CITY INTELLIGENCE

[FOR ADDITIONAL LOCAL ITHMS SEE INSIDE PAGES.] A TERRIBLE CATASTROPHE.

The Caving In of a Wharf-Three Lives Lost - Several Persons Injured, and Preperty Damaged to the Amount of $25,000, Etc.

Yesterday afternoon a terrible accident occurred in the southern part of the city, by which three men lost their fives and a large amount of property was damaged. The long wharf which extends into the Delaware from the foot of Mead alley, between Almond and Catharine streets, was the scene of the catastrophe, which occurred at 5 o'clock. This wharf is, or rather was, about 250 feet in length, and varying from 30 to 40 feet in width. About 50 feet from the river end was a sluice-way, and another about 80 feet from the shore end, thus virtually making a wharf resting upon three piers. These sluices were to break the force of the water rushing against the piers, being supposed to be more substantial than the other parts, by filling in with dirt. Yesterday afternoon a terrible accident oc-more substantial than the other parts, by filing in with diri.

The wharf is owned and occupied by S. & W. Welsh, a well-known business firm on the river front, and was at the time of the accident well stored with hogsheads of sugar. The greater portion of this sugar was placed upon the north side of the pier, that being the most substantial part, while the southern end was shaky and considered unsafe. Placed directly upon the sluice-way nearest the river were one hundred hogsheads of sugar, upon which a number of workmen were engaged in making repairs. Instantly, without any warning, and with a resounding crash, the whole mass was precipitated into the river. By this disastrous occurrence three men went down with the crumbling ruin, and were lost to sight. Captain Merriruin, and were lost to sight. Captain Merriman, of the brig J. D. Lincoln; Mr. Charles Edwards, a master cooper; and John Cunningham were either crushed to death amid the c:ashing barrels and beams, or found a watery

Captain Merriman was engaged in conversation with the mate of the brig, relative to the business in which they were engaged—that of unloading the vessel. The mate had just business in which they were engaged—that of unloading the vessel. The mate had just turned to go on board the brig, and the Captain started along the wharf. At this critical moment the caving in, which did not last over thirty seconds, took place. The mate felt the wharf moving. He sprang to a log, which he succeeded in getting hold of, and the next moment he was aboard the vessel. Upon turning around he saw the Captain, with uplifted arms, going down among the hogsheads and arms, going down among the hogsheads and arms, going down among the hogsheads and dirt.

Another man who happened io be on the wharf, a few feet west of the place that gave way, was partly taken down. He was rescued after great difficulty, and found to be much bruised about his body, besides having received a fracture of his collar-bone. Still another man's arms and hands were observed sticking above the surface of the ruins. He was also above the surface of the ruins. He was also rescued, and it was ascertained that he had re-ceived a lacerated wound on his head, supposed to have been made by the chime of a hogshead. The brig J. D. Lincoin and a three-masted schooner were lying at the end of the outer pier. The Russian barque Czarina was in the dock, the bow inwards or towards the bulkhead.

When the caving in occurred, the rush of the water was so violent that the Russian barque was partly drawn into the crevasse, and the mighty flow of the water through the demolished sluice tore a smaller vessel near by from her moorings, Like wild-fire the news of the catastrophe spread around, and everybody rushed to the scene, which was one of intense excitement. Everybody who had a relative working upon that ill-fated pier, or on the Delaware front, hastened to the scene. In a short time several thousand people were there. The shipping close by was crowded with spectators, many of whom seemed to suffer intense mental anguish, as though they thought their husbands, sons, or brothers had perished. Every available spot that formed a foothold from which a sight could be obtained of the chasm had its occupant. Police officers of Frank Hampton's division were speedily in attendance, and set them-selves to work to keep the increasing crowd selves to work to keep the increasing crowd back from danger.

Of the one hundred hogsheads precipitated into the river, not one can be found.

It is certainly ascertained that three men were killed aimost instantly, while many others were more or less injured.

Mr. Charles Edwards, aged about fifty years, is a married man, and leaves a wife and three children to mourn his loss. They reside in a little street running into Wharton, above Third.

John Cunningham, aged 45, is also married, and leaves a wife and six children, the cidest being 17. His late residence is 122 Bread street.

Towards nightfall five Custom House officers Powards nightfall five Custom House officers arrived at the scene of destruction and took charge of the surroundings. Men were engaged in removing the hogsheads from the still standing portions of the wharf, which gave symp-toms of caving in also, it being cracked and loosened to the extent of 40 feet.

To sugar was being unloaded from the barque Czarina, from Sagua, W. I She had 900 hogsheads of it on board. Each hogshead weighs at least 1600 pounds, making the total loss of sugar 160,000 pounds, which at 11 cents per pound, would be between seventeen and eighteen thousand dollars.

To repair the wharf will require an expenditure of about $4000, and additional damages sustained will make the whole loss by the catastrophe about $25,000.
Of those who were injured by the caving in were William Barnes, whose collar-bone was fractured, and a boy named Porter, who was severely injured about the head and breast by being ismmed among the beards and beams. This morning it was ascertained that Cap-tain Merriman's residence was in a little town near Portland, Me. He leaves a wife and child.

All the vessels along the river front, and near where the sad casualty happened, displayed their flags at half-mast this morning. The sluice was sixteen feet in width, but the chasm made by the rushing waters has widened it to seventy feet. The sinking of the wharf was noticed yesterday afternoon, before the break-ing away, but no thoughts were entertained that so sudden a collapse would occur. The wharf was then examined, and pro-nounced perfectly safe, and one of the builders, Mr. Leisenby, said that by means of a boat the sluice could be examined, and if any repairs seemed necessary, they should be made at once. Too late, however, for soon after that part so recently pronounced substantial and safe was swept resistlessly away.

The wharf was built about ten months ago. The water around it is forty feel in death.

The water around it is forty feet in depth. A gang of men are at work now in removing the debris. There is a rumor that two little boys, debrts. There is a rumor that two little boys, who had been seen about the hogsheads just before their descent into the river; had fallen into the water and were drowned; but we have received word from the wharf master that the two boys mentioned were driven from the wharf before the catastrophe happened. None of the bodies of the three unfortunate men have Yest rday they started for a certain rural retreat, and when at Seventh street and Columbia avenue were infatuated with the idea that to pound a policeman's head, as a preliminary measure, would cause a right setting out for their individual happiness; so they attacked Policeman Kimball, and a struggle for the mastery ensued which beggars description. As a just retribution for his clubbings about the sconces of the trate belligerents, the officer had his clothes almost entirely torn off. Finally, his clothes almost entirely torn off. Finally, Officers Moore and Johnson arrived to his rescue, and they succeeded in arresting the brothers Corney. Alderman Fitch held them, in default of $1500 bail each, to answer at court. MRS. PARTINGTON INSULTED,-The White Mountains of New Hampshire are evidently a great institution-very high, heavy frosts, beautiful view, four dollar dinners. But the practical eye of a certain renowned Drake saw those smooth-faced rocks, and thereupon adorned and variegated the bridle-path to the Tip-top House with his familiar S. T.-1860-X. PLANTA-TION BITTERS. This raised the ire of the Mrs. Partingtons composing the Legislature of the Granite State, who got their wise heads together, outlawed Dr. Drake, and made it a penal offense to ply the artistic brush on their beloved hills. Verily, the fine arts are at a discount in New Hampshire. Query-Did Drake pay them for this splendid advertisement?

In Season.-While the advertising agent for Helmbold was putting up his mammoth posters in New Haven, Connecticut, on a large board near a book store, a young lady very richly dressed in silks and satins, but evidently one of the "shoddy" seeing the advertisement, sup-posing it to be a concert or circus, stepped into a book store where tickets are usually sold to such entertainments, and asked the clerk for "Two tickets to Helmbold's Buchu." Of course the polite clerk excused the matter as well as possible, and the lady retired amid the suppressed laughter of several "bloods" who were present.—Sunday Mercury, N. Y.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION AND A HEALTHY Skin can never be obtained while the pores of the skin are obstructed, or the blood is in an impure condition. Dr. Jayne's Alterative will, however, restore the purity of the skin, and will thoroughly cleanse the blood; it will also remove the obstinate state of the pores, and free the perspiration from all impurities and gross particles. A trial will establish its efficacy. Prepared only at No. 242 Chesnut

sed from Second Edition.

Trial of John H. Sarratt.

Conlinued from Second Edition.

Mr. Carrington is mistaken in talking of God as a God of vengeance and a God of wrath; assuredly mistaken, as, he is in saying that peace has returned. God is a God of love, and not of wrath. But he (Mr. Merrick) would seek to excite no projudice. The Jury are under oath to do their duty, and they must disoard all prejudics and stand forth as mon with unclouded in the distance of the cause, and it is necessary to recur. The first count of the indictment charges furnithed the stages of the cause, and it is necessary to recur. The first count of the indictment charges furnithed the second count charges him with assassinating Mr. Lincoln. In connection with Booth.

The third count unlies the prisoner with Booth. Harold, Payne, and Mrs. Surratt, in the killing of Mr. Lincoln. Bear in mind one feature in the indictment. The fourth count specifies that the persons named and other persons unknown did make an assault upon Mr. Lincoln. The jury must find whether what is laid in the indictment is true. It is charged that the parties then and there made an assault, it pusthem all in Washington, and the jury must lind if they all were here. The charge in the third and fourth count is that these parties murdered. Lincoln then sand there. Are you not then try log long at the lindictment, and the vardict must be guilty or not cally a serious of them try log long at the fore the serious of them try log long at the long at the long at the processing and one-there are the serious of them try log long at the fore the processing and the country of the serious serious serious serious and interest as a summer to the serious serio them? The law is given you to lighten your pathway in the investigation, and is not mandatory upon you.

Mr. Merrick cited from 3d Johnson's Cases, page 285, to show that the jury were the judges of the law as well as of the facts, and they might determine the crime as set forth in the indictment. It is the conscience of the jury, says Sir Matthew Hale, that must pronounce the prisoner guilty or not guilty. It is they, and not the judge. Your consciences must be satisfied, and say to you, "Well done, good and faithful servants;" and to do that your verdict must be in accordance with your conscientious convictions.

Mr. Merrick said he would now call attention to the propositions of law, and refer to some authorities. In the propositions submitted, Mr. Carrington did not go so far as his colleague. Even if it is proved that Surratt was in Washington City on the night of the murder it is not enough, but they must prove that he was near the scene of the murder, or at such convenient distance as to render material aid in the commission of the act. Whether Surratt was present adding at the murder is for the presecution to prove, but it is the rule of law that the jury must be satisfied of that fact.

Mr. Merrick denied that each conspirator was liable in himself for what another conspirator does, or whatever is done by a co-conspirator; but this is not a substantive part. With regard to Mr. Pierrepont's fourth proposition, submitted yesterday, Mr. Merrick and he heard it with amazement and pleasure. Amazement, that a lawyer of Mr. Pierrepont's ability should enunciate such a doctrine; and pleasure, because it was the dying struggle of an evil cause. The proposition referred to is that which claims that the crime was enhanced from the fact that the murdered man was President of the United States.

This was in pursuance of a doctrine, said Mr. Merrick, now becoming popular, that officers are invested with imperial power. The President, he consended, was marger a citizen of the United States.

This was in pursuance or a doctrine, said art, merrick, now becoming popular, that officers are invested with imperial power. The President, he contended, was merely a citizen of the United States, and in killing him it was taking only the life of a man, no more and no less. No man looked with more horror upon this crime than he (Mr. Merrick), yet in the contemplation of law the killing of one libs crime than he (Mr. Merrick), yet in the contemplation of law the killing was but the killing of one individual, and the charge is murder, and nothing but murder. But the gentleman says there are no accessories. There is but one crime in which there are no accessories, and that crime is treason, and in treason the defendant is entitled to a list of the witnesses against him. If it was meant to call this treason, why was not the list of witnesses furnished? It is an attempt to trick the man out of his life by indicting him for murder, and then trying him for treason.

dicting him for hidrer, and then dying her treason.

The sixth proposition sets forth that the personal presence was not necessary, but that he could perform his part in the conspiracy as well in Eimira as at Washington. Was Surratt at Elmira for the purpose of performing his part of the conspiracy? The presecution did not show that he was in Elmira doing his part in the conspiracy, and when the defense attempted to prove he was in Elmira, and what he was doing there, it was objected to and the objection was suntained.

was doing there, it was objected to and the objection was sustained.

Let us deal fairly by this young man, and though the reputation of Jeseph Holt should not be vindicated, by the verdict of the jury, for the shedding of innocent blood, let us do justice still. The proposition of law of the counsel on the other side gives rise to the question as to who are the principals and who are accessories, and also as to the grade of principals. The principals in the different degrees involve different degrees in crime; and a principal in one degree cannot be a principal in another degree.

Mr. Merrick cited from Hale's pleas of the Crown, ist vol., page 438, and contended from this authority that he who stands by assisting is principal in the second degree; but if a crime is done, the who counsels, but is not present assisting, is an accessory. In supsecond degree; but it a crime is done, he who counsels, but is not present assisting, is an accessory. In support of this position Mr. Merrick cited list Hale, page els. On page 435 of the same book it is shown who are accessories. On page 616 it is shown that that which makes an accessory before the fact is command. The principles referred to, Mr. Merrick contended, laid at the very foundation of the English law, and he did not suppose his Honor sat upon the bench to report these principles.

the very foundation of the English law, and the suppose his Honor sat upon the bench to report these principles.

Russell & Ryans' Crown cases, page 25, were also cited from, also page 113 of the same book. On page 249 is a case in which several parties planned the utterance of a forged order, and the actual utterar alone was held as the principal. The same principle is decided on page 363, where it is held that persons not near enough to give aid are not principals in a crime. On page 421 it is decided that even going towards a place where a crime is being committed, but not near enough to aid in the commission of the act does not make a principal. act, does not make a principal.

PHILADELPHIA, March is, 1867.

I find "Hoofiand's German Bittern" is not an intoxycating beverage, but is a good Tonic, useful in diseases of the digestive organs, and of great benefit in cases of debility and want of nervous action in the system. Yours truly, Principal Office, 631 Arch Street, Philadelphia.

[From the Rev. E. D. Fendell. Assistant Editor Christian Chronicis, Philadelphia.] I have derived decided benefit from the use of Hoot-land's German Bitters, and feel it my privilege to re-commend them as a most valuable tonic to all who are suffering from general debility, or from diseases arising from derangement of the liver.

Yours truly,

E. D. FENDALL.

[From Rev. D. Merrige, Pastor of the Passyunk Bap-tist Church, Philadelphia.] From the many respectable recommendations given to Dr. Hoofland's German Bitters, I was induced to give them a trial. After using several bottles I found them to be a good semedy for debility, and a most excellent tonic for the stomach.

D. MERRIGE.

(From Rev. William Smith, formerly Paster of the Vincentown and Miliville (N. J.) Baptist Churches,] Havirg used in my family a number of bottles of your Hoofiand's German Bitters, I have to say that I regard them as an excellent medicine, especially adapted to remove the diseases they are recommended for. They strengthen and invigorate the system when debilitated, and are useful in disorders of the liver, loss of appetite, etc. I have also recommended them to several of my riends, who have tried them and found them greatly beneficial in the restoration of health,

[From A. M. Spangler, Editor of he Culturist, No. 2 North Sixth Street,]

Both Sixth Street.]

Bome eighteen months since, I was a severe sufferer from dyspepsia. I was not only unable to take plain food without suffering great distress, but had become so deblitated as to be almost unfitted for active business of any kind.

After trying a variety of so-called remedies, all of which proved worthiess, I was induced, at the suggestion of a medical friend, to give Hoofland's German Bitters a trial. I accordingly purchased six bottles, which were taken in accordance with your directions.

bottles, which were taken in accordance with your directions.

The result was a complete removal of all discressing symptoms after eating or drinking, and a full restoration of strength, so that I now eat all ordinary kinds of food with impunity, and am able to attend to all the active duties of a large and arduous business as well as at any period of my life; the good effects of the Bitters were manifested before I had taken the first bottle.

I have also used it in my family with the happies results, and take great pleasure in adding my tests mony to that of the many others who have been benefited by it. I find great benefit from the use of a bottle in the spring and fail. They not only create a vigorous appetite, but give a healthy tone to the stomach by strengthening its disestive powers.

If the above testimony will be the means of inducing any who suffer from Dyspepsis to give your Bitters a trial (when it. I feel confident, will give them relief) it is at your service.

Yours truly,

A. M. SPANGLER.

Rev. J. S. Herman, of the German Reformed Church, Kutstown, Eerks county, Pa., was cured of Dyspepsis of twenty years' standing.

After several speeches, resolutions were unanimously adopted, expressing an unalterable purpose to carry out in good faith, and without reservation, the Congressional measures looking to restoration, endorsing the platform of the recent Republican Convention in Columbia, and declaring the maintenance of that platform, without qualification, the only evidence in any candidate for public favor of devotion to the great party through whose exertions alone the South can look for restoration.
