THE IRISH DEPUTATION.

Farewell Meeting at the Academy of Music Last Evening-Parting Greetings of Philadelphia to Rev. Drs. Denham and Hall-A Large Audience and Interesting Addresses.

Last evening the Academy was thronged at an early hour: a large convocation of Philadel-phis citizens there convened to extend farephis cilizens there convened to extend fare-wells to those whom but a short time since they had welcomed to their city-to extend parting greetings of the churches of Philadel-phin to Rev. James Denham, D. D., and Rev. John Hall, D. D., delegates of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Ireland to the presbyterian Church in Ireland to the American Presbyterian churches. Above the stage the banners of Great Britain and America were entwined gracefully, folding in the centre the evergreen harp of Erin, over which appeared the motto:-

"The Lord watch between me and thee, when we are absent one from another." Gen. xxxi, 49, While directly opposite, ornamenting the centre of the balcony circle, the "Union Jack" and stars and stripes hung festooned, beneath the motio:-

The exercises commenced by the vast congre-gation rising and singing the 100th Psalm, commencing:-

"All people that on earth do dwell, Sing to the Lord with cheerful voice."

fervent prayer was then offered by Rev. J. B. Dales, D. D.

REMARKS OF THE CHAIRMAN.

Ex-Governor Pollock, in offering some introductory remarks, desired to consult brevity in whatever he did. A few weeks ago we assem bled in one of our churches to welcome to our city delegates from foreign shores to the Pres byterian Church of this country. That was no unmeaning ceremony; hearts felt for hearts; emotions true met warm emotions from our brothers coming from that lar-off, loved land. They have been with us and among us. They have looked upon our country, have seen our mountains; they have passed our rivers; they have walked through our cities, and entered our happy homes. They have beheld our wealth and have entered into our loved institutions and public schools, passing into those places where all the youth—none debarred—can attain that richest of gems—education. They have been received with the grasp of friendship into our families, and have occupied our pulpits. They have seen our country; have seen how true nationality is the highest standard of manhood; have witnessed the power of the ballot-box, to which, thank God, the nation restricts none. All this have they seen ! and we meet to-night, not to welcome, but to part-to say farewell!! How often is parting but the sad antithesis of meeting! We meet to give them God-speed to their loved Ireland. May any un-kindness, if unkindness there be here, be sur-rendered. Oh, may England and America be forever bound in the holy ties of true feliow-ship; and when all things of this earth have passed away, and our tears have been dried in that land beyond the river, may we meet to sing the praise around the throne of God in Heaven, where angels meet, where there are no diffe rences of nationality, where all are brethren-in God, in Christ, and in the Holy Spirit.

ADDRESS OF REV. R. ADAIR, D. D.

Rev. Robert Adair, P. D., said :- We meet to bid you farewell! you who have seen our country and our homes! But a short time since we welcomed you. How quick the time has passed, wonderfu', si hts to grand, that demanded out higher, admiration. We go back to our own land with a higher high, to tell our people of a country regarding which they have no just ideas regarding which you yourselves, as well as the people of all the world, have no just con-come. It was the object of our coming to visit your churches, and give expression to the feel-ing that has been so long in our hearts in Ire-land with regard to the churches of America. We have looked upon them throughout some parts of the land, and we have seen so much spiendor of wealth and exquisite skill and sin-gular elements of beauty and tastefulness in the whole arrangement of your places of worship, that we were surprised with pleasure. And that we were surprised with pleasure. And what about the preaching? I must say, in regard to that, that I have been most miterably disappointed! Pardon me for saying so. I had expected on coming here to have heard at least an odd number of great and eloquent sermons. I am free to tell you that I have listened to two or three very able, fally orthodox, and truly eloquent discourses from your pulpits, but the rest have been very com-monplace. (Laughter.) Yet these have kept such a chain about me that I have not been permitted the pleasure of hearing more of your able and eloquent divines. I have suffered great loss by being deprived of that pleasure pethaps, and my people at home have suffered that loss too. I have seen the working of Christmanity too. I have seen the working of Christianity among you, and give glory to the Most High for what He hath done. Springing up on every hand, as rapidly as the builder's hand can work, are the churches and the schools. Since I have seen your schools, I can say that our Sabbath Schools seem to fade away into perfect insigni-ficance to them. This truly is an evidence of how God is working in this country. Rev. Dr. Denham made mention, in complimentary terms, of our country, our people, the Sabbath Schools, which he thought particularly an American institution, and paid a tribute to the teachers, old and young, engaged in the noble work of the free schools of the land, believing that Americans rightly understood the proper foundations for the perpetuity and prosperity of their country, by giving to their youth this sound and thorough secular and religious educa-tion. He referred especially to the mission of Dr. Hall and himself to this land, as the repre-sentatives of the Presbyterian Church of Great Britain and Ireland, to express the earnest desire of that Church that the spirit of union might prevail among the several branches of the American Presbyterian Church, and hoped that the hour would soon come realizing this wish. He reflected somewhat on his misguided country-men who entered into the "Fentan fiasco," and afterwards spoke to that other portion of his countrymen, whom he acknowledged he thought more of than the former, the Scotch-Irish Pres-byterians, urging them to hold on to the doc-trines of Calvin, which they had been educated in, as being the embodiment of a true and strong expression of faith, and concluded with reciprocating the kind wishes and hospitable attentions manifested towards them during their stay in America.

ADDRESS OF REV. DR. HALL.

It is to me a sad and sorrowful fact that I tonight stand up to speak to this audience. On the 13th of May, bright and sunshiny, a fit omen of the happiness that was before me, we steamed rapidly into the midst of the beauties of the harbor of New York. On the 13th of this month-next Saturday-I have the prospect of sailing away from the same harbor, and to return, after these two months of most pleasant and salutary ex-citement, to my own land. I have been told by some, that "It is a shame to go away so soon," and I too feel, in some measure, that there is truth in the statement; but I hope it will be borne in mind that we have, by God's blessing, accomplished that round of service which the Church prescribed for us. For a few days past I have been feeling somewhat like a vagrant, wandering about without any definite engagement; and with an honest desire for work, I do again wish to go back to honest and proper employment. (Applause.) These two months have been of singularly pleasant and of permanently useful employment. I have had the pleasure of being present at some of the great meetings of the Church.

In travelling around I have seen the standing of this vast nation, and I have wondered, like unto Great Britain, what magic fchain could maintain this vast unity! What could so bind man to man as to keep them in such a great brotherhood? What sucred influences could work upon them that they lived so long together without disordering their relations long And I have thought of ancient Rome, and the thought has sometimes forced itself before me, is it to be with Great Britain and America as it has been with preceding empires that have culminated into national life, and then have vanished from sight, like the fast dying brand, leaving nothing but ruins. Then again I thought there is no comparison between the two coun-tries and the empires of the past. We do not need to ask, as has been asked of Syria, Greece, Rome, and Carthage, "Where are they !" There is an element in these Christian empires which they did not possess. There is a Christian energy to which Greece and Rome were strangers. They had not this preserving salt that God has given us. Oh, should we not be faithful that this salt may never lose its savor ! Let us pray that the citizens of this great republic and the subjects of Queen Victoria may have an increasing and deepening experience and desire for that true conserving and preserving power which God hath connected with our blessed and holy religion. I have been aston-ished with the mass of fertile resources by which the people of this republic are characterized. You have got above the old-fashioned inquiry, "How grandtather did such and such a thing You walk straight to the mark, right to it, and tinish it off square. In such a disposition and nature surely there are great advantages, because of most fertile resources. I have not, indeed, seen any wooden nutmegs, and suppose the culture of that particular kind of article has ceased in America. (Applause and laughter.) But I have seen in many places an carnestness, an audacity of ingenuity. I have wondered and hoped, shall not the citizeus of this glorious land be citizeus with ourseives in

CITY COUNCILS.- The final meeting of City

Mr. Shallcross moved the confirmation of certain police appointments by the Mayor, which was agreed to. Mr. Hodgdon reported the cash account of the Air. Hougdon reported this cash balance in trea-Sory, July I, 1867, $1,516,567 34. Appropriated thus-To payment of interest on city lonns, $1,030,-426 44; sinking fund securities, $1,208,606 26; sundry claims, $777,024 61. The Chamber now passed, with amendments the bill leasing the refreshment saloon at Fairmount.

Mr. Wagner, in answer to a resolution of quiry to the Committee on Law, reported that there is no petroleum illegally stored at Chesnut street wharf, Schuylkill. The same gentleman offered a resolution for-mally welcoming to the city the music societies from other localities who may come to participate in the Swagerfest. Also, Mr. Wagner reported an ordinance fixing the boundary lines of election divisions in the Twenty-sixth ward. The subject of the Nicolson pavement was now

Mr. Hopkins moved an indefinite postponement. Mr. Hopkins moved an indefinite postponement. Let the parties go to work, and those opposed to it can take out an injunction if they feel litigious about the matter. There are people opposing this improvement who will not sell their property for any price whatever. The speaker did not believe that Mr. Bouvier, or any of the opponents of the measure, would go to court about it. If this reso-lution is passed the improvement of Broad street is checked. The Courts have invariably concurred with Councils in controlling the highways. What is wanted is to stop the work, and Councils ought is wanted is to stop the work, and Councils ought not to recede from their action at the last meeting. Mr. King coincided with Mr. Hopkins. There never yet was an improvement that was not com-bated by somebody, and with these few exceptions the entire community is solicitous for the paying of Broad street. The speaker felt certain that the courts would decline to interfere with the action courts would decine to interfere with the action of Councils, or to dictate with what material the streets shall be paved. Mr. Wagner took the same ground. The motion to indefinitely postpone the resolu-tion was carried by a vote of 14 to 7. [The work, therefore, goes on.—Rep.] The amendments of Common Council to the bill applications the Philadelphis and Reading Railroad authorizing the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad to extend its telegraph wires were now concurred in, and the bill passed.

A resolution was passed that the owners of

The proposed apprypriation will make a sum total si0,000 for fees of the Clerk of Quarter Sessions. The proposed apprypriation will make a sam total of $15,000 for one year's fees of said Clerk, being a sum greater than the aggregate salaries of the four Judges of said Court, and more than the aggre-rat d salaries of any four heads of departments, including the Mayor of the city. In 1659 the Tax Receiver of the city had an net passed that diverted from the city treasury the costs and penalties on registered taxes, and made them a part of the emoluments of his office. Then, recently, the District Attorney had an aci pessed increasing the fees of said office one hun-dred per cent. The Coroner had a nice addition to his fees, and the Assessors have had their salaries increased two hundred dollars each.

The city Councils are the scapegoats for all these sins. They must raise by taxation all that is ne-cessary to foot the bills, and then be censured for the extravagances of the city government, and for making extra appropriations. NOTICE TO MARINERS. Notice is given that the Martin's Industry Light-cessel, off the entrance to Port Royal, S. C., has been and how pleasantly, too 1 If you have expe-rienced but half the joy that we have, you are amply compensated for the danger of crossing the stormy waves of old ocean. When you land safely on your shores, as we pray you may, what shout of welcome will rend the air! and reechoing across the wide waste, we will hear that you still remember us kindly. You have seen what we are and what we do. You will speak of us when gone, how we have lived, of our towering mountains, of our rippling streams, of our free institutions, of our luxuriant fields and great cities, and, too, that the laborer is equal with the millionaire in this land of the free; and you will tell your brethren that they know not half of what we are. As we bid you an affectionate farewell, we give you all the wishes that can come from Christian hearts, and you will carry with your progress to the homes so loved that you have left, our kindest and most sincere feelings for your welfare. If God shall smile upon our efforts to make this land a mountain of holiness, we shall succeed, but to do this we want your earnest prayers.

Though the Atlantic rolls between us, yet we belong to the same circle, of the same brother. hood, of one God, one faith, one baptism-one God the Father above all. As our late revered President said, "If God be with us in this struggle for national life and perpetuity of our free institutions, we shall succeed. If He with hold His omnipotent hand, we shall surely fall." Let our prayer, as brethren, as iriends, as Christians, be that the bond of union between our countries shall grow stronger, better, and hoifer.

ADDRESS OF REV. JAMES DENHAM, D. D.

I do not believe that I have had the pleasant privilege of addressing before so large, so noble an assemblage of citizens and friends, as is here convened to-night! And it is with great plea-sure that I address this, the first meeting in your city. I come here commissioned by the Church and the people of my country, to give to the people and to the churches of America. the assurance that whatever have been the re-presentations or misrepresentations of your enemies and our false friends, that there feelings of lealousy, of distrust, of unkindness lingering in British hearts, and abiding in Iriah bosoms towards the people of the United States, the great commission I was to fulfil was to tell all the people of this great land, that there is no foundation, no truth whatever in such statements. They are the statements of our mutua enemies. (Applause.) On our part, the people across the water, there is only this one senti-ment and true feeling, of deepest respect, of strongest friendship, of true brotherhood to the people and churches of this land. (Applause.)

ve come here to give expression to that feel ing, and have done so, with the deep earnest-ness of our hearts, to this city, as the first one in this great nation. We have travelled over your railroads, and sailed on your pleasant rivers; have met with your people in their cities and in their towns, and can say with gladness that we have received everywhere, of all parties, from all the people with whom we have come in contact, the fullest and truest manifeststions on the part of the citizens of America; the same feelings existing towards us, that boly feeling of amity and love. (Applause.) I re joice that I shall be enabled to go home and give to those princely merchants and plous ministers, and the people of the land, the reciprocal assurances that whatever some may have said regarding the feelings of you, my frien is towards us; that we are brothers; and that on all hands we received dear and strong mani-testations of kindness and friendship of the Americun people.

We have now, after two months, had the great We have now, after two months, had the great privilege of passing screes your country, of tra-versing at least the corners of your great prai-ries, of penetrating hundreds of miles of your wondrous forests, of climbing your steep and towering mountains—the Alleghenies and the White Range—and as we have looked forth on all lands, everywhere we have seen that which has riveted our attention; thingsso exquisite, so ATTEMPTED SDICIDE ON A FERRY BOAT .- On the quarter-past 11 trip of the ferry boat West Jersey, from this side last night, a man aged about 45, supposed to be a Mr. Toucey, of this city, attempted to committed suicide by jumping oury, attempted to committee shields by jumping overboard. He had been walking up and down previous to the sct, and when the boat was beyond Smith's Island, he wen' to the stern, stepped over the chain, and, after laying his hat down, deliberately jumped overboard. The boat was immediately backed to the spot, but no trace of him could be seen. In his hat were no trace of the photographs of a young lady and a speciacle case. On the back of one of the pho-tographs was the following:-"Remember, my father, that you always have a friend in God, and that He may ever bless and help and be with you, is the earnest wish and prayer of your daughter. (Signed) HATTIL." The would-be suicide was finally rescued, and taken to the Camden Station House.
