FROM CAPE MAY.

The Bands at the Hotels — Arrival of the Yacht Delaware.

[EVENING TELEGRAPH SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

CAPE ISLAND, July 8, 1867.

This has been the most lively day of the season. The bands played, for the first time, during the dinner hours, at the Columbia House and Congress Hall. There was an unusually large number of arrivals to-day, and the hotel clerks were all kept busy.

The arrival of the Society of S. N. and S. in the yacht Delaware, from Philadelphia, under command of Captain Kean, created quite a little sensation of a pleasant nature. They left Philadelphia on Saturday night, July 6, for Cape May, and intend to extend their excursion to Long Branch, Boston, Newport, and Portland. They intend to remain here until Wednesday, and while here will be the guests of the Columbia House. To-night they attend the hop at Congress Hall. The following is a list of the officers and crew of the yacht Delaware:—Captain, Theodore Fitler Davis; Sailing Master, A. P. Schoneman; Chaplain, J. S. Frank; Steward, L. Somers; Crew—J. S. Hart, H. Phillips, L. Pottsdamer, N. Strauss, S. Heilbrum, J. Dreyfaus, and H. L. Strauss.

THE ENGLISH NAVY.

Grand Review on the 17th Instant.

Wednesday, July 17, has been fixed upon as the day for the grand review of the British navy before the Sultan at Spithead. The London Post says:—"The spectacle will be one of greater interest than any ordinary review of the naval strength of England. It is the object of the Government to make it, as far as possible, an historical event, showing the changes which have taken place in our navy since the introduction of iron plates in the defense of the sides of our men-of-war. The Victoria and the Duncan will recall to our memories the time when our confidence was reposed in the finest specimen of wooden screw vessels which our shipbuilders could produce, and which, perhaps, on this occasion see their last commission; while the Warrior will exhibit our first attempt at the construction of an iron-plated line-of-battle ship. Each modification of our system of building will be illustrated by a specimen of the plans adopted at different times; and the new turret-ship and armored gunboats of the latest construction will have representatives in the fleet. Thus the review will not only form a scene of interest to those who have the good fortune to see it, but it will also be a most valuable display of the progress the British Government has made in securing the efficiency of the fleet." The iron-clads to be reviewed are as follows:—

Names.	Guns.	Tonnage.	Horse power.
Minotaur	26	6621	1350
Achilles	26	6121	1250
Lord Clyde	23	4067	1000
Bellerophon	14	4270	1000
Warrior	32	6109	1250
Black Prince	41	6109	1250
Valiant	24	4063	800
Pallas	6	2372	800
Royal Sovereign, turret ship	5	3765	600
Prince Albert, turret ship	4	2537	500
Wivern, turret ship	4	1899	350
Research	4	1253	200
Viper, twin screw	2	737	160
Vixen, twin screw	4	754	150
Waterwitch, hydraulic propelled	4	777	167

The iron-clad squadron consists of screw frigates, three screw turret ships, one screw sloop, two twin screw gun vessels, and one hydraulic propelled gun vessel, carrying altogether 219 guns, 51,454 tons measurement of hull, and propelled by a nominal engine power of 10,837 horses. The unarmored squadron consists of one screw three-decker, eight screw two-deckers, six screw frigates, one screw corvette, one paddle corvette, one paddle sloop, two screw sloops, and 12 screw gunboats, carrying altogether 956 guns on a tonnage of 54,549, propelled by a nominal engine power of 12,250 horses. Grand totals:—Number of vessels, 47; number of guns, 1175; tonnage, 106,000; nominal power of engines, 23,087 horses.

ITEMS FROM FOREIGN FILES.

Klapka, Kossuth, and George.

A letter from Pesth in the Paris Patrie has the subjoined:—

"Klapka, the defender of Comorn, is at present here. The part taken by that General in the Hungarian war will not have been forgotten. He returns here without any feeling of jealousy or personal ambition, and avoids the curiosity of the people as much as Kossuth courts it. There is scarcely a shop window without a portrait of the ex-Dictator. These are of three sorts—first, Kossuth as a student, the countenance bearing already a serious cast; the second as Dictator, with the cheeks hollow and the look fixed, seeming to say, 'Admire me;' and the third as an exile, with the upper portion of the forehead bald, the beard long, the eyes without fire, and the physiognomy appearing to seek to represent moral suffering.

"'Do you sell many of those portraits?' I asked a printseller. 'Very few,' he replied; 'Kossuth now excites but little interest among us. He was always prouder than the most haughty magnate, and even abroad he turned his back on such of his countrymen as did not salute him with the title of excellency. In fact, we have now a king, and the days of dictatorships are past.' 'And Georgey?'

"'Oh!' said the tradesman, 'never mention his name; were the ocean to separate his house from the rest of Hungary, he could not be more isolated than he really is.' Klapka, in speaking of him, truly said, 'Georgey is a Spartan by education; a stoic, or rather a cynic, by temper and habits; a stranger to the ideal, and believing only in the reality; unpolished also he is, detesting forms, and abhorring the rhetoric and flourish of the revolutionary literature. For him the mysterious power of Kossuth was only an insupportable imposture.' Of the three men—Kossuth, Georgey, and Klapka—the last is the only one that may still emerge from his obscurity. The others are dead to Hungary."

Population of Prussia.

The following figures are from the last Prussian census, taken in 1864:—

There were, at that time, in round numbers, 19,250,000 inhabitants, or 763,000 more than in 1861. Of these, 12,700,000 were Protestants (being 438,000 more than in 1861), and 7,200,000 Catholics (being an increase of 294,000); in other words, the increase among Protestants was 3·38 per cent., and among Catholics 4·45 per cent. In the year 1864 there were 479,000 births among the Protestants, while there were 302,500 among Catholics, in spite of there being 6706 priests devoted to celibacy, and 5259 religious of both sexes. Further, out of the 479,000 births among Protestants, 47,960 were illegitimate, while of the 302,500 births among Catholics, only 16,500 were illegitimate. This great difference is maintained thus through the different provinces. Thus the proportion of illegitimate births in Brandenburg was 12·05 per cent. among Protestants and 8·40 among Catholics; Schleswig, 10·35 against 10·07; Pomerania, 10·35 against 9·31; Saxony, 10·35 against 6·05; Prussia, 9·67 against 7·45, and so on.

Amount of Food Consumed in Paris.

The Paris Chamber of Commerce has just published some interesting statistics relative to the amount of food consumed in the metropolis:—The amount of beef and mutton consumed annually in Paris is valued at 153,000,000 francs, and that of bread 95,000,000. A larger amount is, however, expended on wine, which is set down at 192,000,000 francs. The consumption of beer, notwithstanding this large expenditure on wine, is greatly on the increase; last year it amounted to 11,000,000 francs. The consumption of chocolate is also largely increasing; its annual value now amounts to 16,000,000 francs. Another favorite article of food is pastry. There are in Paris 622 pastry cooks, whose gross receipts amount yearly to upwards of 21,000,000 francs. Besides this, 104,000,000 francs are spent every year by the Parisians in restaurants.

Some Novel Statistics.

Some eccentric person has been investigating the subject of decorations. He states that one thousand eight hundred Belgians wear decorations of the order of Leopold, and that sixty-four thousand Frenchmen wear decorations of the Legion of Honor. The proportion of the decorated to the undecorated is in Belgium one to sixty six, and in France one to one hundred and sixty-six. His conclusion is that any one who has a penchant for ribbons will prefer Belgium to France as a place of residence.

Reappearance of Cholera in Europe.

The British Medical Journal states that the cholera is prevailing to a considerable extent in some parts of France. Official reports likewise state that it has raged in the Province of Lombardy ever since the beginning of February. It is also reported on the coast of the Adriatic.

NEWS FROM NEW ORLEANS.

Applicant for the Postmastership—Progress of Registration.

NEW ORLEANS, July 8.—J. M. G. Parker, who was appointed and served as Postmaster in this city during the reign of the Butler dynasty, has gone forward to Washington as a radical applicant for that position. Report has it that something like a year ago Mr. Parker went forward with papers representing himself as a gentleman of conservative stamp and a strong supporter of Mr. Johnson's policy, and asking for the same office.

It is rumored, and very likely with truth, that General Sheridan is to be married at an early day to Miss Foster, daughter of the late Judge Foster, and proprietress of one of the finest plantations on Bayou Teche.

The registration is still progressing rapidly in this State. The negroes outnumber the whites about two to one on the voting list. About one-third of the white applications have on the average been rejected, while the rejections have been about one-twentieth of the blacks. In this city, with a white population of two hundred thousand and a negro population of seventy thousand, the number of white voters is hardly equal to that of negroes registered.

The rumor which has prevailed on the streets for a couple of days that General Sheridan would soon depose the members of the Common Council and the remaining city officials, on the ground of insubordination, needs confirmation, though the order may be issued at an early day.

Death of a Brave Old Soldier.

The Boston papers announce the death at Bradford, Mass., of Lieutenant John Mills, United States Army, at the age of seventy-seven. The deceased entered the service when a lad of eighteen years (in 1808), making him the oldest soldier in the service. He served under General Harrison at the battle of Tippecanoe, in 1811, and was among the prisoners captured by the British General Brock in 1812. Lieutenant Mills also participated in the Florida war in 1835–6, and throughout the entire Mexican campaigns. At the outbreak of the Rebellion he was Fife-Major in the First Infantry, then stationed in Texas. Perceiving that General Twiggs intended to surrender the forces in that State, the deceased, with two companies of his regiment, made their escape, and arrived safely in Washington. In 1865 he was retired from the service with the rank and pay of a lieutenant in the regular service, and from that time resided in Bradford.

BOOK AGENTS IN LUCK AT LAST.

The crisis is passed. The hour has come to lift the veil of secrecy which has hitherto enveloped the inner history of the great civil war, and this is done by offering to the public General L. C. Baker's

"HISTORY OF THE SECRET SERVICE."

For thrilling interest this book transcends all the romances of a thousand years, and conclusively proves that "truth is stranger than fiction."

Agents are clearing from $200 to $300 per month, which we can prove to any doubting applicant. A few more can obtain agencies in territory yet unoccupied. Address
