile the weary lassitude of the can't-get-away party should merit immediate attention. However contracted the finances or pressing the business of those who are compelled to remain, there is nothing to prevent them visiting our beautiful Park, and the thousands who daily flock there attest its popularity. We therefore desire to see every inducement possible offered to secure for it the favor of our people. The air and exercise beneath its shade cannot but benefit the health of those who make it a resort, and to have it as attractive as art can make it should be the aim of the authorities. One of the great inducements within the reach of the Commissioners is the securing of several good bands of music. The popularity of the idea was tested last year, and was so universal, that we hope that this year it will be further extended. One band is not enough. There ought to be three or more, stationed at such distances as not to mar the harmony of each other, yet so placed as to enable the people to walk about, and at the same time have their ears delighted with the strains of music.

OUR FOREIGN CLAIMS.-The Boston Advertiser, by anthority, publishes an article on the subect of the claims of the United States Government against Frazer, Trenholm & Co. It says: ment against Frazer, Trenholm & Co. It says: "The Government has every reason for be-lieving that at the close of the Rebellion this firm was in possess on of other property, and was largely indebted to the so-called Confede-rate Government. We set up a general claim to all this property and this indebtedness, as well as to the ships and cotton specified. The money value of this claim has never been ascer-tained. The President pardoned George S. Trenholm, the Rebel Secretary of the Treasury, without so much as requiring a statement of his Trenholm, the Rebel Secretary of the Treasury, without so much as requiring a statement of his business accounts with the Rebel Government, and from that day to this we have been unable to get such a statement. The Government might, perhaps, have forced the firm into showing its books before now, but for the unauthorized and subsequently repudiated settlement made with it hast fail by Messrs, Dudley & Morse, and still hopes to accomplish this end through the Courts. If the suits for the ships and cotton are decided in our favor, of course the ether claim will be good, and this firm will be adjudged as having possession of a large amount of money belonging to the United States. The failure of the English branch of the house may or may not prevent us from getting this money. It is well known us from getting this money. It is well known to Southern ciwizens that during the latter part of the war Trenholm & Co. managed their affairs very shrewdly. They advised everyboly in the Confederacy to invest in Confederate bonds, but they themselves invested in cotton and real estate. When the Rebeilion broke down they had on hand vast quantities of houses and lands, and such of their cotton as had not been run through the blockade and sold, while the poor fools who followed their us from getting this money. It is well known sold, while the poor fools who followed their advice had nothing but worthless Rebel bonds. It is reported in Charleston that the firm owns at least one-quarter of the city, and a paragraph has already appeared in one commercial paper stating that they paid taxes last year on $14,000,000 worth of real estate." If we do not lose all we are entitled to, it will not be because of the pardoning power of the President being misused, or the treachery of the United States agents in Great Britain. If there is any truth in the rumor of the vast real estate possessions of the firm, we suppose the Government is safe, should it secure indgment in an English Court.

RITUALISM IN ENGLAND.

The New York Times correspondent says:-"In the Lords, last night, Earl Shaftesbury brought up his bill to prohibit Anglican clergy men from wearing garments of a certain cut and color in church. England, his Lordship said, had come into a terrible crisis. Prote-tantism was in danger, for there were already tantism was in danger, for there were already two thousand churches where candles were lighted upon the altar. So many lights showed that dark days were coming. Ritualism threat-ened to shake the existence of the empire. Men of great zeal, learning, and ability were engaged in this work of destroy-ing the Church and nation, and as he was in favor of civil and religious liberty, he introduced this bill to forbhi the people using unauthorized costumes and cere-monies. He had been among the farmers of montes. He had been among the farmers of Dorset, and found them very much excited on the subject. They used very strong expressions the subject. They used very strong expressions, which, with proper deference to the bench of Bishops, he would not like to repeat. Ritu-alisin was exciting dissenters against the Church, and even the Wesleyans, who were generally friendly, now toreatened to destroy her as a branch of Popery. A noble Lord mildly suggested that vest-ments were older than the doctrines con-plained of, and were used in the Protestant Church of Sweden. The Bishop of London doubled if the evil could be put down by law. They must get control of the Universities. The mischief was with the yonng men, with whom Ritualism was popular. The Bishop of Oxford and even among dissenters for religious sersaid there was a general desire in the church and even among dissenters for religious ser-vices of a more stimulating character; but the English peoplewill not bear the semblance of per-secution. The Church of England was not a com-promising but a comprehensive Church, hold-ing all extremes of doctrine. Finally, on mo-tion of the Archbishop of Canterbury, the question was postponed two months. Mean-time Earl Derby's commission will enter upon its dulies, and in two years embody the whole matter in a blue book—a sort of agg from which may be hatched abill. But the folly of thinking that in free England, in this latter third of the ninefeenth century, religion can be regulated by law, is incomprehensible."
