THURSDAY, JUNE 20, 1867.

The Resignation of General Sickles. Ir appears that as soon as General Sickles read the report of Attorney-General Stanbery, he forwarded his resignation to Washington. In this he acted like an honorable and high-spirited soldier, and cannot be blamed for his course. But we think he made a mistake. Let the Attorney-General and all the other legal quibblers in the country abuse his actions. It is his sound policy to pursue the even tenor of his way, paying no attention to anything but a direct order rom the President. When that order comes he can resign or not, as he thinks proper. To Jeave the field because of reflections cast upon him, savors rather of the impetuous warrior than the sound statesman, both of which qualities we expected to find in General Sickles. The objectionable remarks in the opinion which have caused this step are found in the following paragraphs:-

"The charges against General Sickles are sweeping and emphatic. In another of these districts a body of military edicts, issued in general and special orders regularly numbered, and in occasional circulars, have been promulgated, which already beginto assume the dimensions of a code.

After enumerating the orders of General Sickles, the Attorney-General continues:-

"This construction of his power under the act of Congress places the military commander on the same footing as the Congress of the United States. It assumes that the paramount authority of the United States at any time to abolish, modify, control, or supersede, is vested in him as fully as it is reserved to Congress. He deems himself a representative of that paramount authority. He puts himself upon an equality with the law making power of the Union, the only para mount authority in our Government, so far, at least, as the enactment of laws is concerned. He places himself on higher ground than the President, who is simply an executive officer. He assumes, directly or indirectly, all the authority of the State, legislative, executive, and judicial, and in effect declares 'I am the State.' I regret that I find it necessary to speak so plainly of this assumption of authority. I repeat what I have heretofore said, that I do not doubt that all these orders have been issued under an honest belief that they were necessary or expedient, and fully warranted by the act of Congress." mount authority in our Government, so far, at

The statements of the Attorney-General were not noted for their courtesy, but at the same time it was hardly necessary for General Sickles to take notice of them. He did not receive his appointment from Judge Stanbery. He had nothing whatever to do with that officer, and until the President officially endorsed the Attorney-General's opinion, and ordered the revocation of General Sickles' "code," he should not have taken such a step as to tender his resignation. His motives were, no doubt, highly honorable, but it would have been more politic to have a distinct cause for such an action, or, if possible, to await a removal by the Executive. If such should have been his fate, his popularity

What Has Become of It?

THE Board of Health, with a wise precaution to avert the threatened cholera, asked an appropriation from Councils to place the city in the proper sanitary condition. This very proper request was referred to a select committee, to whom also was entrusted the lucid plan of Mr. Hancock, whereby six officials were to report to the Mayor, and the Mayor report back to six officials, in order that a measure might be adopted. The circumlocution office of Dickens was plagiarized by the author of this complete system of "how not to do it." This Committee has not yet reported, although it has had the matter in its hands for over two weeks. We would like to ask what has become of the appropriation? So far as Mr. Hancock's ideas are concerned, we really do not care what has been done with them. If his bill has been mislaid, his loss will be the public good. But it is really necessary that the funds needed be placed in the hands of the Board. We earnestly hope that the gentlemen of the Committee will recognize the propriety of reporting, this afternoon, a resolution in favor of supplying the money asked for. It is almost essential to our safety.

Another Theatre Gone.

LAST NIGHT another dreadful catastrophe occurred in our midst. It is not so much the destruction of preperty which makes us look with sorrow on the fire last night, as it is the loss of so many human lives. The American Theatre was burned, but it can be rebuilt; but a dozen brave heroes, in seeking to protect property from destruction, came to an untimely end. Hardly a week since more than a score were by a similar accident launched into eternity, and now again we are called upon to mourn the loss of another band of useful citizens. A full account of the disaster is published on our eighth page, together with a history of the building, and a list of all the theatres in the United States which have been destroyed by fire. It was almost providential that with the audience in the building, and the actors on the stage, all escaped without accident, and it was only by the falling of the walls, long afterwards, that the casualties occurred. Our city is unfortunate in this respect, the American being the fourth theatre burned-the old Chesnut Street, the Chinese Museum, and the National being its predeces-Bors.

Hon. ISAAC NEWTON, Commissioner of Agriculture, died in Washington yesterday. Mr. Newton was eminently qualified to fill the post he occupied, was devoted to his specialty, and his decease will leave a vacancy hard to fill equally well.

Sheridan to be Humiliated.

THE logical sequence of Attorney-General Stanbery's "opinion," which is now to take the place of law in this country, is that the acts of Generals Sheridan, Pope, etc., in removing obnoxious functionaries, must be reversed. This has been the subject of Cabinet discussion for several days, all the members agreeing that an order of reversal must be issued, except the incorruptible Stanton. The country owes a debt of gratitude to Mr. Stanton for standing at his post during all these dreary months of Executive usurpation. His presence has operated as a powerful check upon many a mad scheme, that else might have grown to most dangerous proportions.

But will it not be a pleasing sight to behold the infamous and bloody Monroe restored to the head of civil affairs in New Orleans! How the Rebel thugs will rejoice! Sheridan outranked by Monroe! And this is the President's pretended understanding of his duties under the Reconstruction law! What a farce! It would be much more manly to openly avow the intention of nullifying the law, than to reach the same result through such a skulking indirection as this is. The Executive refuses to execute the law, and that is the whole

The Requirements of Public Health. THE following paragraph from the New York Express is as applicable to Philadelphia as to the Empire City:-

"We dwelt, a few days since, upon the fact that the colera returns from the large cities of South America, now being so terribly visited by the scourge, proved incontestably that persons of regular habits, and those who attended most particularly to the cleanliness of the body, seemed less subjected to fatal attacks of the dread disease. This being the case, our authori-ties, having such unparalleled facilities at their disposal for the purpose, should establish public bathing places for the masses. The expenses of these free baths could be defrayed by the establishment, at the cost of the city, of bathing places, convenient and well kept, which, at a moderate charge, would be well patronized. There should be baths for males and females, and the result in the sanitary condition of the city could but prove most gratifying. The bills of mortality would undoubtedly be decreased."

We would commend this idea favorably to the consideration of the guardians of the public health, if we were possessed of any such luxuries. As it is, the only body capable of appreciating and carrying out the suggestion is the Board of Health, and it is deprived of all necessary funds by the politicians of our city. We therefore publish the extract, to instruct theoretically, without any hope of seeing any practical good result.

The Ohio Republican State Convention. THE Republicans of Ohio yesterday held their Convention for the nomination of State officers. A full ticket, with a gallant Union soldier at its head, was put in the field. But the platform is chiefly of public interest. It fully endorses the Reconstruction policy of the Thirty-ninth and Fortieth Congresses; places the party broadly and boldly upon the principle of manhood suffrage; pays a deserved compliment to General Phil. Sheridan for his faithful and fearless administration of affairs in Louisiana and Texas, and to our military commanders generally in the Southern

The ticket is a strong one. The platform is bold, positive, and up to the times. We expect the party to carry the State by forty thousand majority.

A CHANGE .- It has been the boast of this country that it was a country of law. It seems that this is now to be changed, and we are to be ruled not by laws of our own making, but by the "opinions" of pettifoggers and quibblers. The President is no longer to execute the law, but the "opinion" of his Attorney-General. We don't think the people will relish this

WE WOULD LIKE to ask Mr. C. M. Wagner, the sexton of that legislative cemetery called the "Committee on Law" of Councils, how many necessary bills have been interred by them? We probably could not make space to publish the titles, but if he were to consult his minutes, and let us know the number in gross, it would be interesting statistics.

Is our news from Mexico this morning is reliable, Santa Anna's career has come to an end. It is reported that he arrived off Vera Cruz on the 4th inst., but that justead of being hailed as the deliverer of Mexico, he was taken prisoner by the Liberals, tried, and sentenced to be executed. There can be little doubt that his death or permanent exile was essential to peace in Mexico. When Maximillan first arrived. Santa Anna offered him his support. Being rebuffed, he tendered his services to Juarez, to aid in "driving the invader from Mexican soil." These being rejected, he repaired to this country, and has been engaged for the past year in concecting a new movement for the overthrow of whichsoever party might prove successful. The result seems to have been fatal

THE Queen of Spain will not yet visit Paris, because she fears the outbreak of a revolution during her absence, and the King of Portugal will stay at home because he has no money.

CHARLES KRAN .- The attack with which this eminent actor was seized while fulfilling an engagement in Liverpool was as follows:-He had been acting in Louis XI on Tuesday evening, May 28, at the Prince of Wales Theatre. Soon after his return to his hotel that night he had an attack of vomiting, accompanied with violent palpitation. These symptoms, which continued more or less for ome days, have now almost entirely subsided. Mr. Kean has for some time suffered from derangement of the kidneys, and it is probable that the present attack is owing to the condition of the latter, and not to any disease of the heart. Indeed, there is no reason to believe that there is any cardiac affection beyond a slight murmur, which is only heard when the heart's action is very much accelerated; no abnormal condition has been detected by any of the medical men who have at different times examined him. Mr. Kean, having rallied considerably, has left for Buxton. He has been strongly advised by his medical friends to abstain from all excitement, and to take entire rest for some time .- London Lancet.
