A STRANGE LOVE AFFAIR.

A Chicago Belle Falls in I bye with a Japanese Performer, who seciprocates the Passion, and Asks the Tycoon for Permission to Carry on the Courtship. From the Milwaukee Wisconsin, July 4.

While the Japanese were performing in Chi-mago they attracted the attention of many of the first ladies of that city, who made them pre-ments and presented them with their photo-graphs. It was the fancy of an hour, which gratified boih parties and was forgotten by both. There was one lady, however, a daughter of a merchant of our neighboring city, a beautiful girl of eighteen summers, who seems to have become completely lost to the infatuation, and to have captivated entirely the heart of one of the Japanese, who has the musically-sounding name of Sing-Kee-Chee. This worthy, as we have learned from the members of the company, has something of a romance in company, his something of a foundation in his history. His father was a nobleman attached to the court of the Tycoon. He loved and married a girl in the lower class, very pretty, very good, but not high-blooded. The Tycoon learned of it, and his indignation The Tycoon learned of it, and his indignation was great. The nobleman begued and prayed. It was no use. He had insulted the dignity of the Tycoon. There was but one way to make reparation—to commit hari-kari—in plain English, to disembowel himself. The Tycoon's word was law, and the nobleman died, his pro-perty going to the Tycoon. His wite, disowned, joined a company of acrobats. Years after, this aame company was performing before the Tycoon. In the bamboo act, which is his favorite, the Tycoon was much struck with the orite, the Tycoon was much struck with the daring of a boy who did wonderful things on the slender reed. Upon inquiry he learned that the boy was none other than the son of his favorite minister and friend, and had high blood in his veins. He took the boy from the company, and trained and educated him, for the friendship he had once borne his father. This bey grew up about the court, and was none other than Sing-Kee-Chee, which in Japanese means the son of a nobleman who had offended the Tycoon.

Sing-Kee-Chee grew up about the Court until he attained the age of twenty-seven. He has an excellent education, and speaks several languages fluently. Erglish he also speaks well. With Sing-Kee-Chee it was that the Chicago lady became infatuated. He came out with the company at the order of the Tycoon, to watch them and to give his highness a history of the country, its people, and its customs. He is no common juggier, although he delights in the bamboo act which brought him before the favorable nonce of the Tycoun. The young lady made his acquaintance in Chicago, taked with him and invited him to her house, where he had made himself quite a His history was known, and the lady, by one of those romantie fancies which in the eye of the world, sometimes WHI make fools of the most sensible, learned to love him. Not for his good looks certainly; for intelligent as he is, and with the high blood coursing through his veins, Sing-Kee-Chee is not the most fascinating of the party. Perhaps the lady loved him for the sacrifices of his father. Perhaps not. We will not attempt to imagine the excuse for the notion, to call it by no other name. Sing-Kee-Chee was delighted with the lady, but he had no further thought, for he lett her with no other exchange than that of a photograph, he carrying hers with those of other ladies which had been given him. At Detroit Sing-Kec-Chee was surprised to meet the lady, who found the world a blank desert after ner heart had become another's, and in Detroit Sing-Kee-Chee first began to discover the secret, and to feel, too, that although his was pledged to another in Japan, there was an attraction for it here. He did not discover this until it was the subject of a joke by the members of the company, whom he one day surprised by the information that he loyed the young American better than he loved the maiden of his own land. This was a phase in the affair that the company had not dreamed of, and it was a startling one. They told the lover to beware; that he must take a lesson from the fate of his father, who had loved without the consent of the Tycoon, and it he persisted his father's fate would be his. Sing-kee-chee did remember this, and endeavored to banish ker from his heart, but it was a useless task. The more he tried the deeper he loved, and before

At Arkansas Post occurred a characteristic incident which is thus told by the corres-pondent.— "Having ordered a charge upon the forthe joined the advancing colume, and, ap-proaching one of the gates, dashed bis horse at it, and clearing it at a single leap, landed inside the works among the astoniahed Robels. In an instant a hundred Rebels almed their gups at the bold intruder, but the General coolly told them the fort was taken, and to ing down their syms, which they did just as his soldiers came clambering over the walls." In 1866 General Burbridge destroyed the great Virginia sait works. In the same year he in-ficide a crushing detent of General J. C. Breck-inridge, and resigned his commission. This gallant and meritorious soldier is now working in a saw-mill for bis daily bread. He has applied more than core to the Government for some small office which would enable him to support his wife and children, but his appli-cations have not been noticed. Secretary Stan-ton gave him a lieutenant-coloneley in the regular army, but Keutucky influence induced the President to revoke the appointment. Gene-ral Burbridge made himself very unpopular in that State cy his treatment of Rebel sympa-thizers. The lower class threaten to assassinate him if he ever sets foot in Kentucky; the higher thizers. The lower class threaten to Rebel sympa-thizers. The lower class threaten to assassinate him if he ever sets foot in Kentucky; the higher cabal against him at Washington. But cer-tainly bls services in the field are more than enough to cover any errors which he may have committed through excess of patriotism in ad-ministration. ministration.

Controversy Among French Freemasons. At the recent annual meeting of the French Freemasons, the question was raised, whether or not the use of the formula "To the glory of the great Architect of the Universe," was to was to be held obligatory in all cases. MM. Parrot Duclas and Eugene Pelletan favored the widest liberty of conscience, and thought that Freemasonry should not seem to commit itself to theism. On the other side, MM. Garrison and Hermitte favored a loyal adherence to the traditions. At the same time, in the opinion of the former, there was nothing in the phrase to exclude or embarrass an atheist.

The debate was warm, and resulted in the retention of the formula, by a vote of one hundred against sixty-seven.

A Theatrical Event.

The reproduction of Victor Hugo's Hernani at the Theatre Français has caused a profound sensation in Paris. The Government did not modify the text in a single passage, and the drama was played as on the evening of its first representation, when Louis Philippe was king. On that occasion the theatre was divided between the partisans of the classic and the romantic drama, who expressed their conflicting opinions with noisy energy.

There was nothing of this on the evening of the reproduction. The theatre was densely filled, and applause was not stinted. Although pains were taken to remove every appearance of a political demonstration, the young men of the schools made it very evident that they were thinking quite as much of the exiled author as of his remarkable drama.

the company left Detroit he made the romantic maiden's heart happy by declaring that he loved her, and that if the Tycoon's consent could be gained by the strongest entreaties, he should make her his wife; and with this assurance the maiden returned to her parents in Chicago, who are striving by every means in their power to cradicate the notion from her mind. Sing Kee-Chee is obstinate and determined, He

Sing-Kee-Chee is obstinate and determined. He has written to the Tycoon the tall account of the matter—has told his love in the barbaric but expressive language of his people, and has sent forward with this the testimony of all the Japaneze that the girl is of good family and respectable and worthy, that she loves to dis-traction, and will be no disgrace to the best blood of Japan. We are told by the interpreter that the present Tycoon is a young man who has a high estimation of the American people, and it is believed that if the parents of the and it is believed that if the parents of the Chicago lady will give their consent to the Chicago union, which for very good reasons they at present withhold, the Tycoon will gladly yield the favor of the people of this great country. Of that we shall know more hereafter. At pre-sent two anxious hearts are awaiting the de-clision of the Tycoon. Sing-Kee-Chee knows very well that if the consent is not given his fate is sealed, for with the refusal would come a notice that by the aking of such a face he a notice that by the asking of such a favor he had offended beyond redemption, and only the committal of hari-kari would wipe out the insult. We certainly trust that no such sad fate awaits the lover, for the lady has decided that if he dies for her, she goes to the grave with him. After the arrival of the company in this city, every mail brought to Sing-Kee Chee a letter from his betrothed, and on Saturday she came to meet him previous to his departure from this city. Her strange love, instead of decreasing, seems to flourish as time rolls on and opportunity is given to think it over, and when the party left this city last evening to go to Fort Wayne, passing through Chicago, there seemed no happier or more devoted lovers in this world than Sing-Kee-Chee and his Chicago betrothed.

A STRANGE STORY.

Career of a Faithful Army Officer.

A correspondent of the Cincinnati Commer-cial informs the public that Major-General S. G. Barbridge is now working for his living in a Tennessee saw-mill. The career of this officer a Tennessee saw-mill. The career of this officer is interesting. At the opening of the war he owned a farm, well stocked with negroes, near Russellville, Kentucky. He promptly freed his servants, whom he supported for two years, and offered his services to the Government to raise a regiment and occupy Bowling Green. They were declined; Backner occupied Bowling Green; the Government then reconsidered its action. Burbridge raised a regiment, which be action. Burbridge raised a regiment, which he handed over to Colonel Grider. He then pro-oceded to recruit a regiment for himself, doing good service at the same time on the Green river.

Soon afterwards he captured Fort Hindman At Fort Gibson he was one of the first men in the town. His reputation for galiantry was the town. His reputation for gallantry was enhanced by his share in the actions of Four-teen-mile Greek, Champion Hills, Eig Black, Haines' Bluff, Chickasaw Bayou, and Carrion

General Burbridge succeeded General Boyle in command of the district of Kentucky. He was sent there expressly to put down John Morgan. Besides his intimate acqualutance

Morgan. Besides his infimate acquaintance with the topography of the State, he had known Morgan from a boy. The story of the romantic campaign which followed is one of the most familiar in the his-tory of the war. Morgan entered the State with three thousand men. He left it with about three hundred. Mr. Lincoln sent an autograph letter of thanks to General Burbridge, and directed the Secretary of War to make him a full Mator-General.

directed the Secretary of war to make and a full Major-General. He took such a distinguished part in the battle of Shiloh that he was made a full briga-dier-general and assigned by General Grant to the command of a division. He was engaged in the brief Kentucky campaign of 1892. After Kirby Bmith's expulsion from that State Gene-ral Burbridge rejoined Grant before Vicksburg.
