Sheridan's "Insubordination." THE New York Times, which hesitates to attack no man who opposes Andrew Johnson, stigmatizes General Sheridan's recent letter to General Grant as displaying insubordination. We see no insubordination about it. On the contrary, the letter was directly called forth by the President's telegram requesting General Sheridan to extend the time for registration in Louisiana until August 1, "unless he had some good reasons for the contrary," and ordering him "to report progress," etc. Under these circumstances in would have been insubordination for the General not to have replied, and candor and a regard for the truth compelled him to report the facts as they existed, just as he did in the New Orleans massacre business, and not as the President would have had him reply. This General Sheridan did in the honest, straightforward language of the soldier. It is the trenchant truthfulness of his eply that constitutes its insubordination. Sheridan reports that he has closed registration in Louisiana because he has been two and a half months at it; that there are no more to register; and that he dees not conceive it to be his duty to put the Government to the expense of keeping up the boards of registration "to suit new issues coming in at the eleventh hour." That's it exactly. Sheridan has executed the law, as he was bound to do, and he now very justly objects to putting the nation to the expense of executing pettifogger Stanbery's opinions, which, he truly says, open "a broad macadamized road for perjury and fraud to travel on."

This is Sheridan's fault, in the judgment of the Times. He has spoken the truth, boldly and powerfully. His words cut like a sabre stroke. He is an honest soldier, who does not mince matters, but speaks in a language that the people can understand. Of course such a style of proceeding does not suit the Times. It is diametrically opposed to the Times' style of doing things. But the people, as in the case of the New Orleans massacre, will cling to the words of the honest soldier. His statements bear the impress of truth, and they coincide with the convictions of the masses.

The President and his followers are feeling their way towards the removal of General Sheridan. They have never forgiven him for his action in the exposure of the true character of the New Orleans massacre. They would have removed him then, had they dared to. He has now committed a similar fault. The only thing that stands in the way of his re moval now, is that rising popular sentiment which is fast fixing upon General Sheridan as a man who joins to the most splendid military abilities the highest qualities of statesmanship-one who appreciates the true situation of the country, and has faith in those great principles which must finally bring us triumphantly through all our perils. It only requires a little persecution from "the powers that to be" to make such a man the popular leader in a movement that will sweep the country from one end to the other, as the autumnal fires sweep the prairies, and carry dismay to the ranks of the conservatives and reactionists, such as Sheridan and his brave comrades carried to the Rebel cohorts in the Shenandoah valley, or about Five Forks at the fall of Richmond !

of betting had been made, we could understand the application of the prohibition, but the opposition is based on the principle that the time of the players might be better employed. Well, if that is to be the criterion, why did not the Convention proscribe chess, and chequers, and dominoes ? Time employed playing any of them might be in better employed. A study of Doddridge, or Paley, or Butler is certainly more edifying than any of these games. Yet we hardly think that Young Men's Christian Associations would have dared to have interdicted them. The true maxim is, that any recreation not sinful is as allowable to members of the Church as to the rest of the world. The old story of the sad consequences to John of "having all work and no play," is too well known to need repetition. We think, therefore, that billiards and chess, and every other game which pleasantly passes time, without crime being attached, is not only lawful but necessary. Time spent in recreation is no waste; and if such a doctrine was to be laid down by the divines of the present day, the Church would grow too sombre for the young, and would drive away from herself all who have a good supply of animal spirits. We recommend to the Convention to let Cæsar take care of his own things, and leave all harmless games to such as desire to enjoy them. There is too much of the Puritan and the Pharisee in the action of the Convention.

SARA IN LAST WAR

Public Opinion in Great Britain. THE London Times, which aims to express the dominant public sentiment of Great Britain, savagely attacks the House of Lords, declaring it to be "the most indolent and most useless assembly in the world." The Times declares that the debates of this body are pointless and uninteresting; that but few of its members can attend its sessions; and that frequently important business is transacted with only three members present. Measures should be taken, the Times thinks, if it be not too late, for the resuscitation of the body, which is in danger of committing suicide.

The recent reformatory measures which have passed the House of Commons, the Times says, comprise the substance of a political revolution greater even than that of 1832. The aspect of every question has been changed by it, and the transference of power effected by the Reform bill calls for a revision and remodelling of the whole English system.

These are significant avowals to be made by the leading organ of public opinion in Great Britain, and show how the doctrines of political reform are gaining strength and influence among all classes of English society.

SCHOOLS OF THE AMERICAN MISSIONARY ASSO-CIATION .- The schools sustained at the South by the American Missionary Association are very highly spoken of by candid and intelligent observers, and the progress of the freed people in acquiring the rudiments of useful knowledge is very satisfactory. acceptance. In point of fact, however, the courtesy of the trade has no foundation in equity or politeness it is nothing more than the law of retailation As a rule it is only observed between those whin are afraid of each other. A says to B, "If you interfere with my Dickens, I will run foul o your Thackeray; let me devour my prey in peace, and you may devour yours." So with the books of second and third-rate author some such compact as this, some tact partition treaty, has usually been kept. When very popular writers were in question, and there was a lively competition for the spoils, it has never been kept at all. Neither Dickens, no Thackeray, nor Bulwer, nor Macaulay, nor any other great light of English literature, has eve been recognized as the property of any particu lar American publisher. Ticknor & Fields hav, been looked upon as the soile legitimate re printers of Tenayson, not because they wer first in the field, but because they paid a part o their profits to the author. That gives them aright in equity over those who pay nothing though it may not in haw nor in the muddle known as the "courtesy code." In point of fact, however, the courtesy of th

It would be better for all parties if that coo-were swept from existence, and the honest pla of paying a percentage to the author wer-adopted in its stead. Then we should have n more disputes about "authorized" editions, n more scrambling to push books hastily printe-carclessly bound, and half corrected into the market; and if the number of English reprin were in consequence considerably reduced, w are by no means sure that the public woul suffer from the reduction.—N. EDWARDS & LAWRENCE.

The Rendering Unto Casar.

Is Great Britain, by a special custom authorized by law, the authority of the civil law and the canon law is kept distinct. The proper sphere of each is prescribed by statute. and no decision before an ecclesiastical tribunal has any weight on a judicial trial. In our own land, where liberty of conscience is guaranteed, we have no ecclesiastical courts, and the province of the religious anthorities is not as clearly separated from the secular as we should desire. There seems to be a continual tendency on the part of certain denominations to encroach on the individual rights of their mem bers, and issue rules to guide them in matters purely personal, and certainly far beyond the authorized jurisdiction of the Church. We have been led to these remarks by a despatch narrating the proceedings of the Convention of the Young Men's Christian Association now sitting at Montreal. This despatch informs us that that body has disapproved of the playing of billiards, and vigorously denounced the engaging in the game.

In the proceedings yesterday the Rev. Mr. Burnell stated, with great engerness, that the Chicago Association allowed no games whatever in its rooms, but worked in sympathy with the churches. The Convention actually adopted, we are informed, a resolution denouncing, in no measured terms, the innocent game of billiards-a game which in Itself consists in knocking balls around with the end of a stick. Now, in making such a decision, we cannot but think that the Convention forgot the words of our Lord, when He told the Pharisees to render unto Clesar the things that are Casar's. In endeavoring to prescribe what games shall be Christian and what profane, we think that the body gone utterly beyond all justihas fiable. boundaries, and has interfered in a matter with which they have nothing to do. The game of billiards in itself is certainly as blameless an amusement as any we know of. If a condemnation of any system | August meteors belong."

colored people, and its success with them now might reasonably have been expected.

THE GEORGIA GOLD MINES .- The gold deposits of Georgia are again attracting considerable attention. These are among the oldest mines in our country, and were worked with profit, though in a rude way, before the war. Stamp mills and extensive machinery for the reduction of the ores are now being introduced by Northern capitalists, and the production of gold is expected to be largely increased.

It is a little curious that at this time, in nearly all the large citles of the country, the aqueduct question is up in serious form, and new or additional machinery is required to furnish and distribute the needed supply of water. This is true not only of our own city, but also of New York, Chicago, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Brooklyn, and, we think, of several other cities. Reservoirs and engines are the principal things upon which experiments are now making. or which require reinforcement. The wisest policy henceforth will be the most liberal and long-sighted, since the days of doubt with regard either to the practicability or financial success of city water-works were over scores of years ago.

THE yachting fever, as our exchanges show, has been lately making fearful ravages among the newspaper reporters. The columns supplied by that ingenious and industrious class give startling testimony of the extent of the malady. Sailor phrases, boating slang, club gossip, all prevail, and a nautical language composed of such expressions as "luff, you lubber, luff !" and "take a reef in the stove-pipe," with plentiful allusions to "her going in stays" and "showing her fore-foot," declare at once the gallantry and the professional experience of the reporter.

THE Austrian Government is wavering in its Eastern policy. In general, it sides with England in disapproving the reform measures advocated by Russia and her allies, Prussia, France. and Italy, but more than once it has given a reluciant adhesion to the proceedings of these four powers. Thus we learn by a cable despatch dated yesterday, that it has now joined Russia and the other powers in urging upon the Turkish Government an investigation of the troubles in Candia.

THE City of Washington, including General Grant, is said to be in a ferment over Sheridan's letter. It is reported that General Grant is not pleased at the publication of his subordinate's manly and well-considered remonstrance against the President's rainous policy, though why he should care it is not easy to see. The country bas no disposition to saddle him with the responsibility of that policy.

THE NOVEMBER METEORS .- The Athenny says that Professor Adams has determined, by elaborate calculation, that the periodic time of the November meteors is 33.25 years. In a communication to the Royal Astronomical Society he remarks: "It appears probable that the great comet of 1862 is part of the same current of matter as that to which the
