THE STANWIX HALL TRAGEDY.

HUSBAND-THE PRISONER FULLY COMMITTED FOR MURDER IN THE FIRST DEGREE-RUMORS ABOUT THE PARTIES.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 8.—The examination of General G. W. Cole for the killing of Mr. His-cock was resumed before Justice Parsons at 10 o'clock this morning. He consulted for some time with his counsel, and appeared to be more subdued in manner than at any time since the tragedy. District Attorney Henry Smith attended for the prosecution.

for the prosecution. Mr. Sheppard, Police Commissioner of Albany, the first witness called, was examined by Henry Bmith, District Attorney—I have in my posses-sion a paper taken from the prisoner. It is here, (A letter of Mrs. Cole to her husband, taken from General Cole on the night of the tragedy, was here produced.) Mr. Hadiey-This letter, if there is no objection, I offer in evidence. Mr. Henry Smith-There is an objection. This paper may form a material piece of evi-dence in the prosecution, and cannot be offered here. I advise you. Mr. Sheppard, that you will be expected to keep it sately in your custody, it having come into your possession. Mr. Hadley-1 have no objection to Mr. Sheppard retaining the letter, provided we may have access to it.

Mr. Smith-You can have free access to it at all times.

Mr. Hadley-We should like to take a copy of it.

Mr. Smith-Certainly, you can be permitted to have a copy. (A copy of the letter was refused for publication.)

Examination of Police Commissioner Shep-pard continued:-In addition to this letter a couple of knives were found upon the person of the prisoner; I produce them here. District Attorney Smith-I show the witness one of these knives-a dirk knife. How long is the blade of this knife? Mr. Sheppard-It is three and one-eighth inches in length. District Attorney Smith-How wide is the blade in the broadest part? Mr. Sheppard-It is three-eighths of an inch in the broadest part, and tapers down to one-sixteenth of an inch; it has the appearance of having been recently ground, and is quite sharp at the point; it has a spring on the back, and shuts into the handle like a pocket knile; the spring is so adjusted that it remains open like a dirk until the spring is raised by the inger, so as to allow it to shut; the other knife taken as to allow it to shut; the other knife taken from the prisoner is an ordinary four-bladed pocket-knife, with a pearl handle, and marked with the name G. W. Cole: the paper I have produced was delivered to me by Acting Police Captain McDuffie, who took it from the pri-soner's person: the knives were delivered to the Property Clerk by Captain McDuffie, in my pre-sence, together with the pistols, all of which ware taken from the person of the prisoner. "The witness" was not examined by 'ine pri-soner's counsel. Mr. Hadley, counsel for the prisoner—I have

Mr. Hadley, counsel for the prisoner-I have received a letter from Mr. Frank Hiscock (the brother of the deceased), and had a conversation with a friend of that gentleman this morn-ing, and I am quite satisfied that he should be relieved from astending the examination at this time. I advise General Cole to offer no evidence, and to say nothing further at this time.

District Attorney Smith-Do you desire that the case should be now closed ? Mr. Hadley-I consider the examination now closed. District Attorney Smith-We ask, then, that the prisoner be fully committed for the crime of wilful murder in the first degree.

At this point the prisouer appeared much overcome. He covered his face with his hand, and seemed to weep, while his under lip quivered and his whole frame shook.

The prisoner's counsel said nothing, and the warrant of committal was made out by the ex-amining police justice,

THE SUPPRESSED LETTER.

The letter of Mrs. Cole to her husband is said to be, in portions of it, unfit for publication. It was refused to the press, the prosecution declining to furnish a copy, and the prisoner's counsel refusing absolutely to make it public. The letter bears no date, and from what can be gathered from those who saw it at an early stage of the proceedings is nearly as follows:-

THE STANWIX HALL TRAGEDY. A RUPPRESSED LETTER FROM MRS. COLR TO HER FOURTH EDITION The Trial of Surratt To-day.

WASHINGTON, June 10,-Mr. Bradley said that this motion had taken the delense by surprise, and he asked that Mr. Douglass be brought in and examined in open Court. The defense were not advised, from the aff davit, that the officers had taken any action. in the late drawing of jurors, different from that taken ever since the passage of the law.

Mr. Douglass was sent for and brought into Court. Mr. Bradley requested that Mr. Douglass be sworn, Judge Floher asked the Counsal for the prosecution if they of jected to Mr. Douglass being sworn and r. Pierrepont said they would not object if it was

Mr. Pierreport said they would not object if it was the custom to transine witnesses in similar cases. All motion shad to be supported by an affidavit, and where he had practised it was not the custom to take evi-det data cases like that in open court. Judge Fister said there was no custom about it. 'He never knew or such a case aince he had been upon the beach, and he was informed by the Clerk, Mr. Middle-ton, that no such case had been donot the beach, and he was informed by the Clerk, Mr. Middle-beach, and read over the affidavit given above, and pronounced it true.

roucunced it true. He testified that he had been the Register of the Siv of Washington since 1861, and was in office at the line of the passage of the law of 1862. In making the last list of jurors he had pursued the same practice that he always had pursued heratofore from the time of the passage of the act of July, 1862, until the pre-vent time.

The new args has pursues herasolore from the line of the passage of the act of July, 1882, until the present time.
In answer to a question by Mr.Pierrepont, Mr Douglass testified that he did not know whether the names placed in the box by the Clerk of Georgetown were tax-payers or not. He did not know whether all whose names he had put in were tax-payers.
Mr. Merrick objected to these questions. It was not competent to go back and ask Mr. Douglass as to what the other officers referred to had done. These officers had to exercise their own in 'gment and discretion, and it was to be presumed that the act of one was the act of all.
The Court dedided it was proper for Mr. Pierrepent to a fuel the interestion. The filled away a paper containing the names of the fuel of not the stand, and Mr. Bradley asked that the dourt take a recess.
This motion took the defense by surprise, and a question lies at the other strate does by surprise, and a sware the the torrent to decisions was the other way, but there have been arguments to show that it is in the proceeded with any how, unless the objection comes from the prisoner, aware of all the facts of informality, was yet willing to go to the court to proceed and try a case, and even to execute sentence when the prisoner, aware of all the facts of informality, was yet willing to go to the proceed and try a case, and even to execute sentence when the prisoner, aware of all the facts of informality, was yet willing to go to the the facts of informality. all the facts of informality, was yet willing to go to trial. He asked time, therefore to look up the law, see if they could not go to trial with the jury now em-pennelled.

see if they could not go to trial with the jury now em-pennelled. Mr. Plerreport said be would interpose no objection to a recess, for he had no doubt that this motion had haken the defense by surprise. He argued, how-ever, that even if all the partics stipulated and agreed to ge to trial in spite of any informality, it would still be fliegal. No stipulation can be so arranged as to make any illegal proceeding stand. He doubted whe-ther there were any decisions the other way, as his friend Mr. Bradley had intimated. Mr. Bradley said he did not say there were deci-sions the other way. He had heard arguments to prove that there were. Mr. Plerreport again argued that conviction or acquital by a jury illegally empanelled would be yold.

acquittal by a jury illegally empanelled would be vold. Mr. Carrington said he had no objection to inter-pone to a postponement. He could not however go to trial in so important a case as this with any doubt apout his mind, is to the legality of the jury that would try this case. Mr. Bradley wanted to know what would be done with the cases of all the men who had been executed upon the verdict of juries empanelled in the same manuer as this one was. Mr. Pierrepont said he was not responsible in past cases, bit us was responsible now. Mr. Carrington denied that any one had ever been hung be a jury empacelled in this informal way. Mr. Bradley begged his friend's pardon, at least a dozen had been thus hung. Mr. Carrington said it that were so, it was time then to correct the evil.

to correct the evil. Mr. Bradley said it was an interesting question for the Court, and he desired time to look up the law upon this point. The Court granted the application for a rec'ss until to morrow morning at 10 o'clock, and the Court then adjourned until that hour. The prisoner was then remanded to the custody of the Marshal, and taken back to jail; a large crowd hastening into the judiciary square for the purpose of getting a good look at him.

MRS, COLE'S LETTER TO HER HUSBAND.

MRS. COLE'S LETTER TO HER HUSBAND. In compliance with your request, my dear husband, I write the particulars of what has occurred between Mr. Hiscock and myself. The improper conduct com-menced in 1864, and has continued at intervals ever since up to a recent date. The first time was when I was sick in bed, when he came to my bedside and en-deavored — The first time was when I was in the hall, when I was seeing him to the door. I was standing np. He need force, and I always re-sisted him as well as I was able. He never succeeded in entirely —, There was no —, I did not tell of it because I was ashamed and afraid to do so. This is not a true coop of the letter, but is

This is not a true copy of the letter, but is about the substance.

RUMORS ABOUT THE PARTIES.

RUMORS ABOUT THE FARTLES. There are several rumors floating around in relation to the parties connected with this lamentable event, which are colored according to the sympathies of those who put them forth. By some it is declared that Mr. Hiscock's gal lantries were notorious, and there is a report that the letters and photographs found in his possession at the time of his death would, if published, have created a great sensation smong the F. F. A.'s—which is interpreted to mean the First Frans. of Albary. Others maintain that First Frans of Albany. Others maintain that the morals of the deceased were unexceptiona-ble. There is a story going that Mrs. Cole refused to make over her property to her hus-band by the advice of the deceased, and that there was some feeling between the parties on this acccount. Then it is said that Mr. Hiscock was about to be married to a widow lady from the interior of the State, possessed of some wealth, and that the revelation made by Mrs. Cole was owing to jealousy and afronted pride. Of course all these stories are the natural accompantments of such an event, and may all be without a shadow of foundation. It is certain that the blundering incapacity of the Coroner in giving up all the letters and papers of the deceased to his brother, has put the seal of eternal secrecy up matters of moment which might be contained in them bearing upon which might be contained in them bearing upon this anhappy case. The Grand Jury will meet next week in this city, and the prisoner will be indicted and probably brought speedily to trial. It will be the effort of his counsel, no doubt, to postpone the trial, in the knowledge that sym-pathy for the deceased will die out, and for the living will be increased by the delay. But District Attorney Smith is a very resolute officer and able lawyer, and it will be difficult to obtain from him any needless postponements.

The warrant of commitment is as follows:-

CAMDEN HOME FOR FRIENDLESS CHILDREN.— The arrangements for holding a very extensive Fair for the benefit of the Camden Home for Friendless Children have been completed. It will be held in Morgan's Hall, at the corner of Fourth and Market streets, on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday evenings of this week, closing on the latter evening with a grand supper. The opening to-morrow (Tuesday) evening will be agorgeous affair. An excellent orchestra will be present, and discourse the popular airs of the day, as well as a selection of operatic music. Addresses will be delivered by Hon Alexander G. Cattell, Hon. Edward Bettle, Hon, G. W. N. Custis, and Rev. J. B. Dobbins. It is the object, during every evening of the Fair, to make every one cheerful; and to effect CAMDEN HOME FOR FRIENDLESS CHILDREN .---

It is the object, during every evening of the Fair, to make every one cheerful; and to effect this, vocal and instrumental music will be ren-dered by professionals and amateurs, both from Philadelphia and Camden. It will be, without doubt, from the character of the ladies and gentlemen who have the man-agement of the coming Fair, a grand affair; and the citizens of Camden should come forward, and by their liberal patronage raise a sum which shall place the house in a condition to support twice the number of children that are under its control at present.

DEATH OF A FROMENENT MERCHANT, --This morning a meeting of the Commercial Exchange was held to take action in regard to the recent death of Mr. James McCutcheon, one of its most prominent members. Messrs William Price, Washington Butcher, and W. Duke Mur-phy were appointed a committee to draft reso-lutions in relation to the melancholy event.
