ANOTHER BLOODY BRAWL.

A Man Severely Stabbed During a Bar-

Almost, but not quite, a murder! The scene of the affair is a lager-beer anicon, kept by one Christian Roedell, at No. 756 S. Third street, below German, in this devoted city. The curtain rose at 8 o'clock last evening, and thereupon the following dramatis persons came upon the stage:—George Dinkerloker, an unmarried youth of twenty years, and a native of Germany. He is a baker by trade, but finding the business unprofitable, or for some other reason, good and satifactory, doubtless, to himself, he deserts his regular calling, and for some time past has been attending bar at the lager-beer salcon kept by Herr Keisel, on Fifth street, below Bedford. Bearing him company comes John Hoffman and his son Henry. The latter has reached his eighteenth year only, but has already served an apprenticeship in, and graduated with high distinction from, the House of Refuge. These three are accompanied by sundry frequenters of the piace, and the whole party seat themselves about a table, and call lustily for beer.

Beer responds and disappears, and under its soothing influence, repeated several times, for the sake of insuring a full measure of calmness, a pack of cards is procured, and for nearly two hours the time glides smoothly on. At about a quarter before ten, however, a momentous question is presented to the assembled "jolly fellows." They have warmed and soothed and calmed themselves with beer from the generous store of Herr Roedell, and somebody must erase the score. Hoffman the younger and Dinkerloker discuss the matter, but they become excited, the soothing effect of the beer is counteracted by the fervor of pas slon, and presently young Hoffman gives his antagouist the lie. Dinkerloker has not been tutored in the House of Refuge, yet he is "up" in the ways of the world. Therefore he discuss the antagonist the lie. Dinkerloker has not been tutored in the House of Refuge, yet he is "up" in the ways of the world. Therefore he displays no mock humility by pocketing the losuit and paying the score, but, like a true man, at once hurls back the lie, and dares the other to repeat his assertion. Young Hoffman is brave, and responds by again asserting that Dinkerloker is a liar. Then, the bystanders allege, Dinkerloker drops the combat of words, and gives his antagonist a light blow in the face.

At this point, Hoffman the younger springs from his chair, informs the party that he has a knife, and asserts roundly that he intends to make use of it. Hoffman's valor is of the sub-stantial kind, and he forthwith whips out the stantial kind, and be forthwith whips out the murderous weapon; makes a furious lunge at Dinkerloker, who endeavors to parry the blow; strikes his antagonist fair and square in the face, cutting through his cheek, and leaving a fearful gash, two inches or more in length; through which his jaw and tongue are visible, makes another and another lunge at his victim, each time leaving the mark of his weapon upon the head and face of the latter.

At this stage Hoffman the elder interferes and attempts to drag his son away from his murderous work. But the infuriated boy turns his hand upon his father, and leaves the mark of his knife in two places on his left leg, one of his knife in two places on his left leg, one of these wounds being four inches in length, and the other about an inch, the latter severing a tendon of the knee joint. Having beaten his father off, young Heffman again turns his attention to Dinkerloker, whom he hacks about the arms and legs, inflicting upon the left of those members three glaring gashes.

Then Mrs. Roedell, the wife of the saloon keeper, rushes between the combatants but on.

Then Mrs. Roedell, the wife of the saloon keeper, rushes between the combatants; buten-counters the fate of all peacemakers, and retires unsuccessful, but with three several cuts about her arms. Now Dinkerloker begins to show signs of waning strength; he has bied profusely, the floor, walls, and furniture of the saloon being crimsoned with his blood, and as he is about to fall, Mr. Roedell takes him in his arms, drags him away from the bloodthirsty boy who has just been turned loose from the House of Refuge and finally has him removed boy who has just been turned loose from the House of Refuge, and finally has him removed to the Pennsylvania Hospital. None of Din-kerlofer's wounds are dangerous, and therefore

Young Hoffman, having almost demolished his artsgonist, coolly walks out of the blood-stained apartment and lingers a while in front. But Officer McAfee, of the Second District Police, arrives on the ground just then, and seeing the murderous assailant standing in front of the saleon approaches him perhaps front of the saloon, approaches him, perhaps with sinister intent. Young Hoffman, how-ever, tarries no longer, and through the streets and around the corners he speeds, followed closely by the officer of the law. He is at last overtaken in an alley on Passyunk road, below German street, and without a show of resist-Station House. The blood-stained weapon, a small, sharp, pocket knife, is found secreted in the lining of his coat. His father, although he endeavored to stay the murderous hand of the boy, is likewise locked up, to await develop-

On the 28th of July last a horse and wagon was taken from the stable of Mr. Zachariah Leidy, at White Hall Station, and driven into the city. To escape discovery the wagon was taken apart, and stowed, as is alleged, in the kitohen of Coyle's house. During this last visitation by the officers a blanket and other etceteras belonging to the rig were found, but no trace of the wagon or horse. These, however, were recovered in New Jersey. Alderman Beitler committed Coyle in default of $2000 bail.

DISORDERLY .- Michael Kane and William Disorder,—Michael Kane and William Thompson, after imbibing largely with the genial proprietor of a beer salcon, in Shippen street, grew wrothy, and assaulted their quondam friend. The tumblers arched through the air and smashed against the wall with wondrous regularity, until the arrival of policemen put a stop to the sport. Alderman Tittermary committed the individuals to prison.

A LITTLE GIRL named Mary Wallace, aged ten years, said to be without home or friends, was sent to the House of Refuge yesterday to escape the hardened life of a criminal.

Franciscus as their caudidate for Select Councilman. In the list we observe the names of many respectable and honorable merchants and business men, who have the interest of the Ward at heart, and we have no doubt that this eompliment to Mr. Franciscus will be duly appreciated by him. We areglad to learn that a meeting of the citizens of the Tenth Ward is called for Monday evening, at the hall of the "Grey Reserves," on Broad street, below Race, for the purpose of taking this vital matter into

RECKLESS DRIVING, although so dangerous, is a favorite sport. About half-past 7 o'clock this morning, a man ran into an old lady who was crossing Second street, at the corner of Market, and knocked her down. The snaft struck her on one side of the neck, inflicting a very painful injury. For some time she could not be removed from the sidewalk, where her havelldered and wearing children ware school. bewildered and weeping children were gathered about her; but after a time she was placed upon a settee, and taken to her home in the neighbor-

A DIBADVANTAGE sometimes results from having the same name with several other people. In our issue of yesterday we noticed the finding of a couple of colored waifs on the steps of Mr. William M. Stewart's residence, at No. 184 Richmond street. We had in mind another of that name, and were led astray by the Directory. But when people induced to the the Directory. But when people indulge in the use of names which are also used by other people, mistakes will occur.

The train will re-turn to the city on Monday morning at six o'clock. This will be a splendid affair.

CONTINUOUS TROUBLE. - The Brophy shooting CONTINUOUS TROUBLE.—The Brophy Shooting case bids fair to place all the members of the two households in duress. Resulting from that affair, a quarrel yesterday ensued between James, Michael, and his wife Mary, and Mrs. Brophy the elder. The Great Fire at Plattsburg, N. Y. LOSS ON BUILDINGS FROM ONE HUNDRED AND SETEN-TY-FIVE THOUSAND TO TWO HUNDRED AND PIFTY THOUSAND DOLLARS-HIMMENSE LOSSES ON GOODS AND PEESONAL PROPERTY.

THOUSAND DOLLARS—IMMENSE LOSSES ON GOODS AND PERSONAL PROFERTY.

The Platisburg Sentinet of Thursday contains an account of the great fire at Platisburg on Tuesday last. That enterprising village has received a severe blow. A large district of the town, composing some st is best business portions, was completely swept by the confingration. The fire department worked with energy, but was unequal to the emergency. It is probable that a single steam fire engine would have arrested the flames at the locality in which the fire originated. We copy from the Sentinet.—

On Tuesday night, a little before 12 o'clock, a fire broke out in the sheds attached to the Presbyterian Church. Before efficient ald could be obtained, the Church itself was wrapped in flames, and the fire spread rapidly north, east, and west. The fire company did all that was in their power, but it was impossible to guard three or four avenues to its advance. The result is a most disastrous confiagration. Every bulleting between the alley and Brinkhoof street, all north of the sliey to those fronting on Court street, all on the east side of Margaret treet, from Bridge street to Wing's new store, and all on the south side of Bridge street from Margaret to the main building of the Gregory wooden factory, is destroyed.

The Presbyterian church was totally destroyed, with most of its valuable furniture and communion set.

After giving a list of the sufferers, numbering fifty-with most of its valuable furniture and communion act.

After giving a list of the sufferers, numbering fifty-five names, the Sentinel continues:—

We do not pretend to perfect accuracy in the foregoing. We could not go into the figures of losses and amount of insurance in the time remaining before going to press. The loss is estimated variously from $175,000 to $180,000. The loss of goods and personal property must be as much more.

Too mush cannot be said in commendation of the fire company. Two companies of the Forty-second came to our assistance from the barracks, and with their practical hands did most excellent service.

The plies of goods on the square and along the streets a little remote from the fire were truly astonishing. Some were stolen and some badly damaged.

The result was a complete removal of all distressing symptoms after sating or drinking, and a full restoration of strength, so that I now eat all ordinary kinds of food with impunity, and am able to attend to all the active duties of a large and ardoous business as well as at any period of my life; the good effects of the Bitters were manifested before I had taken the first bottle.

I have also used it in my family with the happles results, and take great pleasure in adding my test mony to that of the many others who have been benefited by it. INDIAN AFFAIRS.

Commissioners Visit to Washington

Ste., Etc., Etc., Etc., Etc., Etc.,

WASHINGTON, August 24.—The Commissioner of Indian Affairs, Mr. Taylor, returned to Washington this morning on strictly private business, intending to rejoin the Indian Commissioners in

The Commissioners had gone up the Missouri river to obtain information from persons familiar with the country north of Nebraska, in order to select the most suitable territory for a general Northern Indian Reservation. Mr. Taylor reports that agents have been sent out to notify both the hostile and the peaceful Indians of the desire of the Commisslopers to meet them in council at Caramie, between the 13th and 16th of September, with a view to reconcile and harmonize all differences, and to produce a distinct and proper understanding of the rights and interest of all parties.

If the Commissioners cannot fully consummate their object, they will endeavor to separate the peaceful from the hostile Indians, and to place the former on reservations under Government care, and the encouragement in every thing which will contribute to their physical comfort and moral improvement.

The Commissioners proceed in their work on the principle that peace among all the Indian tribes is essential to the increase of the population of the country and the development of our great mineral and agricultural interests, and the safety of the lines of travel, and that hostilities with even one tribe seriously embarrasses this desired result, to say nothing of the millions of money spent and the lives lost in continued warfare.

The Commissioners are represented to be a unit in the belief that their efforts to secure a general peace will be successful. General Sherman is not so hopeful as they are, but is doing all in his power to assist them in the accomplishment of their purposes.

This office he accepted and held for one year, when he was elected to a tutorship in Williams. College, whence he was promoted in 1793 to a similar position in Yale. In 1801 he was elected to the Professorship of Mathematics and Natural Philosophy in the latter institution, though in consequence of the feeble state of his health he was unable to enter on the discon, though in consequence of the feeble state of his health he was mable to enter on the discharge of his duties till 1803, in the summer of which year he was formally inaugurated, and at the same time ordained a minister of the Gospel. Private letters have been received in this city from Baranquilla, United States of Colombia, which state that during the late civil war the foreign merchants of that place were exposed to considerable annoyance. The Mosquera Government disabled all the steamers lying in Baranguilla, without regard to nationality, $40,000. quilla on the lith ult., by removing essential parts of their machinery: but the merchants having remonstrated, and entered claims for damages, the machinery was returned the next day. day. General Mendoza threatened to cut the throat of any one who interfered with his proceedings

The suffering among the poorer class of people was very great, they being forced to serve the Government without pay, while their families were starving. On the leth of Jaly General Mendoza stated that his soldiers were wholly without supplies, and that he should be obliged to turn them losse upon the town unless he received aid. A meeting of the foreign residents was held, and $1000 raised and sent to feed the soldiers, in order to protect themselves. On the evening of the leth there was quite a stir in the streets, caused by a party attempting to murder Prado, who, however, succeeded in escaping, after several shots were fired. July 22, at 3 P. M., news was received from Santa Marta that the troubles were over if General Lopez would acknowledge the present Congress and their President, General Santos Acosta (as it was reported the day befors he had done). Fighting was, however, still going on at Rio Hache, where nearly every house had been destroyed by General Herrera. General Torreas was fighting for the Santa Marta party at Rio Hache, and had lost two hundred men in one action. Many innecent persons had been shot in their houses. The steamer Columbia had been sent to Rio Hache to put a step to the fighting.

London, August 24 .- The Salzburg Conference continues to engross a large share of public attention. It is rumored to-day that an explicit understanding was arrived at between their Imperial Majesties Napoleon and Francis Joseph, not only in regard to the formation of a Southern German Confederation, but also to resist any intervention in the Eastern question. It was also agreed that the States forming South Germany should remain in the Zollverein as long as Prussia abides by the treaty of Prague. In regard to the Schleswig question, it was proposed that his Majesty Francis Joseph should interpose his good offices, and that, on the other hand, Denmark should make considerable concessions in her demands. The Mexican question also came up for consideration. The body of Maximilian is to be demanded from the Mexicans by France and Austria, and the citizens of both empires in Mexico are to be protected at all hazards.
