Obituary.

Last evening Hon. James M. Wayne, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, died in Washington city. For the third of a century he has held his seat on the Supreme Bench, having been appointed by President Jackson in 1835. He was born in 1785, in Savannah, Georgia. He graduated at Princeton, and came to the North to pursue his law studies. On the completion of his studies he returned to Georgia, and was elected to the State Legislature. After serving for two terms he was chosen Mayor of Savannah, and on resigning that office was elected Judge of the Superior Court, which position he held for six years. In 1829 he was elected Representative to Congress, and proved himself a hard-working as well as a clear-thinking member. He was a warm and consistent advocate of General Jackson, and was rewarded for his fidelity by being appointed to the high position which he has held for thirty-two years. His death leaves no vacancy, as the recent law of Congress reduced the number of judges to seven, so that there yet remains two more than the required number. Justice Wayne was the ablest admiralty lawyer at the American bar.

At Henderson, Ky., yesterday, the Hon. Logan W. Powell died unexpectedly. Mr. Powell was a member of the United States Senate from 1859 to 1865, and took an active part in the debates in that body. He was elected as a Peace Democrat, and faithfully expressed the sentiments of his party by constantly opposing every war measure to which the assent of the Senate was necessary. He was born October 6, 1812, and graduated at St. Joseph's College in 1833. Studied law at Transylvania University, and was admitted in 1835. In 1836 he was a member of the Legislature; was Presidential Elector in 1844; was Governor of Kentucky from 1851 to 1859; and came to the Senate in 1859. He was a lawyer of considerable ability, although not much of Hon. Charles Denison, member of Congress rom the Lebanon District, died a few days since. He was born January 23, 1818, and graduated at Dickinson College in 1839. Practised law for twenty-five years without engaging in politics, was elected to the Thirtyeighth Congress in 1862, and was re-elected in 1864. He was a war Democrat, and gave his assent and vote to many of the war measures. At the time of his death he was a member of the Fortieth Congress, and there therefore exists a vacancy in the Pennsylvania delegation.

A telegram yesterday informed us that Antonio Lopez de Santa Anna was shot in Mexico by the partisans of Juarez. He was born in 1798, appeared as a soldier in 1821. and since that time until 1855 has been continually ascending the throne of Mexico and immediately descending therefrom. He has headed no less than seven successful revolutions, and his tragic death is a fitting termination for so adventurous and reckless a career.

Another Public Murder in Mexico. THE new Government in Mexico, with Juarez

at its head, seems determined to make itself as obnoxious as possible to the civilized world. The base, cowardly, and cruel murder of the late Emperor Maximilian has just been followed by the murder of Santa Anna. It will be remembered that this old man was, a few days since, seized on board an American vessel, forcibly abducted in spite of his own protestations and those of the captain of the vessel, and carried upon shore; and now, after a short confinement, has been shot. Of course, the excuse is that he has been plotting against the blood-thirsty savages who now call themselves the Government of Mexico; but the fact remains that he had not committed a single overt act, and certainly after his arrest was powerless for harm.

Murder and blood are now holding high carnival in Mexico. The empire of Maximilian has been overthrown, but it would be a falsehood in every respect to say that a republic has been established in its stead. No! it is a despotism of the most cruel and bloody character.

An ABLE financial writer, referring to the price of our bonds in Europe, expresses astonishment that "the English prefer to pay 94 for their consols, which yield only 3 per cent. interest, instead of buying American securities at 74, which bear 6 per cent. interest." The thing is not so amazing when we consider the stupidity of the British mind. It must not be forgotten that, even to this day, the only kind of United States bonds willingly received abread are the first issue of the 5-20s, they being the first thrown on a foreign market; and as the mind of J. B. is capable of grasping but one idea, the 7.30s and 10-40s are necessarily excluded.

MILITARY OFFICERS ENDORSED .- The House of Representatives has promptly passed resolutions endorsing the administration of Generals Sheridan, Sickles, Pope, and Schoffeld. The Democratic members voted against the resolutions. These gallant officers will be enceuraged in the performance of their duties by this approval of their course on the part of the people's representatives.

A Wise Decision.

WHILE according the utmost purity of motive to those members of Congress who desire to have business of a general character transacted at this session of Congress, we must approve the decision of the majority to confine legislation to the one subject of reconstruction. The responsibility for the present session now rests wholly with the President, who by his nullification of the Reconstruction law rendered a session necessary. We hope Congress will do nothing to shift that responsibility from his shoulders to their own. The country needs repose. Constant political agitation becomes distasteful, and at the present time is attended by more or less derangement of business. The country will sanction such legislation as may be necessary to give full effect to the Congressional plan of reconstruction, but beyond that the popular sentiment will not justify Congress in going at this session.

The Pacific Railroad.

DESPITE the Indian war, the building of the Pacific Railroad proceeds apace. The Omaha Line has just added to itself another section of forty miles, which extends the road to the distance of 385 miles from Omaha. This line is now well up to the base of the Rocky Mountains. It has brought Denver to within about thirty-six hours' ride of the railroad by stage, and has shortened the trip to Utah and the mountains by several days. It is very unfortunate that the Indian troubles have been so severe as to almost entirely check the emigration to the Territories of the interior, which would otherwise have been greatly stimulated by this rapid building of the railroad.

The Kansas branch is also being rapidly built, and the completed portion is already doing a very handsome business.

THE WHEAT HARVEST .- The recent hot, dry weather has been very favorable for the ingathering of the wheat crop, which is now in process over a large portion of the United States. The crop for the present year is already estimated at two hundred millions of bushels. In view of this fact, the prices of wheat and flour are still extravagantly high.

THE Committee for the dedication of Antietam Cemetery have requested the poets of the country to compete in furnishing a poem for the occasion, the productions being "of not less than two hundred lines each." We would suggest that the limit be the other way-of not more than two hundred lines each. Quantity is far less difficult to procure in poesy than quality, and when once the poets have begun to draw from Helicon it is a hard matter to turn off the stream. The ope-line poem on the "Tarning of the water into wine" is forever famous. The immortal requiem ode of Collins, in 1746, beginning "How sleep the brave who sink to rest." is comprised in twelve lines. If in two hundred lines written for the Antietam Cemetery, two such stanzas as those of Collins could be produced, the author would fix his reputation for centuries.

ALL Europe mourns the death of Maxi. milian. The Government of England, it is stated, will recall the British Legation, and withdraw from diplomatic relations with the Administration of Justez. That of France has ent out an order suspending all the function of the French Consuls in the Republic. The French Chambers denounce the execution as a crime against civilization. All festivities in Paris have been abandoned.

RETURN OF THE DUNDERBERG.

Slight Accident to her Machinery-She Returns for Repairs. ON BOARD THE DUNDERBERG, OFF STATEN ISLAND, July 5,—It is somewhat of a disap-pointment to find myself compelled to send you word that the Dunderberg has returned to you word that the Dunderberg has returned to port, and to be writing under the shadow of the Staten Island hills instead of enjoying my oftim cum dignitate at some point about 250 miles distant from Sandy Hook. But as everything is said to be for the best, I shall adopt the creed of the optimist, and patiently trust for better fortune the next time we set out.

creed of the optimist, and patiently trust for better fortune the next time we set out.
You have undoubtedly been informed of how triumphantly we departed on the evening of the Fourth, amid the cheering of friends, the "dipping of ensigns," and the Chinese music of the steam whistles of the accompanying tugs. Discharging our pilot off the lightship at 0 o'clock, we stood bravely out to sea—those of us on board who are classed by the ship's company among the "liders," being fain to trustourselves without a scruple to the care of Cantain Comwithout a scruple to the care of Captain Com-stock and his excellent officers, while we sought repose after the excitements of the parting hours.

The night, I am told, was dark, not a star being visible, and as it is of the first importance on board all iron vessels that the compasses shall be fully tested before implicit faith is put in their indications, Captain Comstock proceeded cautiously, frequently stopping to take soundings. In this manner we progressed until about 3 o'clock A. M., when a disarrangement of the starting-year of the engine ceeded cautiously, frequently stopping to take soundings. In this manner we progressed until about 3 o'clock A. M., when a disarrangement occurred in the starting-gear of the engine. Upon examination it was discovered that the injury was not at all serious, and that the voyage might be continued without risk. After a little consideration, however, Mr. Webb determined, as the mishap had occurred so soon after our departure, that it would be better to return to port and have a new casting made of the part which had caused the trouble. He was influenced in this determination by the terms of als contract with the French Government, which call for the delivery of she ship in perfect order, and also by the fact that the defect could be more expeditiously rectified at the foundry where the engine was constructed than elsewhere. The occurrence will involve a short delay—s day or two, perhaps—and after the renewal of the gearing the Dunderberg will leave her anchorage off Quarantine, S. I., and again proceed to sees.

It is due to Mr. Roach, the constructor of the engines of the Dunderberg, to say that the derangement of the gearing which has caused the return of the vessel was purely accidental—no foresight on his part could have prevented it, and repeated tests of the engine on trial trips and at the dock had hitherto failed to develop it.

The ship has fully justified, by her latest trip, the high praise which she has received for peed, bnoyancy, and sea-going qualities. She is qui e comfortable, the ventilation of every part of her being thorough. Indeed, the fremen tell me that it is as cool in the fire-room as on board any wooden steamer on which they have served. The vessel's motion in a seaway is easy and slow. There is no jerk whatever as she rolls, and I expect to cross the Atlantic in her far more comfortably than I could in any other propeller affour, and with about as much steadiness as in a first-class slot-wheeler.

We dropped anchor of Edgewater, S. I., about 1-30 P. M. The weather was murky and squally the water. The pilot who brought us up, who had never

The pilot who brought us up, who had never been on board before, expressed his wonder at the quick obedience of the Dunderberg to her helm. "She steers like a pilot-boat," he said, as indeed he might, when he saw her great bulk turned around in a space not more than three times her length,—N. Y. Times.
